LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Jan. 1.—We have a report from the geological party so interesting that I am going to send it northward just as it came from Dr. Gould (Lawrence M. Gould, leader of the party.)

I wonder if it is generally realized that this little unit of our expedition is as the crow flies further from us than Boston is from Richmond? That is a very long distance in this country. They have just completed a trip of 110 miles to the eastward of their present base, so that when they reach here the last part of January they will have traveled by dog team about 1,200 miles since leaving Little America.

Not one of the party has ever before explored with teams, but now every member of this party and the supporting party we consider veteran trail hitters. The grueling training came last Summer when the dog-team men, most of whom had never before driven a team, arried hundreds of tons of material over eight miles of the treacherous bay ice. Even now it does not seem possible, but here is Little America to prove it.

Now the trail hitters have done more than they set out to do. The reason is easy to find. It is the spirit they put into their task, and some of them began to lick the job over two years ago when three young men of Boston, three college friends, went on their own initiative to the Walden farm in New Hampshire to learn about dogs to qualify themselves to help me.

Trained Arduously for Tasks.

For months they lived in a little shack and cooked their own meals. Now these three musketeers, Norman Vaughan, Eddie Goodale and Fred Crockett, are out there in the mountains doing their stuff with Larry Gould, Mike Thorne and Jack O'Brien.

For eight months these fellows and the supporting party practiced skiing and planned and labored in preparation for the trip. The final plans contained forty typewritten sheets.

There were many things they had to learn. Fred, for example, was given the job of making himself a radio operator. The results show how well he has done this. Mike turned himself into a cobbler and made two pairs of excellent ski boots for Larry and himself for mid-Summer use.

During the Winter months, the whole camp joined enthusiastically in making sleds, clothes, tents, cookers, sleeping bags, &c., for the trail parties. But the dog-team men, in addition to months of hard work in preparation themselves, did all the planning for their long and difficult journey and decided just what equipment would be most suitable.

Now they have acquitted themselves brilliantly on the trail and have done even more than I asked or hoped.

And so in this part of our work, as is the case with the many other branches of the expedition, my job has been made easy by the spirit of my men.

Message from Dr. Gould.

This spirit is seen in the radio I have received from the leader of the geological party, likable, brilliant, able Larry Gould, and I leave it to him to tell of the very important geological discovery he has made:

"Made trip to Mount Betty yesterday and left cache of discarded equipment in good repair near Amundsen's cache. Weather permitting, we start northward for Little America tonight and shall be traveling at night from now on.

"We are disreputable looking outfit now for no one has washed or

President Is in Fine Shape After Shaking 6,300 Hands

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—President Hoover returned to his office today in fine shape, after the trying ordeal of yesterday, when he shook hands with more than 6,300 persons at his first New Year's Day reception at the White House. One caller observed that the President's right hand was swollen, but members of the White House staff denied this.

The reception yesterday virtually closed the Presidential handshaking for some time. Mr. Hoover will now return to his custom of receiving delegations without this ceremony, or of being photographed with them on the steps of the State, War and Navy Building, near his temporary offices.

WALKER TO DONATE PAY RISE TO CHARITY

Denounces Critics of Increase as He Announces He Will Give $15,000 Yearly to Aid Needy.

LAUDS HARVEY FOR IDEA

Mayor Walker will give to charity the $60,000 he will receive in the next four years by virtue of the salary increases he approved for himself and his associates on the Board of Estimate on the last day of his last administration. The Mayor made this announcement yesterday at a meeting of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

He also criticized opponents of the increases, who, he said, prior to the passing of the municipal budget, had failed to offer a single constructive suggestion to save the city money. The total of his own advance, he declared, he will distribute among charities "that are saving the taxpayers of the municipality millions of dollars every year."

The announcement came after the Mayor had reviewed his administration in the past four years and had outlined the program before him. He turned abruptly to Leonor F. Loree, president of the chamber, who presided, and questioned him about the time. He apologized for "invading" the lunch hour of his hearers but said that patience had encouraged him to continue.

Scoffs at Idea Rise Was "Immoral."

"The salary of the Mayor of the city of New York," he said, "is now $40,000 a year, but for the next four years the present Mayor of the city of New York will only get $25,000 a year. I am going to take that $15,000 for each of the four years and divide it among charities that are doing big, splendid, fine things in saving the taxpayers and the municipality millions of dollars every year. You do not have to worry about my immorality any more.

"Now there are orphan asylums, there are old-age homes, there are homes for incurables, private activities, charitable and benevolent activities in this city which, if they closed their doors tomorrow and throw back upon the city for support the dependents who are in this city today, the budget of the city of New York would jump millions of dollars.

"I am already a paying member for the last ten years of about seven

REPUBLICANS OPEN FIRE ON ROOSEVELT; ATTACK 3 BUREAUS

RIOTS CALLED AVOIDABLE

Bank Failures Laid to Administration—Executive in Spirited Reply Deplores "Politics."

PRISON FUNDS ARE ASKED

Governor, in Message, Terms the System Antiquated and Seeks $1,000,000 for Emergency.

By W. A. WARN.
Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Republicans of the Senate and Assembly brought up their heavy artillery today and launched a concerted attack on Governor Roosevelt's Administration. The attack came within twenty-four hours after the Governor, in his annual message, had invited the friendly cooperation of the opposition on the common task of promoting the interests of the State through wise and wholesome legislation.

The Legislature, contrary to the precedent, had been held in session today for the purpose of receiving a special message from the Governor, calling for appropriations of approximately $1,000,000 to meet emergencies at the State prisons brought on by recent riots, as well as appropriations for the salaries of additional examiners in the State Department of Banks.

The reading of this message gave rise to bitter debate, which lasted for an hour or more in both branches of the Legislature. The Governor was subjected to personal attacks, charging the "breakdown" of three of the most important departments under his administration, the Prison Department, the Banking Department and the Department of Public Works.

John Knight, president pro tem of the Senate, who led the attack in the upper house, expressed doubt that there was any "parallel to the present situation in the history of the State."

Assemblyman Ederly Hutchinson, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, laid at the door of the Roosevelt Administration responsibility for the lives lost in the recent rioting at Auburn. He also charged that the Governor's office at times was used "as an advertising bureau for future political campaigns, State or national."

Governor Replies to Attacks.

Governor Roosevelt, when the character of the attacks was defined to him by newspaper correspondents at the Capitol, attributed the developments in the two houses to partisan motives and made extended reply to the charges launched against his administration in the course of the bitter debate.

"The only obvious thing about the statements made in the Senate and Assembly," the Governor said, "is that they were actuated by purely political motives.

"I am somewhat disappointed that this seems to be the first day's answer to my perfectly honest and definite offer of cooperation yesterday, and my hope voiced then that politics would not enter into the two departments that ought, more than any others, to be kept out of politics—the prison department and the banking department."

Senator Knight in his speech suggested that overcrowding at Auburn, held responsible by some for the riots, might have been relieved by the use of 600 cells at Sing Sing, larger and of more modern construction than the Auburn cells. The Governor declared that in his opin-

Jennings Is Out as Auburn Prison Warden; Gives Injuries in Riot as Cause of Retiring

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Brig. Gen. Edgar S. Jennings has given up his post as warden of Auburn prison.

Dr. R. P. Kieb, Commissioner of Prisons, announced Mr. Jennings's step as a resignation. When told tonight that Mr. Jennings denied he had resigned, the commissioner said:

"If he has not resigned, I can't read: I have the letter in his writing, and it says that he wishes to retire and take advantage of the retirement benefits."

The prison riots occurred in the last six months at Auburn under Warden Jennings's régime and in the second one last month he was himself a victim. He was gassed by rescuers and beaten by the rioting prisoners who captured him. It was on account of his injuries that he resigned, according to Dr. Kieb, who refused to make public the letter.

"He felt that the experience through which he had passed had so undermined his health that it appeared physically impossible for him to continue," said the commissioner.

Governor Roosevelt also told inquirers that the withdrawal was due to the physical incapacity of the former warden. Neither he nor Commissioner Kieb would discuss who might be successor to Jennings. Dr. Kieb pointed out that the position is under classified civil service and that no one is immediately available for the post. The Civil Service Commission will have to arrange for the necessary examination.

"Dr. Frank L. Christian will continue to serve as acting warden, completing his task of stabilizing conditions at Auburn. There will be no immediate change," the commissioner said.

It is known to be Dr. Christian's wish, however, to return to his regular position as head of the Elmira State Reformatory. He has no desire to become permanent warden at Auburn.

The Jennings administration has been under heavy fire ever since the second riot at Auburn. Whether any official suggestion was made to him that he should retire has not been disclosed here.

Although he did not condemn the Warden, Colonel George F. Chandler, former superintendent of the State police, who made a survey of the prison for the Governor after the second outbreak, charged that there had been in effect a reign of terror at Auburn. Colonel Chandler declared that an unwarranted amount of authority, grossly abused, had been given to the Mutual Welfare League, a self-governing organization of prisoners who had exercised discipline over inmates and even given orders to guards.

Special to The New York Times.

AUBURN, Jan. 2.—Notwithstanding press dispatches from Albany that Warden Jennings has resigned as head of the State prison here, he issued this statement:

"I have not resigned as Warden of Auburn prison. I have written a letter to the State Superintendent of Correction, Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, asking to be relieved from duty as Warden under the provisions of the State pension retirement system. That is all I have to say for the present."

BOSTONIANS TEAR UP COAST GUARD BILLS

SPEAKERS ASSAIL KILLINGS

Resolution Calls on Hoover for an Impartial Investigation of 'Newport Massacre.'

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Coast Guard recruiting posters were torn down and trampled on Boston Common today by a crowd which had previously attended a mass meeting in Faneuil Hall, in protest against the killing of three rum-runners off Newport Sunday, by Coast Guardsmen.

Speakers at the Faneuil Hall meeting, including former Mayor Fitzgerald, Representative MacCormack and Representative Douglass, made fiery denunciations of the killing of the rum-runners and of the government's prohibition enforcement policy, referring to the Black Duck incident as "the Newport massacre."

After the meeting the crowd poured out of the hall and into the common, where a Coast Guard petty officer was in charge of a recruiting station. The posters were torn from their metal frames and the frames kicked about the sidewalk.

The petty officer, powerless to stem the tide of indignant citizens, waited until the demonstration was over, and then gathered up the débris and hastened to Coast Guard headquarters at the custom house to report the incident.

A resolution was adopted at the meeting in Faneuil Hall, calling on President Hoover for a thorough and impartial investigation of the Black Duck affair. The resolution stated that the attitude of the government "gives the impression that an attempt is being made to suppress the facts and whitewash a criminal act, and all this for the enforcement of an unnecessary and stupid law."

Hall Filled to Overflowing.

The historic hall was filled before the meeting was opened at noon, and later the crowd increased so that hundreds were unable to gain admission. Among them were scores of market-men in white uniforms and straw hats. A band played while the crowd was coming in.

William H. Mitchell, the chairman, in opening the meeting, went back in history to March 5, 1770, when he said that near this spot a man was done to death under the guise of government authority.

"The Boston redcoats had full warrant under the law to order the slaying of Crispus Attucks. Three men were done to death last Sunday morning in Newport Harbor under the guise of authority," he said.

"A Washington paper in the last few days has printed a list of 1,100 done to death throughout the country under similar conditions. When stark wholesale murder stalks abroad under the protection of any law, in God's name repeal that law. Champions of justice were never needed more than now, and some of them are here."

Conrad W. Crooker, general counsel for the Liberal Civic League, said:

"We are meeting here not to glorify rum-runners or bootleggers. These men were known to be rum-runners, but they were human beings, citizens of the United States. If we are going to have law and order we must have law and order on the part of our government."

Mr. Crooker branded Boatswain Cornell, who was in charge of the Coast Guard boat, as a "miserable

FESS URGES BORAH HEAD DRY INQUIRY

PROSECUTORS CHECKED UP

Mitchell Scans Dry Records of All—New Alcohol Permit Is Being Drafted.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Coincident with a statement today by Attorney General Mitchell that he was conducting a survey of the activities of Federal District Attorneys designed to reveal just what these officials were doing to make law enforcement, particularly prohibition, more effective, it was revealed that a movement is under way to place Senator Borah at the head of the joint committee of Congress which will be created to study plans for the reorganization of dry agencies and make recommendations for legislation.

Attorney General Mitchell made public a summary of the changes in the corps of United States Attorneys since Mr. Hoover assumed the Presidency, and announced that a special investigation is under way to determine whether fifteen of the attorneys who are candidates to succeed themselves should be reappointed.

It was indicated that in each instance the aspirant for another term would be judged by the record he had made on all phases of law enforcement, with particular reference to his attitude toward the dry laws.

New Permit System Planned.

It also was made known today for the first time that the administration is working on a new plan to govern the release and distribution of alcohol for industrial purposes.

The permit system, as now operated, according to Senator Borah and other critics of the prohibition unit, is a national scandal, and is responsible, in the main, for enormous diversions to illicit channels of alcohol intended for use in industry, the arts and sciences.

Senator Fess of Ohio, a dry, expressed the opinion today that in proposals looking to a reorganization of the dry service care should be taken to prevent industrial alcohol being diverted to improper channels.

In his message to Congress on Dec. 3 President Hoover recommended the transfer of the detection phases of the Prohibition Bureau's work from the Treasury to the Department of Justice, but suggested that the permissive administration of the dry law should be retained in the Treasury.

In speeches and reports, Dr. Doran, the Prohibition Commissioner, has asserted that the diversion of industrial alcohol to bootleg channels had dropped to negligible proportions in the last few years.

"If the good doctor really believes that, and I am inclined to think he does, he is living in a fool's paradise," said a prominent Senatorial dry today.

Mitchell Lists Changes.

Attorney General Mitchell's summary of the recent changes in the corps of ninety-one Federal District Attorneys follows:

"Since March 4 one United States Attorney has been removed from office.

"Five United States Attorneys have resigned before the expiration of their terms, due to unsatisfactory conditions in their offices.

"Two United States Attorneys'

10 ON MOVIE PLANES KILLED IN CRASH OVER THE PACIFIC

SMASH HEAD-ON ALOFT

KENNETH HAWKS A VICTIM

Husband of Mary Astor, the Screen Star, Was Director—Body of His Aide, Max Gold, Recovered.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Jan. 2.—Two cabin airplanes, filled with motion picture directors and technicians of the Fox Films Corporation filming a play, crashed head-on over the Pacific this afternoon, burst into flames and fell 3,000 feet into the ocean.

All those aboard, ten persons in all, were killed. Among the dead were Kenneth Hawks and Max Gold. Kenneth Hawks was a well-known director and sportsman, the husband of Mary Astor, the actress, and brother-in-law of Bessie Love. Mr. Gold, the assistant director, formerly was national handball champion.

A third plane, also engaged in the making of the picture and carrying Warner Baxter, the featured player, and a double for Baxter, escaped damage. Its pilot, Captain Horace Turner, a close friend of Hawks, watched the disaster, unable to prevent it, then raced back to shore to summon rescuers.

The Dead.

The dead were as follows:

COOK, ROSS, pilot.
EASTMAN, GEORGE, cameraman.
FRANKEL, BEN, assistant cameraman.
GOLD, MAX, assistant director.
HARRIS, TOM, property man.
HAWKS, KENNETH, director.
JOHANNES, HANK, property man.
JORDAN, OTTO, assistant cameraman.
ROUSE, HALLOCK, pilot.
WELLS, CONRAD, cameraman.

Three of the bodies had been recovered tonight. They were those of Max Gold, Conrad Wells and Ben Frankel. Their bodies were found floating near where the blazing wreckage had sunk.

It is supposed that they had jumped through the doors of the planes, which were open, to permit the taking of camera shots. Three other bodies were reported to have been sighted by speedboats, but this was not confirmed.

Filming Story of Lowenstein.

The tragedy, the worst of its sort in the history of the motion picture industry, occurred three miles off shore, south of Redondo Beach, twenty-five miles from Los Angeles, at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

It was in the course of the filming of an Elinor Glyn story, "Such Men Are Dangerous," said to be based on the unexplained death of Captain Alfred Loewenstein, the Belgian financier, on July 5, 1928, when he fell or jumped from his private cabin airplane while crossing the English Channel.

The scene being filmed today when the accident happened included a parachute jump, apparently to be made by Baxter, but in reality to be made by his double. Baxter and the double were ready in the plane flown by Turner.

Technicians in Two Giant Planes.

Hawks, who previously had filmed other plays of danger in the air, and Gold were in two other planes, both of them big, high-winged, single motored Stinson-Detroiter cabin monoplanes.

In the cabins with them were the camera men and the property men. Halleck Rouse was flying one of the

Unbuttoned overcoats came into temporary fashion yesterday as the thermometer maintained an average of 52, twenty degrees above the normal for Jan. 2. Fanned by a moderate southwest breeze, the mercury rose from 46 at 12:01 A. M. to a high of 57 at 3 P. M.

While unusual, the warmth was not a record for the date, the government records disclosed. Colder weather with rain is predicted for today.

THEATRE MEN AGREE ON NEW TICKET PLAN

It Provides That Producers Retain Ownership of Seats Consigned to Brokers.

75-CENT PREMIUM IS LIMIT

Representatives of 25 Houses Pledged to End 'Buy'—Other Managers to Be Canvassed.

Producers and managers representing twenty-five theatres met at the office of Gilbert Miller in the Empire Theatre yesterday and agreed upon a method of distributing tickets which, they were confident, would do away with "the unconscionable prices demanded by brokers" and bring back to the theatre that part of the public which has been alienated by the high admission charges.

The plan is based on the assumption that the kernel of the evil in the situation is the custom of allowing ticket brokers to buy outright blocks of seats months in advance for successful plays and forcing them to buy seats for the less popular shows.

To end the "buy" evil, the managers signed a resolution yesterday to send tickets for two years beginning March 1 to agents only on consignment. The managers will thus retain all property rights in the tickets and prevent the brokers from "charging all the traffic will bear." The brokers will be permitted to return unsold tickets.

The agents, however, bind themselves to make no "buy" for any theatrical attraction and to charge no premium in excess of 75 cents a ticket. The managers will abolish selling blocks of tickets outright to the brokers, and keep a substantial number in the box office. If a broker violates the agreement all the theatres will withdraw their tickets from him, and if a manager goes back on his signature his tickets will be removed from all bonded agencies. A manager's bureau will police the operation of the plan.

Plan Proposed by Hopkins.

The agreement, in resolution form, was proposed by Arthur Hopkins, chairman of a subcommittee of three which has been investigating ticket speculating. It was adopted unanimously by those present. As virtually unanimous consent of all managers was regarded as necessary for success of the plan, committee members were named to visit the remaining managers and obtain their cooperation. The names of those favoring the plan will be given out as soon as every manager has had an opportunity to consider the proposal.

Spirited speeches in support of the new method of ticket selling were made by Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Miller

DETECTIVE SHIFTS BLAME

Asserts Coughlin Told Him to Omit McManus From 'Wanted' List.

CRITICIZES CAREY'S ACTS

Ex-Inspector Responsible for Failure to Fingerprint the Gambler, He Testifies.

FLOOD CALLED 'IGNORANT'

Story Shows for First Time That Rothstein Phoned Someone After Summons to Hotel.

With a gesture that set the seal of his disapproval on at least one sample of the police work in the investigation of the murder of Arnold Rothstein, still unsolved fourteen months after the crime, Police Commissioner Whalen demoted a first grade detective to patrolman late yesterday afternoon. The target of the commissioner's dissatisfaction was Patrick Flood, the first detective on the murder scene.

The demoted man had gone on trial at 11:45 A. M. and had undergone nearly five hours of extremely searching cross-examination when, as he adjourned the case until this morning, the commissioner stripped Flood of the gold shield he had worn for seventeen years. The detective, a small bundle of jangled nerves, sat up convulsively as he heard himself ordered to report for duty on the pavements at midnight last night.

The detective, who had testified to a remarkable trust in mankind generally, walked out of the trial room at headquarters as though in a trance. When he got to the lobby he learned that the blow had been softened somewhat. He was directed to report for duty at headquarters and then was relieved in order to be fresh for the continued cross-examination today.

Finds Flood Ignorant of Duties.

When he abruptly reduced the rank of Flood Commissioner Whalen added a caustic comment on Flood's testimony during the day, in which he tried to clear himself of the charge that he had bungled the murder inquiry.

"Before reaching a decision with respect to the charges now pending against you," said Mr. Whalen, "your ignorance and complete lack of understanding of your routine duties as a first-grade detective, as developed in your testimony today, makes it necessary for the Police Commissioner to take immediate action as to your present claims in the Police Department.

"Accordingly, you are hereby reduced from your present rank of first-grade detective to that of patrolman, transferred and remanded to patrol duty, effective midnight Jan. 2."

A point brought out in the cross-examination of Flood contributed something new to the history of the murder. He said that when a man telephoned to Lindy's Restaurant, asking Rothstein to go to Room 349 of the hotel, Rothstein's first action upon getting the message was to telephone some one. The call and the identity of the person receiving it was not learned by the detectives.

Flood had gone on trial without benefit of counsel. He told the commissioner that he could not afford to pay $500, which would be the fee of any attorney "of standing." He set about a feeble effort as his own lawyer in much the same excited way in which, as he later testified, he had viewed events and persons on the night of Nov. 4, 1928, when he hurried to the Park Central Hotel on a report that "a man" had been shot there.

Flood admitted that he had omitted material facts from his reports to his superiors. He said that he had put the time when he was summoned from the West Forty-seventh Street station to go to the hotel at 11:15 P. M. Deputy Commissioner Ruttenberg forced him to admit that he was at the hotel about thirty minutes before that hour. The detective denied with heat that he had falsified the time in order to cover up something.

The cross-examination of Flood brought out that fingerprints on four glasses and two bottles found in Room 349—the scene of the fatal shooting of Rothstein, according to the police—had been valueless in the investigation. The reason for this was that Flood had not fingerprinted Rothstein after his death in Polyclinic Hospital on Nov. 6. Flood

Oil Fire on Sea Kills Two in Saratoga's Gig, Burns Four, Scorches Big Plane Carrier's Side

By The Associated Press.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., Jan. 2.—Gasoline fire which flashed over the surface of the sea and up the side of the Saratoga, giant naval aircraft carrier, killed two men today and burned four, three seriously. The bodies of the two victims were not recovered.

THE DEAD.

MATHEW LA VEILLE, 22, seaman, second class, 517 Hamilton Street, Schenectady, N. Y. Nearest relative, mother, Mrs. Clara La Vielle, Schenectady.

THE INJURED.

A. L. HOUSTON, seaman, second class; seriously burned.
H. KENTFIELD, seaman, first class, seriously burned.
G. W. SEBREY, seaman, second class, seriously burned.
B. J. MARTON, seaman, second class, minor burns.

The dead and injured, with the exception of Marton, were in the captain's gig, moored along side the big ship. Marton was on the gun deck of the Saratoga. He was burned when he jumped through the flames to rescue Sebrey.

Commander A. C. Reid, senior officer of the Saratoga, said the fire was caused by a turpentine pot in a punt alongside the Saratoga, catching fire from an unknown cause, and firing the surface of the water, which was covered with residue from a gasoline compression pump which was being cleaned aboard the aircraft carrier.

The captain's gig, valued at $25,000, was destroyed. Damage to the Saratoga was not estimated. Commander Reid said, however, that repairs could be made to the ship without difficulty while she remains at her anchorage.

The flames were fought from the gun deck and through port holes. Gun turret 3 was scorched and the flag on the starboard staff burned away. Another flag was raised within a few minutes as a signal to other navy ships nearby that the fire was in hand.

Only twenty planes were aboard at the time, Commander Reid said. Fifteen hundred of the Saratoga's complement of 1,700 men were on board.

The Saratoga, completed at a cost of $35,000,000, has been in service with the battle fleet for two years. It houses approximately 2,000 officers and men. It is 888 feet long and develops a speed of forty knots an hour.

Boy, 16, Admits 150 Robberies in Brooklyn; Entered Homes to Rifle Coats of Party Guests

A 16-year-old schoolboy, arraigned yesterday on a charge of robbery before Magistrate Hughes in Flatbush Court, admitted that he and two 15-year-old companions had robbedy 150 homes in the Sheepshead Bay, Flatbush and Borough Park sections of Brooklyn during the last two months and had spent the proceeds on shows.

The boy arraigned was William Haggerty of 5,805 Sixteenth Avenue, Brooklyn. He was held in $10,000 bail for a hearing today. His companions, Bert Simonson of 1,154 East Second Street and Edward Kelly of 1,949 Fifty-second Street, were sent to Children's Court.

Late on New Year's night Patrolman William Eason, a demoted detective of the Parkville station, with Sergeant O'Neil and Patrolman Feldman of the same precinct, was driving past the home of Harry Gross, at 506 Avenue J, when he saw three boys run out of the yard with Gross in pursuit. Gross collared one of them. But the others fled. Eason overtook them in his car and brought them back to Gross's home.

Gross described how, while giving a New Year party, he surprised the boy he had captured rifling the pockets of overcoats left by his guests in a room of his home. The boy proved to be Haggerty. Questioned later at the police station he admitted the charge and said that he and his companions had committed fifty similar robberies.

His plan, Haggerty said, was to select a house where a party was in progress, take off his shoes and stockings, climb through a window into the room where the wraps had been left and steal whatever valuables he found. He also admitted that he had committed several roberies by himself at night. On entering a bedroom, he said, he would first see if the sleeper were facing in his direction. If so, he left the house immediately. If not, he searched the room for cash and jewelry.

Two other youths were arrested in Brooklyn New Year's Night by Detective Arthur De Marrais, who surprised them holding up the drug store of Benjamin Lipschitz at 316 Franklin Avenue. They were Anthony Ferrara, 16 years old, of 143 George Street, and Murray Leonardi, 19, of 1,671 Hopkins Street. Each of them carried a pistol when arrested, but only one gun was loaded.

Says He Suspected McManus.

Other questions put to the accused detective dealt largely with George A. McManus, who was acquitted of the murder. Flood swore that he had suspected McManus and had wanted to put him on the police "wanted" list several days after the shooting. Former Inspector John D. Coughlin, now retired, had told him to omit the name because the police lacked sufficient evidence to arrest McManus. Another reason advanced by Flood was that the police wanted to "talk" to McManus before an arrest would provide him with a lawyer.

Flood admitted, as perspiration started trickling down his worried face, that he had encountered the much-sought Hyman Biller in Room 349. Biller's indictment for the murder of Rothstein still stands. Biller had entered with Frank McManus and Thomas McManus, brothers of the acquitted man. Thomas McManus had been a policeman at one time. The witness said that Thomas McManus had agreed to bring his brother to the hotel room to explain how his overcoat happened to be there. Somewhat sadly, Flood told how his wait had been vain.

Explains Why He Made No Arrest.

"So you had these three men, Tom, Frank and Biller all connected with George McManus on that occasion in that room," he asked, "did you not?"

"I did," said Flood.

"Did you let them go?"

"I did."

"Why didn't you arrest them?"

"I had no charge to arrest them on."

The examination continued as follows:

Q.—How did you come to let them go? A.—Because I had no crime on which to arrest them.

Q.—You did not think you had any cause to detain them in any way? A.—No.

Q.—For further questioning? A.—I questioned them and they answered satisfactorily.

Q.—The answers were satisfactory to you? A.—Yes.

Q.—What were their answers to your questions? A.—I asked them where they lived.

Q.—Where who lived? A.—Biller. He said he lived in the hotel, Room 143, for over two years. Burditt Divers, the house detective, said he recognized him as a guest there at that time, and Frank said he lived in the hotel and Burditt Divers also said the same thing about him, that he recognized him as a guest there. Tom said he lived in the Manger Hotel.

Q.—Did you ask Tom and Frank where George lived? A.—I did.

Q.—You did? A.—I did.

Q.—And they gave you very explicit information on that subject on that occasion, did they not? A.—They did not.

Q.—They refused to tell you, did they? A.—They did.

Q.—And didn't that cause you also to associate George McManus with the possible commission of this crime, the fact that they did not tell you his address? A.—I had no proof that he had committed any crime.

Q.—You had a suspicion of it, had you not? A.—That he knew something about it, yes.

Q.—What happened, tell me what happened? A.—Tom volunteered to go out and get him and said he would get him to explain the presence of his overcoat there.

Q.—And what did you do? A.—We left and we continued the investigation.

Q.—You let them go, did you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Did you have them followed and shadowed? A.—No.

Q.—So you neither detained them nor did you follow them and shadow them to see if they hooked up with George McManus, is that so? A.—That is so.

Q.—That is true, is it not? A.—Yes.

Blames Carey for One Delay.

Flood said that he did not learn that George McManus was classed as a fugitive until three days after the shooting. Then, he testified, he tried to get a photograph of the missing man and ten days later went to search the McManus home on Riverside Drive. The delay in getting a search warrant was another matter which the detective charged up to Inspector Carey.

Major Mayer developed the fact that when the police paused in their investigation of the shooting, at 4 A. M. on Nov. 5, a police guard had not been stationed in Room 349.

"We instructed Detective Divers, the house officer, and the manager, Mr. Hartnett," said Flood, "to let us know if anybody came back to that room, and Mr. Hartnett informed me that he would cause the arrest of any one that came back there and hold him for us."

Flood said that he trusted the McManus brothers and Biller to bring George down to the waiting detectives. He thought that Thomas McManus, having been a brother policeman, would do that. The detective testified to finding McManus's handkerchiefs, a shirt and some racing sites, as well as the overcoat, in Room 349. Then he said he had not entertained any definite "suspicions" at the time, hazarding the suggestion that he "might have been a visitor" to the room. This provoked Mr. Whalen.

The commissioner scoffed at the idea. He demanded to be told why the brothers and Biller had not been taken to the station house as material witnesses and there questioned at length.

"I questioned them in the hotel," said Flood, "and the brother being an ex-policeman and volunteering to go out and get his brother, and having his coat there, I believed he was sincere."

"In other words," said Mr. Whalen with sarcastic inflection, "you handled him gently because his brother had been a policeman?"

"No," said the witness, "I believed he was sincere and would do what he said."

Later Flood said that last Tuesday, for the first time, he had received an explanation of why McManus had not been produced that night. The information, he said, came from former District Attorney Joab H. Banton. McManus's brother had tried to bring him in but the missing one had been "terribly drunk" and could not be handled.

Believed Biller's Statement.

Commissioner Whalen's cross-examination continued as folowls:

Q.—Do you realize that your friendship for McManus brothers has cost this county and city thousands of dollars? A.—I had no friendship for them whatever. I never hardly spoke to Tom McManus twice in my life.

Q.—Do you realize that your action has held the Police Department of New York up to ridicule in searching all over the country for Hymie Biller, who has not as yet been found? A.—I do not think that I am responsible for that.

Q.—He was in your hands. A.—Yes; at that time I did not know. At that time he was not in the room.

Q.—You did not think it was worthwhile enough to detain him in November to determine whether he was in that room? A.—He said he was not.

Q.—If he shot Rothstein and told you he did not would that be sufficient for you? A.—No.

Q.—Do you believe everything that people tell you? A.—No.

Q.—Why did you believe Hymie Biller? A.—Because I had no evidence to show—

Q.—Did you expect him to present you with the evidence? A.—No, I did not. There were no circumstances under which I could connect him with that at all.

Q.—Don't you know the circumstance, the very presence in the room was sufficient for you to hold him for further questioning? A.—I do not think I would have any right to hold him for further questioning. I do not think I could have taken him. I would have to make prisoners of them.

Q.—Have you any idea what the cost to the government has been of the stupid error you made in that case? A.—I know it has been expensive.

Asked to Be Relieved of Case.

Q.—Do you think that your action in this case is of a proper kind? A.—It is thoroughly honest. Of course, if we had to do things twice, we would probably do them better, but at that time——

Q.—Why didn't you ask to be relieved of the case if your friendship was interfering with your official duties? A.—There was no friendship at all. And I did ask to be relieved from the case.

Q.—Whom did you ask? A.—Lieutenant Carroll.

Q.—When did you ask to be relieved from the case? A.—Soon after it occurred.

Q.—Why did you ask him to be relieved of the case? A.—Just because I did not like the surroundings of the case and the publicity attached.

Q.—That was not the reason. Tell the real reason. A.—That is the only reason I can tell you, commissioner, and that is the truth.

Q.—And you wanted to be relieved from the case? A.—There was too much notoriety in the papers about it.

Q.—From the 4th, the day on which it occurred? A.—Yes.

Q.—How did you know that there was going to be so much publicity in the case? A.—I knew on account of the character of the men involved.

Q.—And therefore you felt that you could not do your full duty in the case and you wished to be relieved? A.—No——

Q.—The only thing that is going to save you, Flood, is for you to tell the truth in this case. If you had that feeling on the 4th of November, I want to know why you made that request. You have an opportunity to tell the full truth. A.—That is the only explanation that I can make of it, is that I did not like to be mixed up in it.

Q.—You must have had some good reason? A.—I did not like the publicity. I never looked for it and I always tried to avoid it.

Q.—Oh, no. That is not a proper excuse to give at this time, the publicity in the matter. A.—That is the truth about it.

Q.—You know publicity attends all cases of crime? A.—There was too much publicity and unusual publicity about that. There was a lot of talk——

Q.—Wasn't the fact that you were friendly with the McManuses the reason that you wanted to be relieved? A.—Absolutely not. There was a lot of talk going around I didn't like to hear.

Commissioner Ruttenberg read from Flood's testimony at the McManus trial and compared it to his reports and to replies he made yesterday. There was sharp conflict at several points, the commissioner's questions suggesting that Flood's testimony at the trial had omitted several "important" matters. Flood said that he had been "hasty" in his answers at the trial and that his failure to note the correct hour when he got the report of the wounding of Rothstein had been "an error in time."

Flood was pressed hard for an explanation of why he had failed to include in his report his encounter with Biller and the McManus brothers. It was an "oversight," he said. Other omissions he put down to the "haste of the investigation."

Mr. Ruttenberg pointed out that fingerprints probably had been on the telephone in Room 349 and that they would have shown who made the call to Lindy's. He asked Flood if he had looked for fingerprints. The detective said that "it did not occur to me." He was examined about the drinking glasses and swore that he had been very careful about them.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Whalen, "you know that there are no set of fingerprints that the department has been able to find that match up to the fingerprints on those glasses and bottles?"

"I do," said Flood.

"Does that seem strange to you?"

"In a way, yes."

"You think that somebody 'planted' those glasses and bottles and removed the others that were there before you got there?"

"I do not."

Considered Exhuming Body.

When his failure to fingerprint Rothstein after death was established, Flood said he "thought that matter would be attended to by Inspector Carey, as he had the prints on the glasses." Carey told him that he was comparing the prints with records in the Bureau of Criminal Identification. Flood then disclosed that Carey and Mr. Banton had thought of exhuming the body of Rothstein to get fingerprints.

"That was spoken of by Inspector Carey," said Flood, "when the District Attorney was present."

"But no action was taken?" inquired Commissioner Ruttenberg.

"No," said Flood, "that was not up to me. Inspector Carey discussed that with Banton or with the Assistant District Attorney, in fact."

Flood testified that he, Patrolman Fitzgerald and Detective Joseph Daly, since retired, went to the Park Central room of Mrs. Frank McManus and got George McManus's telephone number. The detective said Mrs. McManus, who was asleep, did not know her visitors were detectives, but gave the phone number without asking who they were. Mr. Whalen attacked this testimony, but Flood insisted that his story was true.

The detective said that he was certain that when Biller and the brothers called at the room they had had no knowledge of the shooting. In fact, said Flood, he had told them about it.

Flood insisted that he had interviewed all of the hotel guests on the third floor of the hotel. He had a list of those who opened their doors and talked. Many would not talk to the detectives.

"And because they told you they could give no information," said Commissioner Whalen, "you just forgot them?"

"Not only that," said Flood, "but they rebuked us for waking them at that hour."

"Rebuking you did not prevent you from taking their names after once disturbing them?"

"They would not give it to you."

Flood said that he had detected an odor which he thought resembled "hop" or burning opium. He had failed to find any opium, he said, when he went sniffing about the corridors trying to trace it.

Flood Denies He Trusted Biller.

"You trusted the McManus brothers on this eventful night," said Mr. Whalen, "you trusted Mr. Biller, now you have trusted the manager of the hotel. You have trusted Mr. Divers, the house detective. You were very trusting that night, weren't you?"

"No, I wasn't," said Flood. "I didn't trust Mr. Biller. I didn't know anything about him."

He was challenged to point to a single "piece of testimony here this afternoon" which would indicate disbelief on his part. He said that he had not believed the hotel management when they offered the theory that Rothstein was shot outside the hotel.

The cross-examination of Flood had not been completed when the adjournment was taken. It is expected that his trial will end by noon, and at 2 P. M. the second of seven Rothstein policemen under charges will go on trial. The detective is an honor man of the department, John H. F. Cordes.

VITALE'S CLUB TRIES TO SUMMONS WHALEN

Tepecano Officer Charges the Police Obtained Its Books Unlawfully.

Police Commissioner Whalen was threatened yesterday with a counter-offensive in the Vitale case, but owing to Magistrate Bernard A. Douras the offensive never got beyond the threat stage. Albert H. Scipione, financial secretary of the Tepecano Democratic Club, sought a summons for the commissioner on the ground that he was unlawfully withholding property of the club.

The application for a summons was made when Daniel J. Iamascia, John (Zacci) Savino and Joseph Catania, known as "Joe the Baker," came up for arraignment before Magistrate Douras in West Farms court. The men are charged with acting in concert with the seven men who on Dec. 8 held up the testimonial dinner to Magistrate Vitale in the Bronx Roman Gardens Restaurant.

Commissioner Whalen demoted and tried Detective Arthur C. Johnson, who surrendered his service revolver to the hold-up gang. The commissioner, who is expected to give a decision in the Johnson trial in a day or two, obtained the roster and programs of the Tepecano Club a day before he announced that of the forty guests who assembled to honor Magistrate Vitale seven had police records. Ciro Terranova, said the commissioner, had the hold-up staged to get back a murder contract he had made with a Chicago gunman, whereby the gunman was to get $20,000 for killink Frankie Yale and Frank Marlow.

Prosecutor Asks Adjournment.

When Iamascia, Savino and Catania were arraigned Assistant District Attorney Sylvester Ryan asked an adjournment until Monday. Caesar B. F. Barra, attorney for the accused men, opposed the adjournment.

"There is no reason why these men should be held," he said, "and deprived of their liberty, for, although out on bail, they are deprived of their liberty. There should be some one here to connect them with the commission of a crime. The man whose name has been mentioned time and time again as complainant is here."

Magistrate Douras ruled against Barra and the lawyer asked that the hearing on Monday be marked peremptory. Magistrate Douras refused to do so.

"While I am here," said Mr. Barra, "I wish to make an application for a summons for the Police Commissioner and his deputies for withholding property. The police arbitrarily and without right of law entered the clubrooms of the Tepecano Club, a political organization created under the laws of the State of New York, and they removed the ledgers and books belonging to the association. We ask your Honor for a summons so that we may get the property that lawfully belongs to us. Mr. Scipione is a lawyer as well as a member of the club."

The magistrate asked Mr. Ryan what he thought of the application. The Assistant District Attorney replied that it had nothing to do with his case. He suggested that the court put the application over until Monday. Mr. Barra said that he wanted the summons returnable then.

"There's too much of importance in this case," said Magistrate Douras, "for me to listen to all these peculiar things. You have a remedy by replevin, you know that."

"Oh, no!" said Mr. Barra. "This is a crime."

Court Calls Case "Outrageous."

"Oh, yes, you have," said the magistrate. "I'll say 'oh, no' to your application. I'll not get tangled up in a case like this. It is one of the most outrageous that ever was."

"Outrageous in what way?" said Mr. Barra.

"You know, in every way," replied the Court.

"These people arbitrarily break into a clubhouse," said the lawyer, "take property——"

The magistrate registered impatience. He broke in swiftly:

"What became of the people who arbitrarily broke in with guns and robbed everybody?" he asked.

"What has the Tepecano Club to do with that?" said Mr. Barra.

"A whole lot, I think," said the Court, "and your application is denied."

Outside the court room Mr. Scipione said that "in taking the books the police trampled on the constitutional rights of free citizens."

Gaetano de Sommi, proprietor of the Roman Gardens, named by the police as complainant, told reporters that he was no complainant.

"I am here to exonerate these men," he said. "They had nothing to do with the hold-up. They are my friends."

The restaurateur was not so expansive toward Joseph Bravate, indicted as one of the hold-up men. He admitted that he was the complainant against Bravate.

John Savino told reporters that Mrs. Grace Savino, arrested as a vagrant last week and released, was not his wife. When taken up on that charge for questioning in Mr. Whalen's investigation of the robbery, she had been booked as Savino's wife. She is just a friend, said Savino.

A report that the hold-up had been put on as a mask for a kidnapping plot was news to Mr. Whalen and to the new District Attorney of the Bronx, Chester B. McLaughlin. Mr. McLaughlin, in speaking of the adjournment of the case against the three prisoners, said that it had been requested by Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

CRAIN BEGINS STUDY OF ROTHSTEIN CASE

Reads 25 Pages of Testimony and Says Decision on Steps Will Require a Long Time.

INVITES NEW WITNESSES

Uncertain, on His First Active Day in Office, as to Policy on Separate Investigations.

District Attorney Thomas C. T. Crain, who on New Year's Day assumed office for a four-year term, indicated yesterday that it would be a long time before he would determine what steps to take in his reopened investigation of the Arnold Rothstein murder. Promptly at 11 A. M., as he had promised the day before, he began his new inquiry by turning to the minutes of the grand jury in the Rothstein murder investigation conducted thirteen months before by his predecessor, Joab H. Banton. These contained the testimony of about sixty-five witnesses, including a group of gamblers in a poker game several weeks before the killing which Mr. Banton believed to have provided the motive for the murder.

Shortly after 4 o'clock in the afternoon, in answer to a question on his progress in the Rothstein inquiry, Mr. Crain said: "I have just finished reading the twenty-fifth page of the grand jury minutes. I shall take these minutes home with me and study them here and at home from now on."

"Are you in possession of any evidence, outside of that presented to the Rothstein grand jury and at the recent McManus trial, which would lead you to believe you will make more progress in the murder than your predecessor?" he was asked.

"Nothing except my confidence in myself," he replied.

Calls for Volunteer Witnesses.

A little later Mr. Crain indicated that his mind was open on Mr. Banton's theory of the murder when he said:

"Through you gentlemen of the press, I extend to the public an invitation for information from anybody which might have a bearing on the Rothstein killing. It is a very curious thing, but criminal history shows that sometimes, months after a crime has been committed, a person who knew all the circumstances and was directly connected with it first makes a belated disclosure of the crime."

"Suppose a citizen came to you with information on an entirely new theory in the Rothstein murder, a theory on information which already had been rejected by the police, would you act on it?"

"I would look into it and investigate it as though nobody had turned it down," he announced.

"Has anybody come forward with information of the kind, Mr. Crain?"

"No one."

Discusses Dry Prosecution.

Mr. Crain's attention then was called to a statement by Maurice Campbell, Federal prohibition enforcement director, that it was up to Police Commissioner Whalen and Mr. Crain to suppress violations of the Volstead act in speakeasies and night clubs through enforcement of the State nuisance act. Mr. Campbell declared that a recent decision of the Supreme Court sustaining a nuisance act conviction in Nassau County made it incumbent on the authorities here to do away with such places as nuisances.

"If a complaint is made to me I'll handle it," announced Mr. Crain. "If anybody comes complaining, the matter will be investigated, and if there is sufficient evidence adduced that a crime has been committed, appropriate legal proceedings will be taken."

Mr. Crain let it be known that there would be no unnecessary delays in the trials of murder cases.

"I shall insist that all homicide cases be immediately presented to the grand jury for action," he said. "The greatest detriment to justice is delay. I also shall insist that hereafter my assistants bring homicide cases to trial as soon as possible, but, of course, in those cases where the accused are being held in the Tombs without bail they will be given preference in trials over those out on bail."

Undecided on Raid Policy.

Mr Craig was being interrogated about the reorganization of his office through his creation of the Bureau of Investigation and Complaint to take over the work formerly assigned to three separate bureaus established by his predecessor—the Bureau of Commercial Frauds, the Complaint Bureau and the Abandonment Bureau—when he was asked:

"Is it your intention to pursue the methods of former District Attorneys Jerome and Whitman in making raids over the heads of the police in gambling houses and other disreputable places, and not rely on police reports as Mr. Banton had done?"

"I have been in office but a few hours, and have not come to any decision on that yet," he replied.

Mr. Crain repeated this answer a few seconds later when he was asked if he contemplated establishing his own investigating force to work independently of the police in all cases of importance brought to his office.

The new district attorney here revealed that James J. Daly Jr., whom he had appointed an assistant district attorney the day before, had been placed at the head of the new combined bureau. Mr. Daly, who was Mr. Crain's secretary for his six years as Supreme Court justice, will have under him a staff of many other assistant prosecutors, stenographers and investigators, he said. Three of these prosecutors had been assigned as heads of the subdivisions of the new bureau, he added, and Mr. Daly also would have charge of the deputy assistant district attorneys who work in the various magistrates' courts. Assistant District Attorney Joseph A. Martin, he said, would be Mr. Daly's "first lieutenant."

Time Clocks Back in Service.

Mr. Crain revealed that he had given strict orders that the professional and clerical staffs of his office report for duty under a time-clock system which had been installed by Mr. Banton on the ground floor of the District Attorney's building at 137 Centre Street, but which, it was said, had fallen into disuse.

All the prosecutors, except some of those assigned to duty in the magistrates' court distant from the District Attorney's office, will be compelled to report for duty not later than 9:45 A. M. each weekday, he said, while the clerical attachés will report at 9 o'clock. The deputy assistants in the magistrates' court, he added, must report to the Bureau of Investigation and Complaint at the close of the court day, except in the case of the deputy assigned to the Tombs Court, who must report before and after the daily sessions.

Mr. Crain before taking office had announced that he would abolish the title of Chief Assistant District Attorney. On Dec. 31 a sign painter inscribed the title "Acting District Attorney" on the office formerly occupied by Chief Assistant District Attorney Ferdinand Pecora, who retired to private practice at the close of the Banton régime.

Yesterday, however, the same sign painter removed this title and substituted "Administrative Assistant" on the door. Mr. Crain said that there would be no permanent appointment to this post, but that Assistant District Attorney Albert Blogg Unger and other full assistants on his staff would serve at times.

Starts Pols Case Inquiry.

"I am in receipt of an order by Judge Coleman of the Federal Court on remarks made by United States District Attorney Tuttle on his application for transference of certain cases to this office on evidence developed in the Federal investigation of the business activities of Abraham A. Pols, former head of Henry Pols, Inc., meat dealers," Mr. Crain revealed. "The order was accompanied by two letters of transmission from Mr. Tuttle and the stenographers' minutes. I have referred those papers to Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers, together with communications about Pols from the Department of Hospitals, for his consideration and report."

"Then this will be in the nature of an inquiry into Pols's reported illegal relations with city employes and others before the failure of his firm and his guilty plea to irregularities in the Federal court?" Mr. Crain was asked.

"Mr. Brothers is to study the data," Mr. Crain replied, "and then will make a written report to me, having in mind the indictments pending against Pols already in General Sessions."

Mr. Crain said that he had not completed appointments to his professional staff. He said there were four or five vacancies, but gave no indication when these might be filled. He announced, however, that the salary of Assistant District Attorney Robert V. Santangelo, whose home is at 55 Oak Street, had been increased from $4,000 to $4,500.

WHALEN AT FUNERAL OF SLAIN POLICEMAN

Jockel, Shot Down by Thugs in Queens, Is Buried With Inspector's Honors.

Police Commissioner Whalen and his aides led an escort of 100 policemen yesterday at the funeral of Patrolman Joseph Jockel, 32 years old, of 215 Monitor Street, Brooklyn, who was shot and killed in Maspeth, Queens, last Saturday night by one of three hold-up men whom he was pursuing. He was buried with inspector's honors. Jockel was on his way to Manhattan when a speeding taxicab failed to stop on his signal. When he had forced the cab to the curb in Grand Street, Maspeth, one of the men in the car shot him through the neck. Jockel died before aid could reach him.

Mgr. Edward J. McGoldrick celebrated a requiem mass in St. Cecilia's Roman Catholic Church, Herbert and Henry Streets, Brooklyn. The Rev. Joseph Dolan acted as deacon and the Rev. John Carey subdeacon. The Rev. Lawrence Bracken, Catholic chaplain of the Police Department, delivered the eulogy.

At the services, besides the commissioner, were Deputy Police Commissieners Felix Muldoon and John A. Leach, Chief Inspector O'Brien, several police captains and lieutenants. The rest of the large escort was made up of patrolmen.

The murder of Jockel resulted yesterday in a dismissal of a summons for speeding which Jockel had issued. The summons, issued June 10, charged Miss Lillian Gwynn, actress, of 229 West Forty-sixth Street, with speeding along Seventh Avenue in the Fifties at thirty-two miles an hour.

TWO MEN EXECUTED IN BUFFALO MURDER

Brown and Kowalski Had Hoped Almost Until Last Minute for a Reprieve.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Arthur Brown, 34 years old, and Frank Kowalski, 25, two of a group of three men convicted for the slaying of a policeman in Buffalo, N. Y., on Dec. 22, 1928, were put to death in the electric chair at Sing Sing prison shortly after 11 o'clock tonight, after having hoped almost to the last minute that Governor Roosevelt would grant them a reprieve.

Kowalski was the first to go to the chair, entering the death chamber at 11:01 P. M. He was pronounced dead at 11:06 P. M.

Brown followed at 11:08 P. M., and was pronounced dead at 11:13 P. M.

Neither made any final statement. Kowalski was accompanied by the Rev. Father McCaffrey, the prison's Catholic chaplain, and Brown by the Rev. Dr. Peterson, the Protestant chaplain.

Earlier, although the condemned men refused to abandon the hope that Governor Roosevelt, who held a hearing on their cases in Albany on Dec. 30, would save them, they had made their final preparations. They had bidden farewell to eleven other inmates of the death house, but had ignored another condemned man, John F. Schlager, because of their belief that Schlager had betrayed them. Schlager was convicted with them for the killing of Patrolman Harold C. Haltham while they were attempting to rob the Armour plant in Buffalo. Schlager is sentenced to go to the chair a week from tonight.

Brown, who had been twice in Auburn prison, had asserted in a last interview that he did not believe crowded conditions or the quality of the food had precipitated the two riots in the up-State institution last year. He blamed the changes in the prison laws whereby prisoners lost credits for work and good behavior.

TO OPEN CITY TRUST TRIALS

Labate and Tavormina Will Face Brooklyn Court on Tuesday.

The first Brooklyn trials resulting from the City Trust Company failure are scheduled to begin before Supreme Court Justice Tompkins in Brooklyn on Tuesday. On that day J. Vincent Labate, a director of the bank, and Louis Tavormina, cashier of the Atlantic State Bank, which merged with the City Trust Company, will be tried on charges of stealing $11,545.

The trials will be the first major prosecutions by the new District Attorney, George E. Brower.

LINKS MEN 'HIGH UP' TO HUGE DRUG RINGS

Prosecutor Says, Facts About Attorneys and Politicians Will "Shock" the Public.

TO BARE ROTHSTEIN RULE

Asserts Data Now Known Will Seem Trivial After Inquiry by the January Grand Jury.

Investigation of the activities of three drug rings, about which information was obtained from the files of the late Arnold Rothstein, will be taken up by the January Federal grand jury as soon as it is sworn in next Tuesday. Assistant United States Attorney John M. Blake said yesterday that this inquiry promised to involve "important persons whose names mean something," including attorneys, politicians and others in public life.

Meanwhile, according to Mr. Blake, he is at work on twelve narcotic law indictments which the December grand jury expects to hand up today. These, he said, would name several defendants who have been involved in the importation and distribution here of heroin, cocaine and other narcotics. The Assistant United States Attorney intimated that the evidence to be adduced before the January grand jury would make the already known activities of drug importers and sellers here seem small in comparison.

"We expect to show how sinister was the influence of Rothstein in the drug racket," Mr. Blake continued. "The facts will surprise and shock the public when it is made acquainted with them. Some of the things to be disclosed about Rothstein will make his generally known activities seem of minor importance. The persons involved thus far will, we believe, seem like small fry compared to those whom we expect to name in connection with illegal drug activities.

Agents Seeking Violators.

"The three drug rings are big, complicated pieces of machinery and some of those involved are unusually prominent. We shall have witnesses from other parts of the country and hope to be able to prove by them how it happens that the rings have been able to carry on for such a prolonged period. All of our narcotic agents are now out searching for persons accused of violations of the Federal narcotic laws."

Mr. Blake said that members of other professions as well as that of the law were, in his opinion, involved in the "dope rings," but he refused to say whether the attorneys allegedly involved were members of the New York bar.

Both Mr. Blake and Assistant United States Attorney Alvin McK. Sylvester have been instructed by United States Attorney Tuttle, it was said, to give all of their time to the narcotic investigation and to spare no one, no matter how "high up" he might be.

Mr. Blake gave credit to Chief Police Inspector John O'Brien for great assistance and added that any information the government might obtain involving violations of the State laws would be turned over to the police.

It was said at the Federal Building that the authorities there were anxious to question a former hostess and co-director of The Tent, a night club at Fifty-first Street and Seventh Avenue, reported to have been arrested in Washington, D. C., with a man named Solomon, who received fourteen years in prison for violation of the narcotic law. Both were at one time bailed out by Rothstein and the hostess was exonerated of a charge of transporting drugs.

Narcotic Trial Opens.

The trial of Samuel Kolback, charged with having in his possession $100,000 worth of narcotic drugs in a trunk at 186 Forsyth Street, was begun yesterday before Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard and a jury.

Assistant United States Attorney Lowell Wadmond called to the stand for the government Coleman Manning, a narcotic agent, who testified that he and other agents under George W. Cunningham, agent in charge of narcotic investigations, had arrested Kolback at the Forsyth Street address after having trailed him there from 52 First Street, where he formerly had a room.

Manning said Kolback had opened the trunk, which contained heroin, with a key he took from his pocket. While they were there, according to Manning, Mrs. Clara Tannenbaum came into Kolback's room and admitted that she knew him. When she made that statement Kolback began pleading with Manning and the other agents not to arrest her, as she knew nothing about the contents of the trunk, according to the witness. Manning quoted Kolback as having said:

"She knows nothing about the trunk. A man gave me $50 to keep it for him and I have given this young woman $5 to keep it for me."

Narcotic Agents Ralph H. Oyler and Salvador Pacetta corroborated Manning's testimony. The trial, which is considered one of importance by the government, although as yet there has been no link produced to connect it with the Rothstein activities, will be continued today. The defense is represented by J. Arthur Adler.

O'CONNELL IS HUNTED IN CANADA AND CUBA

Wide Search Pressed for Albany Politician Indicted for Perjury in Ball Pool Case.

No word reached the Federal Building yesterday concerning the whereabouts of Daniel P. O'Connell, Albany Democratic leader, but there were rumors which located him in Canada and in Havana, Cuba.

The alleged flight of O'Connell followed persistent efforts on the part of United States Attorney Tuttle to bring him to this jurisdiction to plead to an indictment charging perjury and as a material witness in the second perjury trial of James J. Otto, one of the three who owned the Albany baseball pool. O'Connell's bail of $10,000, in which he is held as a witness, was forfeited by order of Federal Judge Goddard, but the forfeiture was delayed for a time to give the defendant a chance to appear.

Mr. Tuttle has been told that if he wanted O'Connell as a witness in the trial of Otto or before the grand jury, he would have to bring him here in removal proceedings. No change has been made in the plans of Mr. Tuttle to put Otto on trial Monday, but it was suggested that the trial would be delayed if it was not found possible to assure the presence of O'Connell as a witness.

The only witness before the grand jury yesterday in the inquiry into the pool was William Carey, formerly head of the Federal income tax bureau in Albany.

COMPROMISE SEEN AT HAGUE PARLEY

French to Offer Sanctions Plan at Reparations Conference Opening Today.

BACKED BY THE BRITISH

They Would Submit Differences on Young Plan Execution to Arbitration.

GERMANS LIKELY TO AGREE

But Diplomats Who Will Also Attend Naval Conference See Possibility of Prolonged Sessions.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 2.—The delegations of the powers concerned are gathering here for the opening tomorrow of the second session of The Hague conference to put the Young plan into effect.

A special train from Paris with the French contingent of fifty-six, headed by Premier Tardieu, arrived at 6 o'clock tonight, soon after the Belgians. Many minor delegations already are here. The British and Germans will arrive tomorrow morning, and the opening session will start at 5 o'clock in the evening.

The diplomats interested in the London Naval Conference hope to finish the work here in ten days, but it is admitted by some that the German demands may prolong the session. The most important German demand is that the creditor nations in adopting the Young plan pledge themselves to regard the sanctions permitted under the Treaty of Versailles as no longer a part of their reparation policy.

In plain words, this is a request that France promise never to use those sanctions should Germany not carry out the Young plan. Naturally, the Tardieu Government is not going to accept that. However, the French delegation has brought to The Hague a compromise plan which seems to denote a real desire to give the Germans a measure of satisfaction. This plan, which is largely the work of Foreign Minister Briand, may be expressed briefly as follows:

Both France and Germany, as well as the other interested nations, declare they will be faithful to the Young plan. In case either France or Germany is accused by the other of violating the Young plan, there would be an arbitration situation solvable either by the Arbitration Board provided in the Young plan or by the World Court. If the arbiters found France in the wrong she would abide by the finding. Should Germany be found at fault in the event of non-payment, then France would regain her liberty and take the sanctions under the Treaty of Versailles.

It is understood the British will give the French formula their backing and subscribe to it. Naturally this will not satisfy the German Right, but it marks a considerable concession from the former French view and it is expected the Germans will in the end accept it. Certainly they will not succeed in getting Premier Tardieu to promise that no matter how great Germany's failure to pay reparations, France would bind herself not to exert her rights under the peace treaty.

It is also expected the Belgians will try again to get the International Bank for Brussels. But it is generally expected that the decision of the banking experts at Baden Baden on Basle, Switzerland, will stand. The French and British are said to be in agreement on their plans, which have been carefully worked out, and no one looks forward to a repetition of the Anglo-French contest which marked the August meeting at The Hague.

GERMANS HOPEFUL ON WAY TO THE HAGUE

Berlin Delegation, Headed by Dr. Curtius, Expects Speedy Agreement on Young Plan.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The German delegation to the second Hague conference, headed by Dr. Julius Curtius, Foreign Minister, left Berlin tonight.

The members are journeying into an atmosphere of political uncertainties, if a section of the press is to be believed, which habitually takes its cue from foreign news sources when the reparations issue comes up for negotiations, but German official quarters expect a speedy and frictionless conclusion on the Young plan.

It is not expected that the agenda of the conference will be cluttered with eleventh-hour impediments which might complicate its progress. Rather, it is assumed here, the conference will deal primarily with the technical and financial formalities connected with the execution of the Young plan and the establishment of the Bank for International Settlements, and the fundamental issues concurred in during the conference last August will remain undisturbed.

The altered situation resulting from the independent reparations pact between the United States and Germany, under which the latter's payments will be made direct to the United States Treasury instead of through the International Bank, it is also taken for granted, will hardly be an occasion for projecting fresh complications into the situation, while the possibility of the recalcitrant attitude on the part of Eastern reparations powers is offset in the German conjectures with the assertion that the Young plan will become effective the moment the major creditor powers have signed it.

In the German point of view, therefore, there is no reason to assume at the outset that the conference will be unduly protracted or that anything will occur to vitiate the cardinal political guarantees given the late Foreign Minister Stresemann at The Hague last Summer, primarily those concerning the evacuation of the Rhineland before the end of next June.

GERMAN LOAN FIRST IN MINDS OF FRENCH

Paris Delegates Go to Hague Interested Chiefly in Plans for Reparations Bonds.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—With their attention fixed principally on the necessity of obtaining a settlement at The Hague which will permit floating the first German reparations loan under good conditions, Premier Tardieu, Foreign Minister Briand, Finance Minister Chéron and a large group of experts left this morning for the second Hague conference. The success or failure of the Young plan depends on the reception given by the investing public of every country to the bond issues which will be floated by the Bank for International Settlements.

How much these issues will be and when they will be made will not be settled until the bank has been finally organized, but even now it is essential that conditions should be prepared which will create public confidence. If after The Hague meeting and during the next few months the feeling of uncertainty about Germany's future, which has been created partly as a result of Dr. Hjalmar Schacht's differences with the German Government, is allowed to continue it may be difficult to place German bonds in the international market.

Premier Tardieu is believed to be prepared to insist that the most important evidence of good faith which Germany can give of her adherence to the Young plan is for the German people to be the first subscribers to the loan. In conversations on this matter the German reply has frequently been that the German losses during the recent Wall Street collapse have adversely affected the capacity of the country to subscribe.

M. Tardieu's reply has been, in effect, that everybody else lost and the fact that German money was lost in Wall Street is simply proof that the German position is not so bad as it is usually represented.

The French Premier has gone to The Hague prepared to carry through with the greatest loyalty France's engagements for the evacuation of the Rhineland and the ultimate evacuation of the Sarre area, which were made by his predecessor. But it is an essential point in his attitude that the best, indeed the only way in which Germany can show her sincerity is that she should be the first and biggest subscriber to the first reparations loan.

If the debt is to be commercialized, it is argued here, it is only right that Germany, at the same time the benefactor and debtor, should carry the largest possible risk in the possible failure of this commercial enterprise.

SMUTS, IN MONTREAL, LAUDS BRITISH POLICY

He Declares Its Success Is an Augury of World Peace—Receives McGill Degree.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Jan. 2.—The first public functions at which General Smuts has appeared since his arrival took place today when he addressed the Canadian Club, attended a reception by officers of the Montreal Military District and received the degree of Doctor of Laws from McGill University.

That the success of the British commonwealth of nations in keeping permanent peace among one-fourth of the people of the world is a splendid augury for the success of the League of Nations in its efforts to establish permanent peace, was the theme of the address by General Smuts at the Canadian Club.

The British Empire, he pointed out, was a small world in itself by virtue of its diversity of peoples, all with their own languages, creeds, colors and national aspirations. The British Commonwealth differed from the United States, France and other countries in that it followed the melting-pot system and tried to achieve a standardized nationality. The British commonwealth endeavored to encourage every small people within its ranks to develop along its own national lines.

Charges Against Broker Fail.

Walter B. Lasky, 27 years old, a broker, who gave the address 1,239 White Plains Road, the Bronx, was discharged for lack of evidence when he was arraigned yesterday before Magistrate Flood in the Tombs Court on suspicion of the theft of $30,000 in securities from Abraham Winters, a clothing merchant, of 736 Willoughby Street, Brooklyn. Winters in his complaint alleged that Lasky had converted the securities to his own use after the complainant had given them to him as collateral in other stock transactions. Lasky denied the charge.

TARDIEU EXPECTS NAVAL LIMITATION

French Premier Holds Cuts at London Parley Likely if Kellogg Pact Can Be Strengthened.

JOINT ACTION IS URGED

Plan Is to Avert Wars or Make Them Profitless—Almost Sure to Be Offered at Conference.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Jan. 2.—On the train from Paris to this city your correspondent discussed at length with Premier Tardieu the French position on the London five-power naval conference. The French Premier is not pessimistic about the meeting. He thinks there are good prospects for writing a limitation treaty fixing maximum limits for the fleets of the five nations concerned. In addition, he sees a possibility of real reductions, if certain political arrangements can be made.

As for a limitation treaty under existing political conditions, the French would put their limitation at 800,000 tons, basing their position on the argument that such a force represents France's needs for self-defense as matters now stand. The French hold that the other powers should calculate their needs on this basis and that if America does not choose to calculate her needs in that manner, she has her guiding formula in parity with Great Britain.

Kellogg Pact Held Big Factor.

When it comes to the political possibilities which Premier Tardieu regards as enabling France to reduce her naval program, the situation is not so clear. The French suggestion of a few weeks back for a treaty for mutual assistance among the Mediterranean powers against aggression has now been rejected by England and Italy. That leaves as a possibilty a weaker treaty among the Mediterranean powers along the lines of the four-power Pacific treaty, to which the French would not attach the largest importance, and strengthening of the Kellogg pact, to which France would attach very large importance.

Now the French know perfectly well that the United States is not going to agree on any hard and fast mutual assistance treaty. Premier Tardieu knows that as well as any one. But the French Government is of the opinion there are other steps in which America might join, which would make the anti-war treaty a much surer proposition.

In the first place, there will be a French proposal that the United States join with the principal signatories of the Kellogg pact in promising, as was done in the Pacific Treaty, that in the event of a danger of war they would unite with the other parties in an arrangement to try to avert hostilities. Since America has accepted that much for the Pacific, the French argue she should not think it going too far for the Atlantic and the other seas.

Such a system would bring America into considering the issue as to who was at fault, and if America's agreement could be had as to the aggressor, the French would regard that of enormous value, because they do not believe that thereafter we would help that aggressor.

Would Take Profit Out of War.

In the second place, it is entirely possible M. Briand will bring forward a suggestion for an addition to the Kellogg pact, either to the text or in the form of a supplement, to the effect that if the good offices of the signatories of the Kellogg pact and other peace machinery failed to prevent war the signatories would enter an arrangement agreeing that such a war should not result in any territorial aggrandizement on the part of any nation involved in it. In other words, there would be an agreement to make war unprofitable. It is quite likely the French do not foresee any promise of the use of force to effect this object, but would simply pledge the use of diplomatic and moral influence to that end.

The French are sure to bring up these proposals in London unless in the preliminary conversations they are too much discouraged. In any event, it is the position of the Tardieu Government that France must have security, for which she wants a fleet of 800,000 tons. If political security arrangements can be obtained she will reduce this program. If they are obtained at London she will reduce there. If they come later at Geneva she will reduce there. How much depends on the values she would attach to the arrangements effected.

Without meaning any unkindness to the French Government, it cannot be denied that its program places America in a dilemma. Either the United States would get no reduction—only a limitation naval treaty—or else she would agree to supplementing the Kellogg pact with more definite promises and get reduction. This is clear when one reflects that the United States' fleet depends on England's and England's depends to a large measure on France's.

URGES LEAGUE LINK WITH KELLOGG PACT

War-Time Official of British Admiralty Says It Would Solve Sea Freedom.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Admiral Sir Richard Webb, director of the trade division of the British Admiralty during the World War and afterward president of the Royal Naval College at Greenwich, said today that the problem of freedom of the seas could be solved only by closing up loopholes existing in the covenant of the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact, welding both into a harmonious whole, and so bringing about a total outlawry of war.

Addressing the Historical Association at University College here, Admiral Webb said that until that time came Britain's attitude was clear.

"Freedom of the seas," he said, "has been the rallying cry in the past of the weaker sea powers or of those who sought to limit a belligerent's action. It is one that Britain can never accept, and were she to do so she would immediately renounce her power in the world."

A plain fact, proved over and over again, especially in the last war, said Admiral Webb, was that a maritime war could not be carried on without some interference by belligerents with the trade of neutrals.

"But even if there was immunity for neutral vessels, that would not help Britain, because her supplies come almost entirely in British ships, and how can any international agreement be expected in practice to prevent a power at war with Britain from capturing or sinking her supply ships? Practically all nations are now pledging themselves, Admiral Webb remarked, to settle disputes by pacific means only.

"The covenant, while enjoying a specific method of settling disputes, left a loophole for war in case pacific methods failed," he continued. "The pact absolutely proscribed war as an instrument of policy, but war in self-defense is excluded. By the pact formula each nation is to be the judge of whether it is going to war in self-defense. Such wars will almost certainly be in the nature of private wars, and as long as the problem of private wars remains unsolved there can be no solution of the problem of freedom of the seas in the present state of the world's affairs."

Sir Richard argued that taking any general action against an aggressor under Article XVI of the League covenant depended upon a unanimous decision regarding the identity of an aggressor having been arrived at by the League Council, and "many people, therefore, are puzzled as to how it could be said that within the League there can be no neutrals."

It has been argued, Admiral Webb continued, that the pact, which laid it down that disputes should never be settled except by pacific means, provided by implication the test of aggression, since that State was the aggressor which went to war after having definitely refused pacific settlement.

"But who can define the aggressor in any dispute? Even if the League named the aggressor, would the United States or any other non-member accept that decision as long as she remained outside the League?"

EXPERTS TO FINISH WORLD BANK TASK

Reynolds and Traylor Sailing Tomorrow to Rejoin the Organizers at The Hague.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—The completion of the organization of the Bank for International Settlements is to be effected this month, it was announced today by Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, before he left on the Twentieth Century Limited for New York, where he will sail for Europe to attend the organization meeting of the bank committee.

The meeting of the committee has been called for Jan. 12. Prior to it the bankers will meet with the governmental representatives at The Hague in their final conference on the Young plan. The governmental conference has been called for tomorrow, but the bankers will not meet with the government representatives until the 12th, when they will be ready in case their advice is needed.

The bank is to "conduct its affairs with a view to facilitating execution of the plan," in the language of the bank statutes, and is to "observe the provisions of the plan in the administration of the operations of the bank."

A large part of the work at the conference of the bank committee will be concerned with subscription of the bank's stock and the election of the board of directors. Capital stock of the bank is fixed at 500,000,000 Swiss francs (about $96,896,500) and is divided into 200,000 shares, of which 112,000 must be subscribed before the bank begins business.

With Mr. Traylor will be Jackson E. Reynolds, president of the First National Bank of New York, America's other member on the committee. Both were mentioned at one time for the position of president of the new institution.

Mr. Reynolds and Mr. Traylor, who were the American advisers in drawing up the trust agreement and plans for the Bank for International Settlements, will sail on the Berengaria Saturday morning, it was learned yesterday.

It is believed that the work of setting up the bank has now reached a sufficiently advanced stage so that the actual machinery can be ready for operation within two or three months. Some further delay after that period may be necessary, due to the fact that approval of the governments involved in the work of the experts must be obtained before the bank can begin business.

It is anticipated that one of the first operations undertaken by the institution will be the placing of a block of reparations bonds.

The greater part of these bonds will, in the opinion of bankers here, be taken in France, but a small portion is expected to be offered in this market this Spring, largely for the purpose of putting the reparations plan "on record." Similar offerings will be made in other world markets.

Sentiment in France is known to favor the selection of an American for the chairmanship of the bank, but informed bankers here doubt whether either Mr. Reynolds or Mr. Traylor would care to leave their present duties to undertake the job.

SNOWDEN CONFIDENT ON LEAVING FOR HAGUE

British Minister Expects Young Plan and World Bank to Be Adopted at Parley.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, left tonight for The Hague confident that the Young plan would be approved and the Bank for International Settlements brought into being by the second reparation conference, which opens tomorrow. With him were William Graham, president of the Board of Trade, and Sir Granville Ryrie, Australian High Commissioner in London, who will represent Australia.

Sir Maurice Hankey, secretary of the general conference, is already there.

"I do not think that this time our work will be as arduous as before," Mr. Snowden said, before his train pulled out. "The preparation has been much more thorough. The various committees have got through an immense amount of work, and it is left for the delegates to fit together the loose ends. Among the suggestions to be considered are ratification of the Young plan, the international bank scheme and non-German reparations.

"But I don't expect that we shall be nearly so busy as before. The international bank question is a highly complicated matter, but I think it will be adopted."

HOOVER TO BE HOST TO NAVAL DELEGATES

Entire Party Will Breakfast at White House Before It Leaves for London.

NOT TO PASS THROUGH HERE

Delegation Will Board Ship Thursday in Hoboken Without Crossing the Hudson River.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—President Hoover will entertain the American delegates to the London Naval Conference and the technical advisers at breakfast next Tuesday morning.

This will be the last and only meeting of the President with the entire American representation, although he has talked informally a number of times with Secretary Stimson, Ambassador Morrow, Senator Reed and others. It was stated at the White House that Mr. Hoover would adhere to his custom of early breakfasts and entertain his guests at 8:15 A. M.

In the hope of being able to have some quiet week-ends away from the rush of work at the conference, which opens this month, Secretary Stimson has leased Stanmore, a country estate ten miles from London, near Harrow.

Headquarters at the Ritz.

Mr. Stimson will make his headquarters during the conference at the Ritz Hotel in London, where the rest of the American delegates also will stay and, when the activities of the conference require, will remain there over week-ends as well as on weekdays. It is his hope, however, that the work will permit him to enjoy occasional brief periods of rest, and it is with this in mind he has taken the estate.

When Secretary Stimson first began making plans for attending the naval conference, he gave consideration to leasing a house in London for his own private use, but he subsequently abandoned this in favor of making his headquarters at the Ritz, where he could keep in constant touch with the other delegates and advisers and technical aides in the delegation. His leasing of a country estate for week-end use is a modification of the original plan.

Not to Pass Through New York.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—If the program now set for the departure of the American delegation is adhered to, New York City will have to wait until the delegates return from abroad to catch a glimpse of them.

The whirlwind leave-taking now in prospect would keep the delegates and their party constantly traveling from the time of leaving Washington until they arrive in England. A special train will steam from the capital at 9 A. M. next Thursday with the entire party, from Secretary Stimson down, aboard. Arriving at the Exchange Place station in Jersey City at 1:30 P. M., the group will go immediately by bus to the steamship George Washington at its pier in Hoboken. The time for the ship's departure is set tentatively at 2 P. M., or as soon as all baggage is aboard.

While some of the delegates may succeed in taking time for brief visits to their homes in other cities before leaving, their expectation tonight was to be kept at work here until the last moment.

ADMIRALTY SILENCE STIRS BRITISH PRESS

Setting of Craiser Minimam at 50 Is Held Due to Consideration of Political Possibilities.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Wednesday, Jan. 3.—To the increasing number of difficulties which British naval writers see besetting the five-power naval parley is added, this morning, the complaint that there is no counterpart here to that process of "indoctrination" as to naval affairs "officially encouraged, if not officially inspired, which is going on abroad," as The Daily Telegraph's correspondent puts it.

The fact is the British Admiralty is preserving its tradition of "the silent service" and so far has not had a word to say on what it considers to be the safety mark as regards cruiser requirements. The impression prevailing here, that the United States will insist on obtaining the demand of the Navy Board for twenty-one 10,000-ton cruisers armed with eight-inch guns as against fifteen for Britain, has recalled to naval writers that in the recent preliminary negotiations with Washington Prime Minister MacDonald suggested a minimum of fifty cruisers for the British Navy and has since frequently intimated the figure was approved by the Board of Admiralty. It is now asked "when?" And The Daily Telegraph, in an editorial, suggests it is "not conceivable that the present sea lords have given approval to so startling a reduction of cruiser strength on the merits solely of the naval situation as it at present stands."

The editorial adds:

"Until Mr. McDonald entered the discussions no such minimum as fifty cruisers for the British Navy had ever been considered or even mentioned. In 1923-1924 the figure fixed officially was seventy-two, and this was less by eight than that which the Admiralty laid down as the irreducible minimum compatible with safety. And it is especially important to note that when the Admiralty fixed the figure at eighty, the strength of the United States Navy did not enter their calculations."

The Telegraph believes the Board of the Admiralty were invited to consider the situation in the light of political possibilities of an obscure ntaure and was "manoeuvred into a peculiar position so that it can be quoted by Mr. MacDonald as having endorsed a standard of cruiser strength which is demonstrably below the safety mark when tested by the existing naval situation."

After a further review of "disquieting" facts, The Telegraph declares, "There is room for apprehension that the government is about to enter the conference in a mood for reckless sacrifice and that Parliament may be faced with a naval agreement which ought never to have been made."

The naval expert of the Liberal Daily News also refers to the cruiser question and says:

"The retention of a British fleet adequate to the safety of the Empire—which is Britain's only hard and fast standpoint—is not incompatible with the idea of parity as advanced by the United States, but it is difficult to reconcile parity with the reported American claim to preponderance in 10,000-ton cruisers armed with 8-inch guns, especially since the United States Navy includes more than double the British force of destroyers and submarines."

REPUBLICANS OPEN FIRE ON ROOSEVELT

By W. A. WARN.

ion any State official filling the Sing Sing cells with human beings would by guilty of murder.

"Even if the Commissioner of Correction had suggested our using those cells," the Governor said, "I would not have agreed, for the very good reason that the State abandoned them over a year ago because they were tubercular deathtraps.

Debate Filled With Bitterness.

One would have to go back as far as the Sulzer administration to find a Legislative attack on an administration paralleling in bitterness the attacks that were made today. Even when relations between the Democratic Governor and the Republican Legislature were strained to the breaking point during the three most recent administrations of Governor Smith, no onslaught equaling in bitterness the one of today was ever staged in the Legislative halls.

Some one suggested to the Governor this afternoon that what had occurred might be the opening volley in the Governorship campaign. Governor Roosevelt, who gave every evidence of laboring under a sense of injustice, answered with unsmiling face that he was not prepared to discuss politics while the Legislature was in session.

While the Governor's special messag today was the signal for the shooting to begin in both Houses, the spark that set off the explosive was actually contained in his annual message, which he read at a joint session of the Senate and assembly yesterday.

Something he had said there in connection with the prison situation about "false economy of previous Legislatures" was interpreted as an attack on the Republican majority in the present Legislature and an attempt to fasten on it responsibility for recent prison outbreaks.

Another suggestion that "the meshes of the banking law had been woven so loosely" that it was inadequate in dealing with persons guilty of fraudulent administration of the funds of depositors was also taken up by the Republicans as an attempt to shift from the recent Democratic head of the State Banking Department and to the Republican Legislature the blame for the City Trust Company frauds.

Calls Prison System Antiquated.

The Governor, in his special message of today, pronounced the State's prison system "antiquated" and its penal law in "the experimental stage." He declared that, in the addition to emergencies which should and could be met at once, there must be a study of the prison situation preliminary to the reform going more deeply, to the roots of the evil.

An appropriation of $355,000 was demanded in the message for the establishment immediately of five prison cantonments to relieve congestion at the State prisons. Appropriations also were asked to cover salaries for eighty-one additional prison guards from Feb. 1 to June 30, the end of the fiscal year. These guards would be in addition to the new corps of prison guards to be established along State constabulary lines. The Governor expects to deal with the latter proposal in a special message to be submitted to the Senate and Assembly on Monday night.

The message also recommended appropriations of $145,683 for salaries for additional bank examiners and of $100,000 for counsel fees to protect the State's rights under its Port authority treaty with New Jersey and in the lighterage controversy with that neighboring State.

In the Senate Mr. Knight took the floor immediately after the message had been read by the clerk. He said the Republican majority was willing to cooperate with the Governor in the matters covered by his message and then sailed into the Roosevelt Administration for the "break-down" of the three departments to which reference has already been made.

"We realize, however," he said, "that in cooperating we will be closing the barn door after the horse has been stolen.

Knight Points to Overcrowding.

"We doubt that there is any parallel to the present situation in the State's history. The bank failures of last Winter and Spring, the prison riots and the unpardonable delays in the building program, attended by shocking overcrowding in our State institutions—all are the result of a break-down in the administration of these important Executive departments.

"We doubt that the public realizes that at the time of the recent outbreak at Auburn prison more than 300 convicts were sleeping in the corridors and wherever six feet of room could be found for them, while 600 cells larger than those at Auburn, and more recently constructed, were vacant at Sing Sing Prison."

Senator Knight said that the building plans to provide additional cells at Auburn had been agreed upon as early as December, 1927. The contract, he said, was not let until nineteen months later, despite the urgency of the work. Construction, he declared, has not even begun.

He noted that the last Legislature had voted in the vicinity of $1,000,000 for prison construction purposes, in addition to what the Governor had called for in his budget. The Legislature also, he said, had appropriated for food and clothing for the prisons every cent the Governor had asked for.

"Why didn't the Department of Correction know that the prisoners were being underfed before the riots occurred?" the Senate leader asked.

Bank Failures Recalled.

"Similarly," he went on, "it has taken two disastrous bank failures in New York City to teach the State Banking Department under Democratic administration that a considerable addition to the examining force was necessary. Last year six, and only six, new examiners were requested and six were allowed. Now they discover that what was actually needed was something like fifty additional examiners.

"It is worth recalling, also, that it was not until the press had aroused the public ire that the Governor consented to an investigation of the bank failures, and then he excluded the Republican Attorney General from participation and limited the scope of the investigation more than it should have been limited."

Senator Hewitt, discussing the delay in starting construction work at Auburn, said that as early as 1926 he had discussed plans for extending facilities there with Governor Smith. The plans involved construction of a new cell block to accommodate 680 prisoners.

"On Feb. 17, 1928, Governor Smith signed a bill appropriating $900,000 for the erection of a cell block," Senator Hewitt said. "The contract was not awarded until Aug. 14, 1929, a delay of nearly nineteen months, and work on this cell block has just started after a lapse of nearly two years, notwithstanding the fact that State Architect Sullivan Jones assured us that he would have the plans ready for awarding the contract by the time the money was available."

Downing Speaks for Minority.

"I understood from the statement of the majority program two days ago," he said, "that there would be no partisanships injected into the great non-political welfare matters of the State. This is a poor beginning. I don't know anything about the Banking or Prison Departments or the conditions at Auburn Prison, but I do know that in the same period there were prison riots in many other States and in a Federal penitentiary.

"I don't know the causes of the riot, but in any case not the cause but the remedy is the problem before us now. The best way to seek the remedy is in a spirit of cooperation.

"I hold no brief for the former head of the Banking Department, but no one had reason to be suspicious of him. No one on this side of the House now defends him. He was appointed in line with civil service reform. He was a bank examiner who was recommended for promotion by his predecssor, who has rendered conspicuous service to the people many times. The promotion was certainly not a political move.

"I have no bitterness in this matter and intend to have none. I warn you that whoever puts partisanship into the State's welfare will lose."

Senator George R. Fearon of Onondaga, another Republican, charged the Roosevelt Administration with concealing facts surrounding the riots from the Legislature, incidental to its failure to make public the report of Colonel Chandler, former head of the State constabulary, who was sent by the Governor to investigate the riots at Auburn.

Attacks Prison Policy.

"We are embarking upon a prison-building program which will cost $30,000,000," Senator Fearon said. "Before we go ahead we should have assurance that the prison administration is of the kind that will know how to use the new buildings. New cell blocks alone will not solve the problem."

Senator Fearon said the Legislature ought to be told what was done, if anything, to avoid a new outbreak after the Summer rioting at Auburn. That first outbreak, he said, had shown that there was warrant for action.

"Warden Jennings said that he was sleeping on a volcano," the Senator went on. "All of Central New York knew the danger. The Prison Department should have known."

In the Assembly, Chairman Hutchinson of the Ways and Means Committee led the fight on the Governor and his administration.

"There has been lax administration in both the Department of Correction and the State Banking Department. I might even go so far as to say there has been criminal collusion in the Banking Department," he said.

"As for the prison trouble, we realize that part of the prisons are antiquated, and we have consistently tried to correct that. It seems to me, however, that what we need in the prisons is not more grub, but more guts; but I do not see how it is possible for the Legislature to legislate more guts into the Governor's appointees.

"The implication in the Governor's annual message that over-economy of previous Legislatures was responsible for the evil conditions in our prisons is not true."

Cuvillier Blames Baumes Laws.

Assemblyman Louis A. Cuvillier, New York Democrat, charged the riots up to the severity of the Baumes laws, which had caused the overcrowding, he said.

Minority Leader Peter Hamill rebuked the Republicans for injecting politics into the prison situation.

"Assemblyman Hutchinson insinuates that the Governor has not disclosed the real reason for the prison outbreaks," said Mr. Hamill.

"If Mr. Hutchinson knows the real reason, he should not hesitate to tell it because he is the only man in the State who does know. He admits more prisons are needed, but he doesn't think the Legislature should be blamed for anything.

"If the Republican party is opposed to taking any action to try to correct the present situation, why aren't the leaders courageous enough to come out and say so? I believe the Republican party should be big enough to admit that, largely because of the Baumes laws, the prisons are overcrowded.

"We are not pleading for the prisoners, but we do believe more guards are needed and that at present the guards are underpaid. I feel that eventually, despite the bitter attack you have made on the Governor here today, you will come to the point where you will carry out the Governor's recommendations."

Dunmore Heightens Attack.

Majority Leader Russell G. Dunmore brought the debate to a close with an even more bitter attack on the Governor than had been made by previous Republican speakers.

"If the Governor were a little more fairminded and more on the level with the Legislature, and, I might say, the public, I do not believe we would be criticizing his message today," Mr. Dunmore said. "But until there is more veracity in the way he presents his facts, he must expect criticism.

"It seems strange that it should take three prison riots to demonstrate the fact to the Governor and the Commissioner of Correction that more prison guards are needed and that better food is needed.

"Grave abuses and crimes in the State Banking Department could have been prevented if the department head had properly performed his duties. Last year we had some discussion with the Governor about increasing the number of bank examiners. The Governor decided that only six more examiners were needed, but now that a serious situation has developed he asks for several times that number."

The Governor's Statement.

Governor Roosevelt in his statement this evening said:

"I can see very little use in talking about what occurred or what was promised by the State architect in December, 1927. We are chiefly concerned with what to do in 1930.

"You might be perfectly frank and say that in January, 1928, appropriations and State contracts were way behind. Governor Smith put in a new State architect in February, 1928, if I remember it. In less than two years the new State architect has not only caught up with the old work, but brought all the current work up to date.

"The statement of Senator Knight is unfair when he talks about new buildings at Auburn. He knows just as well as I do that before you can go ahead with a new building on a site occupied by another, in other words, before we can go ahead with the building program of last year, we have to complete one building in order to empty the old building, which has to be torn down. It is a slow process.

"With regard to food and clothing, the Legislature, the Prison Commission, the Governor, the former Governor and the former Legislature have all known that the State was spending 21 cents a day per prisoner and had done so for years. If any one is to blame, it is the Legislature just as much as anybody else. Today we are asking for better food and better clothing for the prisoners. Everybody is to blame in the past, but we are dealing with the future, not the past.

"The same thing applies to the banking situation. They have had their banking committees in the Legislature, we have had superintendents of banks, but nobody thought the inspection was inadequate until we had the failure of the City Trust Company.

"The superintendent was a civil service man who had made an excellent record and his appointment as Banking Superintendent was apparently for merit. He went wrong. The Acting Governor appointed a Moreland act commissioner, who made findings; the Governor appointed a special Supreme Court trial judge and special grand jury, they had indictments. They were followed by prosecutions and defendants were found guilty. That is all there is to the story.

"It has come out that we need a lot more examiners and we are asking for them. Why play politics with them?"

As to $1,000,000 Above His Budget.

Governor Roosevelt was asked regarding the assertion of the Republican lawmakers that they had appropriated about $1,000,000 more for prison construction than the Governor asked for in his budget last year.

He replied that this amount had been "cut out" of the first budget in order to balance it, and restored after the revenues of the State had provided enough funds to meet this expenditure. The fiscal leaders of the Legislature disputed this.

"We appropriated $1,000,000, or nearly that amount, in excess of anything that the Governor had ever requested or suggested in any budget or message submitted to the Legislature," Chairman Hewitt of the Senate Finance Committee said. "The records will show that."

Examination of the record showed that $350,000 had been shifted from the group coming out of current revenues to the group for which money was being appropriated under the $100,000,000 bond issue for permanent improvement, but even with this shift the money became available at the beginning of the present fiscal year.

Appropriations aggregating $300,000 in addition to what the Governor had demanded were made by the Legislature for Auburn, $550,000 for Dannemora, $25,000 for Sing Sing, $39,000 for Matteawan, and sundry other small sums, bringing the total to about $1,000,000.

TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

To the Legislature:

PRISONS.

You are all familiar with the fact that on three occasions this year desperate attempts to escape have been made by some of the prisoners of the State. There are many causes contributing to these outbreaks, but it is worth noting that only a small percentage of the prisoners have taken active part.

The truth is that our prison system is antiquated and that even in our penal laws we are still in the experimental state. This being so, it is incumbent upon us to look at the problem from two points of view:

First, emergency remedies which can be applied today to the existing situation, and secondly, reforms which will go more deeply to the root of the trouble and which should be put into effect only after very careful study.

It is unwise and unjust for any of us to jump to hasty conclusions. Neither those who insist that what they call the coddling of prisoners must cease nor those who object to what they call inhuman and barbarous treatment of prisoners are wholly right.

Overcrowding a Major Factor.

It is clear that the existing overcrowding of our prisoners is one of the major factors in the existing situation. Everybody knows that the old cell blocks are not only insufficient to house the prison population, but that they are also unsanitary to an extent which constitutes a disgrace to our State.

It is, of course, impossible to build new permanent buildings over night and therefore, in order to relieve present conditions, I am asking you to authorize camps which can be built in a month's time and which will accommodate approximately 500 men.

It is proposed that one of these camps be placed at the new Attica Prison and that a part of the grading and other work in connection with the building of the prison can be accomplished by this means.

Other camps would be used for the purpose of carrying on certain highway construction which can be accomplished during the Winter as well as the Summer season. It has been suggested that one camp be placed in the forest preserve and that work be done in cutting necessary fire breaks.

Camps to Be Experimental.

These camps are frankly an experiment, but if successful the system can be made permanent and serve for all time to relieve congestion in the prisons themselves, to afford healthful outdoor exercise for the prisoners, and to carry on necessary public works.

The sum desired for the establishment of these cantonments is $355,000.

A careful survey of the food and clothing situation in our prisons discloses that the cost to the State of feeding its prisoners is approximately only twenty-one cents a day per capita and that this should be increased immediately to the extent of five cents a day per capita. Furthermore, an additional clothing allowance seems to be imperatively needed.

During the recent riots the conduct of the prison guards was excellent, but I am convinced that we need immediately an additional force of guards. I am therefore asking for the authorization of the employment of eighty-one more guards at the various institutions.

Furthermore, I believe that the scale of pay of the prison guards is at the present time too low and I am recommending moderate increases.

All of the above needs are provided for in the special emergency appropriation bill which accompanies this message.

BANK EXAMINATIONS.

Later I shall submit to your honorable bodies a comprehensive report in regard to the Banking Department and the banking law. A special committee of bankers and business men has been giving close study to the situation in addition to the investigation by the committee of the Legislature.

I am informed that these studies, in addition to the definite recommendations of the Superintendent of Banks, show the immediate need for additions to the staff of the Superintendent of Banks, in order that proper inspection and examination may cover the conduct of the various banking institutions of the State for the proper protection of depositors and stockholders.

Therefore, I am asking for an appropriation in the sum of $145,683.34 to cover the immediate needs up to July 1, 1930. It is well to remember that the cost of examinations is reimbursed to the State by the banks.

PORT DEVELOPMENTS.

I regret to report that certain steps have been taken in our sister State of New Jersey which are highly detrimental to the proper development of the Port of New York. These steps seem to be violative of the spirit of the treaty entered into between New York and New Jersey and approved by the Congress.

It is clear, of course, that the treaty was entered into with the splendid purpose of regarding the development of the port as a whole for the benefit of both States, without discrimination one against the other.

Need of Counsel in Port Dispute.

New Jersey has appropriated large sums of money with which to employ prominent counsel and to conduct extensive litigations. I regret that it therefore becomes necessary immediately to secure the benefit of eminent and distinguished counsel to represent the State of New York in these disputes.

Our State should be ready and able to defend the terms and the purpose of the treaty and to protect the interests of the State and of the port as a whole to the fullest extent of the law.

I am therefore asking for an appropriation of $100,000 to cover counsel fees and expenses in the lighterage, inland terminal and other controversies relating to the Port of New York, now pending between the States of New York and New Jersey.

ALBANY OFFICE BUILDING.

The emergency appropriation will also provide for the necessary personal service for the care and upkeep of the State Office Building at Albany, covering the period up to July 1, 1930.

This item should be passed immediately in order to enable the departments of the State to avail themselves as soon as possible of the facilities of this building.

All of the foregoing items are necessary to meet the immediate needs of government, and I request that you pass them as soon as possible.

ROOSEVELT PRESSES BUILDINGS BILLS

EARLY PASSAGE IS ASSURED

Measures for Blind Veterans' Annuities and Codifying Laws Offered by Senator Kennedy.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 2.—Prompt legislation to legalize acts of the defunct office building and sites commission in State building operations involving $12,500,000 expenditure, was requested by Governor Roosevelt in a special message to the Legislature today.

Legislative action was rendered necessary by the decision of the Court of Appeals in the controversy over the executive budget. The court nullified lump sum appropriations by the legislative fiscal committee chairmen.

"In order," the Governor said, "that the building program of the State should not be delayed by this decision the various administrative and legislative officers of the State cooperated in devising ways and means to continue construction work until the opening of the Legislature. This work has been progressing at full speed. It is now necessary to pass certain legalizing and ratifying acts. Bills for this purpose are being introduced. I shall submit to your honorable bodies two bills making the necessary appropriations to accompany the legalizing legislation.

"These bills do not make any new appropriations. Their provisions are intended merely to replace those appropriations which were declared inoperative by the courts because of unconstitutional provisions inserted by former Legislatures which insisted on giving legislative officers the administrative duties of segregating and expending them. No new items of expenditure are added, except a very small amount for carrying charges.

"I am sending the necessary emergency messages required by the constitution to pass these various statutes at once. I trust that they will be immediately enacted, so that the vast building program of the State may proceed."

Duplicates of the bills had been introduced under Republican auspices and were referred to the Finance and Ways and Means committees and will probably be passed unanimously next week.

Three veterans' bills were introduced today by Senator Alfred J. Kennedy, Democrat, of Queens. One would provide a $500 life annuity from the State Treasury for blind New York veterans of any war instead of simply the World War, as the law now reads. A second bill would appropriate $5,000 to compile and publish the State laws relating to war veterans, the compilation to be distributed to veterans' organizations and to the general public upon application. The third measure provides $10,000 for the Adjutant General to complete an index of the burial places within the State of men who served in the United States military or naval forces.

A bill to make it a misdemeanor to broadcast false or libelous statements or information was offered by Senator Caleb H. Baumes, Republican, of Orange. It would apply to radio, radiotelegraphy or radiotelephony.

ALBANY DRYS SEEK THE AID OF BORAH

Plan to Get Senator to Speak for Enforcement Bill at Legislative Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 2.—Promising "the battle of the decade" on prohibition, leaders of dry organizations indicated today that they would invite Senator Borah of Idaho, as a champion of the prohibition cause, to lend his support in the pending fight in the Legislature for a State enforcement act.

Whether the invitation has actually been transmitted to the Senator has not been disclosed. The Rev. O. R. Miller, superintendent of the New York State Civic League, admitted, however, that prominent drys had given consideration to the proposal to ask the Senator's aid. The plan had been favorably received, he said, and some of the dry spokesmen had prepared to urge the matter upon the Senator at Washington.

The strategy of the prohibition workers would be to throw united support behind a bill planned for introduction by Assemblyman Edmund B. Jenks, Republican, of Broome, and then bring Senator Borah to lead an array of speakers in behalf of the measure before the Codes Committee at a public hearing.

Relying on the probability that a new personnel in the committee this year will recommend the bill favorably, the dry leaders would rush the measure out to the floor of the Assembly, expecting the prestige of Senator Borah and the momentum of the committee report to help it to passage.

"We will stage the liveliest fight in ten years," Dr. Miller said. "The professional wet organization is here in Albany in force. They have taken a suite in the Standard Oil Building, with stenographers, clerks and lobbyists. They will have the active leadership of former Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., State president of the Association Opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment, but that means nothing to us. We do not fear the politically dead."

The wets have already announced that they will be more active than ever, and the renting of the office to which Dr. Miller referred is taken as an indication of their preparations. It is quite probable that Senator Wadsworth and other anti-prohibition leaders will join personally in the fray if Senator Borah should appear.

Assemblyman Jenks said today that he intended to write his own enforcement bill, although he was accepting suggestions from the dry organizations. Dr. Miller said such a procedure was satisfactory to all concerned.

Outside support for the legislative dry leader will be increased next week with the appearance of Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin, State president of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, and Dr. S. E. Nicholson, acting superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. Pressure will be brought to bear upon every member of the Legislature.

Despite the preparations of the drys, no great amount of additional strength among their sympathizers in the Legislature is seen. The Senate remains, as last year, with a preponderance of votes clearly on the side of the wets. There has been no change in membership that would change the line-up. Last year an enforcement act was not even introduced in the upper house.

In the Assembly elections last Fall one pronounced wet and one dry were eliminated, and there appeared to be no great overturn of sentiment. The Assembly wets defeated the enforcement act by a narrow margin last year.

ASSAIL ROOSEVELT PLANS.

Socialists Here Call for Fixing of Rates on Water Power.

The adoption of Governor Roosevelt's water power proposals would create a situation as muddled as the transit situation in New York City, according to a statement issued yesterday by the Socialist party at its headquarters, 7 East Fifteenth Street, attacking the Governor's power plans.

The statement said the Governor's financing plan was vague and that "the conflicting conclusions to which its meaning will give rise must help continue the deadlock between the Governor and the Republican Legislature."

"No relief will come to the consumers unless the State, through a central agency in cooperation with the municipalities or power districts, will directly fix rates and sell electricity to the consumers at cost," the Socialists declared.

The statement was prepared by Norman Thomas and Louis Waldman, co-chairmen of the Socialist party's public affairs committee.

PROMOTED IN TAX BUREAU.

J. J. Buckley Jr. Is Made Appraisal Attorney Here.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Jan. 2.—John J. Buckley Jr., assistant appraiser in the State Transfer Tax Bureau in New York City, has been advanced to the post of appraisal attorney in the same office, Thomas M. Lynch, president of the State Tax Commission, announced today.

Mr. Buckley succeeds William F. Slevin, who was elected municipal court judge at the last election. John J. Fay has been appointed to the post left vacant by Mr. Buckley's promotion.

Mr. Buckley is a graduate of the College of the City of New York and of the Fordham Law School.

Congress Committee Decides to Authorize Demand on Members to Quit Legislatures.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LAHORE, India, Jan. 2.—The real danger which the government of India must now tackle lies not so much in the empty declaration for independence and the boycott of the assemblies ordered by the Nationalists, but in the direct and increasing suggestion of the use of violence. Mr. Gandhi may make deprecatory gestures, but there remain the thinly veiled threats of Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru's own speech, the references by Dr. Kitchlew to the purity and nobility of political murders and the truculent attitude of the young "Congress volunteers."

Shout War Cry in Court.

Practically half the Nationalist delegates in open session saw nothing to disapprove of in the bomb attempt on the lives of the Viceroy and Lady Irwin. All these symptoms point to the fact that whatever latitude may be given to the expression of political opinion—often amounting to sedition—there is an immediate need of reinforcing the police.

Your correspondent witnessed the attitude of the persons accused of the murder of a police officer during their trial here this morning. The prisoners on entering court first sang a song about their willingness to sacrifice their heads to a "murderous" government and then chanted their war cry, "Up with revolution. Up with the proletariat. Down with imperialism." All this happened in open court while the Indian magistrate patiently looked over his horn-rimmed spectacles and even allowed the opening chorus to be encored before starting the trial.

Shares Slump at Bombay.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BOMBAY, India, Jan. 2.—The Stock Exchange opened today after the holidays with a marked slump in the chief industrial shares, which is attributed to a lack of confidence caused by the political situation.

Open Independence Drive.

LAHORE, Jan. 2 (AP).—The new working committee of the India Nationalist Congress today decided to authorize the president of the congress to call upon all native congressmen in the various Legislatures to resign immediately.

The action will be the first step in the move to gain independence for India through non-cooperation with the British governmental machinery.

The committee also fixed Jan. 26 as the date for a nation-wide demonstration in support of the congress's new creed, which was defined as "puran swaraj," or "complete independence."

A small deputation of the working committee considered it desirable to wait before giving such definite shape to the policy of civil disobedience, so as to see whether any future repressive action of the government could be made an issue for civil disobedience on an individual or mass scale.

Gandhi Plans Deplored.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (AP).—London newspapers, which during the past week have featured political news from India, this morning devoted their leading editorials to the results of the Nationalist Congress held at Lahore, and to the future possibilities.

The Daily Herald, government organ, says that the Indians' demand for complete independence instead of dominion status is "an academic change involving no immediate consequence." The paper appeals to Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader, to cooperate with the British Government and affirms that nothing can be achieved by a mere "we-will-not-play" attitude.

The Conservative newspapers generally deplore the activities of Mr. Gandhi and his followers.

SPAIN WILL OFFER REFUGE TO JEWS

New York Editor Submits Plan to Absorb Immigration Invited by Premier.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Jan. 2.—Four hundred and forty years after Ferdinand and Isabella expelled the Jews from Spain Premier Primo de Rivera is ready to throw open the gates to Jewish immigration. The Premier is discussing details of plans with government officials and leaders of a small band of Jewry here for distribution of the Jews from Eastern Europe over the kingdom.

A plan was submitted this evening by Z. H. Rubenstein, city editor of The Jewish Day of New York. The details of the plan were not made public. The project was started soon after the Palestine disturbances.

The poor conditions in Eastern Europe, where Jews are not permitted to practice their religion, and the fact that only 15,000 Jews per year are admitted to the United States, make a place for them to spread out desirable, and Spain with its few Jews is a suitable place.

In 1492 Ferdinand and Isabella caused to be expelled the people who had lived in Spain from the third century. Many went to what is now French Morocco, where they still speak an antiquated Spanish. Old synagogues still are encountered in all parts of Spain.

One hundred years ago a law was incorporated in the Spanish Constitution stating that all religions may have a seat here, but some may not demonstrate publicly. Nevertheless, it is permitted to practice the precepts of any religion without political oppression.

The Jews never returned to Spain in any numbers. Don Isaac Abrabanel, King Ferdinand's Finance Minister, on leaving, said, "No Jew will ever set foot in Spain again." Besides, the edict of expulsion was lifted so quietly that few know of it even now.

The plan is to bring the small business man to such towns as Valencia, Cadiz and Seville. Some Jews who have accepted Catholicism are living in Spain now.

shaved since we left Little America. Norman looks like an Italian bandit, Eddie like a Yankee farmer from far back in the woods, Mike a recent escape from Sing Sing, Obie a thug from any place, Freddy a Boy Scout trying to grow a beard, and I am said to resemble the dog, Rags. Don't think you would be proud to own us as members of the expedition, but we are bringing back records which I hope you will be proud of.

"Obie, Mike and I have roughly charted 150 miles of Queen Maud range. We have demonstrated that there is no Carmen Land, but that the range extends eastward beyond 140th meridian and therefore that the possibility of Ross and Weddell Seas being connected demands attention again.

Climbed Mountain for 6,000 Feet.

"I have been able to make many glaciological studies, and my geological studies will demonstrate that the great mountain ranges which take their rise far away on western side of Ross Sea are continued as major feature of landscape in fairly unbroken fashion certainly as far as 140th meridian.

"Capping Mount Nansen I did find sandstone with layer of highly carbonaceous material. This I am sure is beacon sandstone. Had to climb up 6,000 feet in part over steep badly crevassed glacier to reach these cap rocks on Nansen. From distance had thought they were all volcanic rocks.

"No symphonies I have ever heard, no work of art before which I have stood in awe, ever gave me quite the thrill that I had when I reached out after this strenuous climb and picked up rock to find it sandstone. Here was what I had come all way to Antarctic to find.

"Eddie, Mike and Freddy who were with me will tell you that I even forgot to cuss.

"Every one is happy, for we are heading back to you with the feeling that we have done all we set out to do and perhaps a little more. In a splendor and beauty beyond realm of science the mountains and glaciers have exceeded our highest hopes, and we are all loath to leave them and the spell they have cast over us."

EXPERT ACCLAIMS ANTARCTIC COAL FIND

Prof. Taylor of Chicago Says Goald Report Indicates Greater Extent of Field.

By PROF. GRIFFITH TAYLOR of the University of Chicago, Formerly Senior Geologist and Leader of Western Parties in British Antarctic Expedition, 1910-1913.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—The first explorations in the area near the Ross Sea in Antarctica by the British sailor, Sir James Clark Ross, in 1841 seemed to indicate that the great mountains seen by him were built up of eruptive rocks.

This great range extends from Cape Adare in Lt. 71 degrees S. to the end of the Queen Maud Range in Lat. 88 degrees S. This highland region seems to be one of the most remarkable horsts in the world and has apparently originated somewhat as follows:

Probably in late Tertiary times, some 10,000,000 years ago, perhaps, crustal movements became general throughout the world. Where the crust was weak it yeilded to form wave-like ridges. Of this type are the European Alps and many other mountain ranges.

Elsewhere, however, the crust cracked along definite more or less vertical planes of weakness. Part sank down, possibly, but rectangular blocks for the most part were squeezed outward and upward, as the earth's surface shrank slightly.

These rectangular blocks thus elevated above the old surface are called horsts. They are very common along the eastern coast of Australia and are the dominant feature in the mountains bordering the Ross Sea and Ross Ice Shelf on the west.

Gould's Report on Mount Nansen.

Dr. Lawrence Gould, the adventurous and experienced geologist with Admiral Byrd, has sledged southward from Little America until he has reached the foot of this great horst block at Mount Betty and Mount Fridtjof Nansen. (There is a better known Mount Nansen in the same horst, but in Lat. 75 degrees S.)

His brief reports are of the greatest interest, if only because Amundsen brought back such meagre data of the geology of the Queen Maud Range.

In the diagrammatic view [in an adjacent column] I have tried to indicate the two most remarkable scientific results just recently recorded by Admiral Byrd and Dr. Gould. They are the discovery of "highly carbonaceous material capping Mount Nansen" and the fact that "hundreds of miles of Carmen Land will have to be taken off the maps."

Discoveries of Earlier Explorers.

In 1908 Ferrar with Scott's expedition examined yellow sandstones at the head of the Ferrar and Taylor Glaciers in the horst west of Mount Erebus. These first sedimentary rocks he called the Beacon Sandstones.

He found no well-preserved fossils, nor did my party discover such in our further explorations in 1911 in the adjacent district. But in 1909 Shackleton brought back the account of seven thin seams of coal which Wild and he had seen at the head of the Boardmore Glacier [near B on the diagram].

In February, 1912, Captain Scott, on his return from the Pole, made almost his sole halt at this spot under Mount Darwin. The fossil ferns collected by Wilson were found later alongside their bodies, after they had died of starvation, some 120 miles south of Mount Erebus.

Meanwhile Priestley had discovered fossil tree stems a little north of the Larsen Glacier [D in diagram]—which seem, however, to be of rather later date than the Permian ferns of the Boardmore. About the same time (late in 1911) my own party obtained coal at the head of the Mackay Glacier at the locality labeled C on the diagram.

Wider Coal Field in Prospect.

Dr. Gould tells us that Mount Nansen—which lies between the Liv Glacier [up which Admiral Byrd flew] and the Axel Heiberg Glacier [down which he returned]—consists of this same Beacon sandstone and is capped by carbonaceous material. There is little doubt, therefore, that he has found another outcrop of coaly material akin to that of Mount Darwin and Mount Suess [in the MacKay Glacier].

Curiously enough, both these more southern localities lie close to Lat. 85 degrees S. and we do not yet know which is nearer the Pole. Dr. Gould's discovery greatly increases the possible extent of this Antarctic coal field.

All these beds appear to be, locally, nearly horizontal. Dr. Gould describes his find at about 3,000 feet [possibly this should be 3,000 meters, for Mount Nansen is said to be some 4,000 meters high]. At Mount Darwin the coal is about 6,000 feet above sea level. At Mount Suess it was about 2,000 feet high.

Now comes in the interest of the horst structure. If this great coal-bearing block of crust has been squeezed up between great earth cracks, as I have already indicated, then it seems likely that similar coal-bearing deposits will occur under the huge western ice plateau.

This latter portion of the crust, although elevated considerably above the sea, has not risen to such heights as the horst. Some of the mountains in the horst are over 15,000 feet, while the highest part of the plateau, near the Pole, is 10,500 feet.

Theory of Coal Under Ice-Cap.

Sir Edgeworth David, who accompanied Shackleton and reached the magnetic pole via the Larsen Glacier, is of the opinion that one of the world's largest coal fields may lie under the thousands of feet of the ice on the Ice Plateau.

It is, of course, impossible to estimate the area of this hypothetical coal field. But the distance between the coal outcrops on the Mackay Glacier [at C on the diagram] and on Mount Nansen [at A] is 560 miles. I have ventured to add the line XY on the side of the diagram, which will indicate very roughly where the coal may be expected to lie under the great ice-cap of the plateau.

David thinks this coal field may cover 100,000 square miles, but all must agree that it is very inaccessible, while the coal so far discovered is of poor quality. However, nothing can detract from the interest in these discoveries of coal near the icy poles. It is to be hoped that Dr. Gould can find fossils in his interesting carbonaceous material.

A few words may be written on the other discovery announced by Admiral Byrd, for it is of equal scientific interest. In 1914 I published a hypothetical map of Antarctica, suggesting that the great horst extended toward the Weddell Sea, and that low ice connected the latter with the Ross Sea.

Such an idea had been discussed before, but almost immediately came Amundsen's announcement of a range of mountains called Carmen Land, which seemed to branch at an angle from the horst block and thus to cut off the great Ross Ice Shelf to the southeast. One felt that such an oblique range, "butting" into a horst, was not quite usual, but there the matter rests.

If the mountains of Carmen Land are to be removed from the map, we shall have the old problem: "Is there a low belt between East and West Antarctica?" revived as one of the great geographical questions of the day.

FRANCE ANNOUNCES 1929 TRADE DEFICIT

EXCESS ROSE IN NOVEMBER

Jumped to $20,840,000 After Having Been Steadily Cut—Tourist Trade Seeks to Aid Recovery.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—An announcement from Pierre Flandin, Minister of Commerce, that the first eleven months of 1929 showed a deficit in France's trade balance of 7,529,000,000 francs (about $301,160,000) comes at a time when all the economic forces of the country which have to do with the tourist and his life and activities are concentrated on making remedial plans to overcome the marked falling off in this source of revenue.

In these plans the government is playing its part and by making a $70,000,000 reduction in taxes has helped in a limited way to advance the aims of the tourist trade. Hotel proprietors and shop and restaurant owners would like the government to go much further and abolish among other things the present de luxe taxes, which in the case of certain of the most expensive hotels run as high as 17 per cent a week, but it will probably take some time before the tourist trade can expect anything but a reduction in these de luxe levies.

What the tourist people are concentrating on is propaganda. Recent conferences of leaders in the trade brought out criticism to the effect that France has depended too long upon the undoubted beauties and charms of the country for her tourist business. Meanwhile Germany, with characteristic efficiency, it was pointed out, was spending large sums to attract the American and other foreign tourists to her cities and countryside.

Other Continental countries are doing the same thing, and to combat this the French will probably spend more in the next year than ever before in the history of their tourist business. Imposing headquarters for the whole tourist trade, to be called the French Tourist House, will be erected on the Champs Elysées and a mighty effort is to be made to make good last year's deficit and attract increased numbers of visitors.

While tourist expenditures only figure indirectly in the national export and import statement, the marked falling off in revenues from visitors last year nevertheless figures prominently in the eleven months' trade deficit.

Despite its apparent size, however, the deficit is not as bad as it looks, for the steady improvement in the French export business brought the October excess of imports over exports down to $5,200,000.

The totals for the eleventh month, however, are not nearly as encouraging, imports being $164,000,000, or an increase of $2,280,000 over October. The November deficit of $20,840,000 indicates a general slowing up of the country's export trade, and this situation is expected to continue until June, when the best period of the year usually begins.

KING APPROVES PLAN OF PRIMO DE RIVERA

Proposal Permits Elections in February to Determine Directories of Provinces.

PERMANENT PLAN AWAITED

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MADRID, Jan. 2.—Premier Primo de Rivera's program for a gradual return of the Spanish Government normalcy was announced today after a conference with King Alfonso. It provides for elections in February of provincial directorates of the Patriotic Union, the Dictator's political organization, and later, some time between March and June, the election of Municipal Councils and provincial deputations.

Only 25 per cent of the present councils will be elected. General Primo de Rivera's expressed intention is to test the opinion of elements not affiliated with the government and, by keeping three quarters of the members in control of the government, avoid danger if the election is adverse. In June a further program will be announced.

Primo de Rivera characterized the talk of a crisis as untrue, saying: "I have presented my program for a change to the King, he agreeing completely."

Whether the election of the Patriotic Union will be general or among members is not stated, but Premier Primo de Rivera wishes an organization capable of assuring fair play in elections, and, as many old politicians are now members, the union must assure the inclusion of favorable elements only.

This plan is exactly as forecast, and in event of defeat the government would not be expected to follow its plan of complete change promised in June.

El Sol, a Liberal daily, says:

"The Conservatives, nobility, the Church and other groups are against the government."

No doubt some of each will make the road designated difficult. Talk of General Primo de Rivera's resignation so far is characterized by high government officials and the Opposition as nonsense.

Existence of Crisis Denied.

MADRID, Jan. 2 (AP).—The Premier denied reports that he had resigned or that a political crisis was impending.

Speaking to a group of newspaper men who interviewed him, the Spanish Premier said: "The people believed in a crisis which never existed. Neither the King nor the government ever created such a crisis. The only thing that occurred was that I submitted to the King a political plan which calls for the reorganization of the Patriotic Union, of which I have previously spoken."

Statendam and Franconia in Crash.

HAVANA, Jan. 2 (AP).—The liners Statendam of the Holland-America Line and Franconia of the Cunard Line were slightly damaged here last night when the Statendam swung on her bow moorings while docking and crashed into the Cunarder. An investigation is being made by insurance agents and docks officials.

HUMBERT DELUGED WITH WEDDING GIFTS

WIDE AMNESTY ORDERED

King Proclaims Measure Affecting 400,000—Total of 6,000 Prisoners Will Be Freed.

By ARNALDO CORTESI.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Jan. 2.—Although Crown Prince Humbert has asked all Italians not to send him presents on the occasion of his wedding next week to Princess Marie José of Belgium but to dedicate the money to charitable purposes gifts of all sorts continue to pour into the royal palace.

They range all the way from diadems with diamonds and other precious stones, intended for his bride and sent by some of the richest families in the country, to sausages and hams sent by humble peasants who would thus contribute to the success of the wedding dinner.

Gets Many Letters From Children.

The Prince's popularity seems to be great, especially among Italian children. Hundreds of letters written in scrawling, almost illegible, hands and often accompanied by childish gifts reach him every day. Today he received a cloth pouch containing 300 lire, mostly in very small coins, accompanied by a letter lavishly decorated with smudges and plentifully supplied with errors in spelling. The letter, which is typical of many, said:

"Dear Prince:

"Mother told me you are very good and love children very much and every one is making you presents because you are marrying a beautiful and good princess. I wanted to send you this. Mother gave me this because I took my medicine, but Mother told me you now no longer play with toys but prefer to have money for poor, sick children.

"I'm therefore sending you my money box and those of my brother and my cousin. They don't write you because they are smaller than I am. If you are pleased with my gift I'll tell all the children to do the same, so you can build a big house for children who must take medicine.

"We all love you very much and send many kisses to you and your princess."

The writer was 7 years old. He received from the Prince a beautiful box of chocolates, accompanied by a letter. The child's money was given by the Prince to a children's hospital.

King Amnesties Many Prisoners.

ROME, Jan. 2 (AP).—King Victor Emmanuel today granted a royal amnesty in celebration of the marriage of Crown Prince Humbert and Princess Marie José of Belgium to take place next week. About 400,000 persons will benefit by it, and nearly 6,000 prisoners will be set free.

Prisoners serving sentences of a year or less for civil and military offenses will be liberated. Those imprisoned for failure to pay fines are included in the amnesty.

In the case of sentences for more than a year one year is remitted for civilians and two years for soldiers. Punishments inflicted on soldiers for violations of discipline are also lifted, except in the case of "unworthy elements."

Criminals with bad records and criminals considered especially dangerous are excluded from the benefits of the amnesty.

WOULD REPAY HOOVER VISIT

Brazilian Presidential Candidates Consider Trip After Election.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAO PAULO, Brazil, Jan. 2.—The United States will probably be visited about June by the successor to President Washington Luis, as Getulio Vargas, the Liberal candidate, has announced at Rio de Janeiro that if he is elected he will repay President Hoover's visit to Brazil last year.

At the same time the Liberal aspirant stated a wish to study the possibilities of widening Brazilian-American relations and endeavor to interest more capital in the development of Brazilian resources.

While no statement has yet been made authoritatively, it is understood that Julius Prestes, Republican and President Washington Luis's choice for the Presidency, is contemplating a similar trip for the same reasons.

BUBONIC PLAGUE KILLS 56 ARABS IN TUNIS CITY

TUNIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—The terrible bubonic plague, which is often fatal in twenty-four hours, has broken out among Arabs in the native quarter of the city of Tunis. Fifty-six persons have died from it and 600 have been segregated. All the victims were Arabs.

The authorities believe that they have prevented the spread of the plague by taking drastic measures. Many houses have been evacuated and their dwellers isolated in the pest houses. Vaccination has been enforced in all areas suspected of contamination.

The European quarter has not been affected by the plague and an official statement today said that no new cases had developed in the native quarter during the last two days.

DOG TEAMS SEEK EIELSON ON SHORE

Nanuk Party Goes to Siberian Reindeer Camps Which Had Clue of Missing Airman.

CANADIAN PLANE CRACKS UP

By MARION SWENSON,
Daughter of Captain Olaf Swenson of the Ice-Bound Trading Ship Nanuk.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ABOARD MOTORSHIP NANUK, OFF NORTH CAPE, Siberia, Jan. 2.—We are looking forward with keen interest to the arrival of the planes of the Aviation Corporation's Eielson rescue expedition. We understand the Canadians will be at Nome today or tomorrow and then come on to the Nanuk as soon as weather conditions will permit.

We are hopeful of learning more in a few days, when the Nanuk's dog teams return from reindeer camps in the vicinity of which Eielson's plane was heard on Nov. 9. [The camps are several miles inland in the hills behind North Cape.]

The teams have been held up several days because there was no dog feed, but yesterday natives killed two seals in an open stretch of water seven miles off North Cape. That meant meat for the dogs, and the men and team accordingly got away yesterday.

Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam have thoroughly covered the area between North Cape and the Omwan River bf plane, but they could not reach the deer camps without the use of the dogs. Today Crosson was to search the lagoons and the foothills between the Omwan and Cape Vankarem.

We are anxiously awaiting the longer days. Three to five minutes' difference is noticeable now, and yesterday the sun was visible from an altitude of 5,000 feet. [The sun appears above the horizon at sea level at the latitude of North Cape about Jan. 18.]

Siberian Trapper Saw Plane.

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 2 (AP).—Wireless messages from Marion Swenson, Seattle high school girl, marooned with her father, Olaf Swenson, on the Nanuk, said Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam had thoroughly covered the area by plane within cruising radius of the vessel, but had been unable to land near the deer camps to interview the herders.

"The information originating here has to be sent out by our wireless or that of the Russian trading ship Stavropol, frozen in about two miles from us," Miss Swenson radioed. "The only information we have had of Eielson or Borland, who have been missing since attempting to reach us Nov. 9, has been from a trapper about seventy miles east of here and a native about sixty miles east.

"The trapper said he saw the plane circle his hut and then fly westward. The native did not see it, but reported that it was flying so low and the noise of the motor was so loud that it frightened his dog team."

Crash After Take-Off at Fairbanks.

Special to The New York Times.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Jan. 2.—The first flight of the Canadian pilots in Alaska on the Eielson relief expedition ended today in a crack-up. A Fairchild plane piloted by Gifford Swartman, one of the three craft the aviation corporation sent to aid in the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, crashed in making a forced landing in a small slough after the engine stopped.

The accident happened as Swartman and Captain T. M. (Pat) Reid were taking off for Nulato, the first stop on the journey to Nome. No one was injured, but the accident likely will mean further delay in reaching Teller, the last point in Alaska where the fliers land before taking off over Bering Strait for the motorship Nanuk at North Cape.

Swartman's plane, christened the Chicago, with Sam McCauley as mechanic, fell before the pilot had gained enough altitude to glide to a safe landing. The craft appeared to be badly damaged.

The third plane, the Los Angeles, piloted by Pat Niemenen, was being tested and may get away tomorrow. Major H. C. Deckaid of Farmington, N. Y., will go with Niemenen as far as Nome. At Teller, Niemenen's plane will be taken over by Ed Young.

CHARGE AT DUBLIN NAMED BY GERMANY

Appointment of Consul General Is First Step Toward Creation of Legation There.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

DUBLIN, Jan. 2.—The first step toward establishment of a German legation in Dublin was taken today when Dr. George von Dehn, the German Consul-General, presented his credentials as Chargé d'Affaires to the Foreign Minister, Patrick McGilligan.

Today's ceremony was an echo of a contract a German company obtained—at little financial profit—for the construction of the great Shannon electrification development. Today Herr von Dehn expressed the hope that direct diplomatic relations would give "new impetus to the friendly movement toward closer trade and cultural relations between the two countries."

Herr von Dehn, who was an officer in the German cavalry throughout the war, had served in the London embassy in pre-war days and later opened the first German consulate in England, after the armistice, in Liverpool.

GENERAL FOUND DEAD WITH GUN BESIDE HIM

Gerard Christian Gained Fame in British Army in World War and Other Struggles.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Brig. Gen. Gerard Christian, who served with distinction in South Africa, Mesopotamia and on the Northwest frontier in India, was found dead in his bedroom tonight.

The General's body was lying on the floor with a bullet wound in the head and there was a small pistol by his side. He was 62 and had been in ill-health for some time.

General Christian entered the British Army in 1887. He won the King's and Queen's medals in the South African War. He commanded the Thirty-sixth Brigade in Mesopotamia in the World War and the Fourth Brigade on the Northwest frontier in India. He was at the head of the Sixth Brigade in the Afghan War of 1919.

THINKS WE RESENT ACCENT

Wickham Steed Discusses British Speech Before Language Group.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—H. Wickham Steed, in his presidential address today to the conference of the Modern Language Association, discussed the importance of accent. He said he was one of the fortunate individuals who had been complimented for speaking English without an accent when he visited the United States.

He wondered whether former Premier Baldwin would have been quite as successful in America as Premier Ramsay MacDonald had the British electorate retained the former's services at the last election. Mr. Steed said Mr. Baldwin spoke excellent English with clear enunciation but that there was a trace of the Harrow voice or accent which he feared might have aroused latent resentment in America.

CHINESE REVENUE UP $42,394,000 ON YEAR

Customs Returns for 1929 Were $78,584,000—Increase Put to Tariff Autonomy.

By HALLETT ABEND.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 2.—China's marvelous vitality despite civil wars and famine was again exemplified today with the publication of the customs returns for the last year, showing collections totaling 152,000,000 taels (about $78,584,000). This figure is considered remarkable in view of the frequency of blockades of the rivers in the Hankow and Canton regions in the civil wars. Last year's customs returns show an increase of 82,000,000 taels (about $42,394,000), due to the attainment of tariff autonomy with the raising of the arbitrary 5 per cent scale to well above 20 per cent.

The Ministry of Finance carefully conceals the total collections on the old 5 per cent basis, which were allocated to pay foreign loans, but it is known all the loan services have been covered despite the decline of silver which required 8,000,000 taels more than the previous year. Despite official secrecy, it is reliably learned the collections on the 5 per cent basis were substantially equal to those of 1928, in spite of wars, poverty, excessive imports and premature autonomy.

The removal from Shansi to Chengchow, Honan, of the staff headquarters of General Yen Hsi-shan is believed to be a prelude of important civil war developments, though Nanking explains it is due to Yen's campaign against the radical General Tang Sheng-chi, who has apparently surrounded Hsuchang.

President Chiang Kai-shek issues a lengthy call to Kuomintang members for a nation-wide campaign in revival of China's time-honored virtues and morality. He admits the constructive efforts of the government have not been crowned with success. Chiang characterizes as deplorable "the general moral degradation of the people in the last few years." As a result, he says, the traditional virtues of the nation are fast disappearing, and if not remedied soon, this will cause the extinction of the nation. A lack of the sense of honor and morality is more dangerous than foreign economic and military aggression."

EXPECTS LONG PARLEY ON RIGHTS IN CHINA

Stimson Holds Nanking Is in Line With American View—Does Not Contemplate Representations.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Secretary Stimson believes that the negotiations with China looking to a gradual relinquishment of extraterritorial rights by the United States will cover a considerable period.

The manifesto issued by the Nanking Government last Saturday to the effect that there is no difference of opinion between China and the powers over the principal involved, and its assertion that it is prepared to discuss within a reasonable time any representations made as to the plan now under consideration by the Nationalist Government, according to Mr. Stimson, shows that Nanking is in complete accord with the American Government in the matter.

Mr. Stimson said the manifesto meant that in proposing Jan. 1 as the date for abolition of extraterritoriality China is merely fixing the time for the beginning of the gradual process looking to the relinquishment of the rights, rather than the date for the termination of those rights.

With Nelson T. Johnson, present Assistant Secretary of State in charge of Far Eastern affairs, due to leave here on Monday for his post as Minister to China, at Peking, and Mr. Stimson leaving a few days later for the London Naval Conference, Dr. Wu will conduct his conversations in the next few months with the Far Eastern Division of the State Department.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—Satisfied, after a study of the recent Chinese degree on abolition of extraterritoriality, that the position of the Nanking Government is in line with that taken by the United States, Secretary Stimson said today that no representations to China were contemplated.

MAKES PLEA FOR MUSEUM.

Dr. Ruppel Asks World Collection of Printer's Art for Gutenberg.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MAINZ, Jan. 2.—Dr. Aloys L. Ruppel, director of the Gutenberg Museum, has appealed to printers of the world to lend their help in expanding the Gutenberg Museum into a world museum of the printer's art.

His statement says the International Gutenberg Society, which was founded in 1900, has always had the cooperation of all countries of the world in collecting important material and is confident that its aim will soon be accomplished, as all cultured countries have responded to the appeal and have promised further cooperation.

GEN. WEYGAND HEADS ARMY

MOVIE MAN IS HELD IN PAISLEY TRAGEDY

TWO BROTHERS ARE BURIED

Scottish Town to Mourn Today as Funerals of Forty More Victims Are Held.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 2.—Charles Dorward, manager of the Glen Cinema, was arrested today and charged with culpable homicide in connection with the disaster in which seventy children lost their lives on New Year's Eve. He will appear in court tomorrow.

The arrest came swiftly on the heels of an inspection of the ill-fated movie theatre by a group of experts from London, one the chief inspector of explosives at the Home Office and another the chief officer of the London Fire Department. They intend to prepare a joint report on behalf of the government so that the proper department can take any action necessary.

Meanwhile, two of the little victims of the fire panic were buried today and stricken Paisley was arranging for the funerals of forty more tomorrow. All day a procession of hearses rolled up to the mortuary, where the small white coffins were borne tenderly onto vehicles and driven to sorrowing homes. The funerals will be private at the parents' request, but there will be public services of mourning in all Paisley's churches. In many cases parents who could not afford funeral expenses were helped today by the Municipal Council.

Fourteen of the injured children were so much better today that they were returned to their parents, but twenty-two are still in the hospital, with two in a serious condition.

PAISLEY, Scotland, Jan. 2 (AP).—The first funerals for the victims of the motion picture theatre disaster were those of John and William Pinkerton, brothers aged six and twelve, who were buried today with an impressive public tribute. The crowds lining the route from the Pinkerton house in the working class district of North Paisley to the cemetery were so dense that the police had to be summoned to regulate traffic and enable the funeral party to reach its destination. Representatives of the Town Council attended simple services for the dead children.

Kathleen Pierce, one of the children who survived the disaster and a close friend of the little Pinkertons, said that she saw the older boy escape from the theatre and then run back to look for his younger brother.

"I saw him go back in the crush and try to find him," she told the Pinkerton family.

Business premises and places of amusement will be closed for several hours tomorrow as a sign of general mourning. There will be double or triple funerals in four families. Testimony in the Sheriff's court will not be taken until after the funerals.

Among the numerous messages of condolence which have been pouring in was one from Sir Harry Lauder from Kansas City. It read: "I mourn with you in your tragedy. Let these be days of stout hearts, keep right on to the end of the road."

BELIEVE ANCIENT RUINS ARE THOSE OF SODOM

Excavators Find Objects Indicating Civilization Higher and Earlier Than That of Jericho.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

JERUSALEM, Jan. 2.—Father Mallon of the Jesuit Biblical School of Jerusalem and M. Neuville, the French Vice Consul here, headed the expedition, under the auspices of the Pontifical Biblical Institute, which has excavated ruins in Transjordania believed to be those of the ancient city of Sodom. The archaeologists have been led to believe their discovery of what undoubtedly was a large town somewhat earlier than the time of Abraham must be one of the five famous cities of Pentapolis and most likely Sodom itself.

Several tiers of ruins have been excavated showing the city was destroyed twice. A layer of material found may be what is left of the destroyed Sodom, but this must still be confirmed by research.

The city discovered is about 600 meters (about 1,965 feet) long by 400 meters (about 1,310 feet) wide. The houses are in a fairly good state of preservation with stone foundations and mud walls. From the vast amount of pottery, small animal figures, bone implements and bone jewelry the city is considered as dating from the beginning of the first bronze age. Although no writings have yet been found, it is believed there must have been some already at that period.

Among the important finds was a human head preserved in a pottery jar. Large ditches were discovered, filled with ashes which are believed to have been used as crematoriums.

The theory is held that the inhabitants of the newly discovered city originated in Mesopotamia. All traces lead to the deduction that their civilization existed long before the city of Jericho, and from the pottery implements and other objects found it can be seen this civilization was far higher than that of Jericho.

On account of the rainy season the excavations are held up for the present, but it is expected they will be continued in two months.

MEXICAN CONGRESS INCREASES BUDGET

SILVER MINERS GLOOMY

Several Ask Permission to Cut or Stop Operations Because of Big Drop in Prices.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 2.—The budget committee of Congress has increased the estimate of 1930 expenditures of 293,092,489 pesos (about $146,546,242) submitted by Finance Minister Luis Montes de Oca to 293,773,787 pesos (about $146,886,893).

The itemized budget for departments in round figures in pesos (about 49 cents each) is as follows:

Department.	Allowance.
Legislative	6,500,000
Executive	1,250,000
Judicial	6,500,000
Interior	3,250,000
Foreign Office	6,500,000
Finance	26,500,000
War and Marine	70,000,000
Agriculture	22,500,000
Communications	44,000,000
Industry and Labor	6,500,000
Education	33,000,000
Health	9,000,000
War and Marine Manufacturing	13,500,000
Debt Payments	26,000,000

The amended budget will leave a surplus of 33,162 pesos in estimated income over estimated expenditure. It is generally felt that, barring an unexpected rebellious movement, the fugures will be adhered to and the amount set aside for the public debt will be used as intended.

While the government's financial program finds fairly general approval, despite an increase over the 1929 estimates, conditions in some lines of private business are not so good. This is especially true in silver mining, due to the drop in quotations for silver.

Local authorities believe that with the present prices the industry's situation cannot be described as otherwise than in a grave crisis. Certain companies with an abundance of rich veins may continue operations successfully, but those with lower grades are in danger of being stopped.

The National Mining Chamber of Commerce is studying the crisis, assisted by industrialists, and it is said that the government will have to reduce taxes if the poorer companies are to continue operations. Several companies are reported to have petitioned the Secretary of Industry and Commerce for permission to suspend or reduce operations.

A dispatch from Tampico this morning announces the definite cessation of operations at that oil port of the Corona Company. The Huasteca Petroleum Company also is reported to be making further reductions in employes. Press reports state that the Huasteca Company is employing only 300 men, as against 8,000 formerly, in Tampico.

40 REFUGEE CHILDREN DIE IN GERMAN CAMP

Fifty Other Young Mennonites Ill of Disease That Baffles Doctors.

HAMMERSTEIN, Germany, Jan. 2 (AP).—A strange disease that has broken out among the children of the German Mennonite refugees from Russia encamped here has caused the death of forty children.

Fifty others are ill from the disease, which has baffled doctors. Despite strict sanitary measures the epidemic spread because many mothers hid their sick children and prayed over them, in accordance with the Mennonite belief, instead of letting them have medical attention.

The disease resembled measles, but caused death within a few hours after infection. Several hundred children also caught measles, but most of these are now recovering.

The authorities have quarantined the refugees' camp and ordered immediate examination of all the children to prevent the spread of the disease.

The Mennonite refugees arrived in Germany from Russia a little more than a month ago and have since been housed in concentration camps. The German Government negotiated with the Moscow authorities to obtain their right to emigrate. They had gone to Russia as settlers.

$100,000,000 DEMANDED OF MEXICO BY BRITONS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 2.—British claims against Mexico for damages caused by revolutionary activities between 1910 and 1920 amount to nearly $100,000,000, it was disclosed today at the offices of the British Special Claims Commission. There are no counter-claims by Mexicans against British interests.

The total number of claims is 128. So far the main work of the commission has consisted of interlocutory procedure. Only eight cases have been treated on their merits.

The Interoceanic Railway is by far the heaviest claimant, its alleged damages amounting to nearly half the total claims lodged.

Dr. A. E. Zimmermann is the presiding commissioner of the British-Mexican commission and Montague Shepman is the British agent. Sir John Percival is head of the commission.

Other claims of British subjects and corporations not arising from revolutionary activity are subject to private arrangement, for England has no general claims commission with Mexico, such as has the United States.

Rumania Names 3 Governors.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 2 (AP).—Pursuant to a new administrative law which came into force on New Year's Day, dividing Rumania into seven administrative provinces, the government has issued a decree nominating three former Ministers as Governors of the three provinces annexed to Rumania after the World War. M. Severpopu heads the Province of Banat, M. Saveanu the Province of Bukovina and M. Aurel Dobescu the Province of Transylvania.

FATALITIES LAID TO PILOTS.

146 of 267 Deaths in French Service Ascribed to Lack of Skill.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Deficient skill in piloting was responsible for 146 of the 267 fatal accidents among French army and naval airmen during the last year, according to statistics issued by the Ministry of Air. This remediable cause of accidents was less prominent during the second half of the year, because greater attention by the pilots followed an investigation last July.

There were thirty-five fatal accidents due to lack of skill in bringing planes safely to earth when engine or other trouble caused loss of speed over sea or land in sixty cases. Bad weather conditions caused twenty accidents, and five collisions occurred during the year. Twenty-three deaths were ascribed to defective material and four to bad condition of the landing grounds.

PANAMA CANAL SETS NEW RECORDS IN 1929

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BALBOA, Jan. 2.—With toll collections of $27,592,150 for the year 1929 the Panama Canal established a new record that exceeds by $1,218,000 the total collections from tolls in 1928. The number of vessel transits in 1929 exceeded by 106 the transits in 1928. Although complete figures are not yet available, it is expected that new records for the number of tons of cargo and ship tonnage have been made.

The present daily average of traffic is unimportant compared with the present capacity of the canal and the increased capacity which will result from the addition to the water supply to be furnished by the Madden Dam, now being constructed. The estimated present capacity of the canal is about fifty ships daily, with continuous day and night operation. The present hours of operation of the canal locks are: Gatun, 7 A. M. to 11 P. M.; Pedro Miguel, 7 A. M. to 9 P. M.; Miraflores, 6:50 A. M. to 10:30 P. M., with boarding hours at terminals preparatory to transit from 6 A. M. to 10 P. M.

The estimated capacity of the canal would be increased to seventy-five ships daily by the construction of an additional set of locks. Hence, between the daily average of the past year and the possible maximum capacity there is a margin of fifty-seven ships daily, providing for an increase in traffic that is not likely for many years, if it ever reaches that point.

The canal has been operated for the past year without interruption on account of landslides and without unusual delay to shipping.

PRINCESS DE BROGLIE SUES

American Pianist Seeks Divorce in Paris, Charging Desertion.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Marie Antoinette Aussenac, American concert pianist, today petitioned the French courts for a divorce from Prince Jacques de Broglie on the grounds of desertion. They were married at Armadale, Victoria, Australia, in February, 1926, after a wartime romance which followed a meeting in Paris in 1917.

The couple lived in New York until quite recently, when the Prince was called back to Paris by the illness of his mother. His wife followed, and her petition states that her husband now refuses to live with her.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—What is regarded as proof of the theory of modern science that all matter has a wave as well as a particle form was revealed today with announcement of the discovery by Professor A. J. Dempster of the department of physics of the University of Chicago that the infinitesimal nucleus of a hydrogen atom, held by scientists to be one of the most solid and stable things in the universe, is actually in a state of continuous vibration at tremendous speed.

Professor Dempster ascertained this by photographing the behavior of a hydrogen atom through a calcite crystal and registering the waves on a plate. For this, he received today the $1,000 prize of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, meeting at Des Moines, Iowa. The prize is awarded annually for "the most noteworthy contribution to science" reported to the association.

Physicists here hailed Professor Dempster's discovery as one of the most important advances in recent years and as conclusive proof of the theory of the duality of matter.

Rounds Out Knowledge of Matter.

"The most important contribution of twentieth century physics has been the discovery that the physical world is composed of three kinds of particles, protons, electrons and photons, and that each of these particles has also the characteristics of waves," said Professor Arthur H. Compton, Nobel prize winner, in commenting on Professor Dempster's discovery.

"The last stage of this work is the proof that protons, the positively charged parts of matter, have wave characteristics. It is this completion of the great work of twenty century experimental physics which has now been achieved through Dempster's discovery of the diffraction of protons by crystal."

The revelation of the dual nature of all matter as having simultaneously the form of a wave and of a projectile was explained by Professor Henry Gordon Gale, head of the department of physics of Chicago University and president of the American Physical Society.

"Physicists seeking to explain the ultimate nature of things have believed that light was simply a wave form and that atoms, which consist of negative electrons around a positive nucleus, or proton, were simply particles.

"Professor Compton in 1926 proved that light is not only a wave but a stream of particles, or photons, bundles of radiant energy. In 1927, two investigators at the Bell Laboratories, Davisson and Germer, revealed that negative electrons are not only particles but that each particle acts as a wave.

"The final evidence in the cycle has now been adduced by Dr. Dempster, who has proved that positive protons have also a wave form as well as particle form. These three discoveries are probably the most striking advances in physics in recent years."

Recorded on Photographic Plate.

The experiments which led to Professor Dempster's discovery were begun by him eight months ago in the Ryerson Laboratory of the University of Chicago. By shooting the hydrogen protons through a crystal in a vacuum, he was able to show pattern marks on a sensitized plate. If the protons had been merely particles without vibration, only dots would have appeared on the photographic plate.

Professor Dempster explained this "diffraction pattern" as being similar to the diffused appearance of sun light through an umbrella, a phenomenon peculiar to things having a wave form.

"In these experiments, a calcite crystal takes the place of the umbrella and is used as a mesh to control the particles," he said. "The hydrogen protons in these experiments penetrated the crystal in much the same way that light protons would, and their patterns on the photographic plate leave no doubt as to their wave properties.

"The experiments completed have so far been confined to hydrogen. But since all the elements consist of the same thing or things in different arrangement, it can be assumed that the protons of all substances would act in the same manner. Hydrogen is the simplest of the elements. We are now applying the method to helium, the next most simple.

"How protons, electrons and photons can be both waves and particles at the same time is perhaps the greatest problem now confronting physicists. This experiment does not throw direct light upon that obscure relationship, but helps to clarify the problem."

Analogous to X-Ray Action.

The hydrogen atoms used by Professor Dempster in his experiment are formed in a gas discharge tube, a vacuum tube with the hydrogen in it at low pressure. The positive hydrogen particles are attracted to the cathode and shoot through a small hole in the centre, all in accordance with a well-established technique.

The particles going through the tube travel at the rate of 1,500 miles per second. After passing through the tube they hit a calcite crystal five millimeters beyond. The calcite crystal is the most perfect crystal known, except for the diamond. On hitting the crystal, the beam is reflected and hits a photographic plate fifteen centimeters from the tube.

"There is an analogy in this with the behavior of X-rays when they fall on a crystal," Professor Dempster said, emphasizing again that "it suggests that the positive particles have a wave structure which interacts with the regular arrangement of the crystal. The thing that is striking is that it is a new phenomenon and the only possibility of explaining it is in the analogy in the behavior of X-rays when they are defracted by a crystal."

According to Professor Compton, the waves revealed in Professor Dempster's experiment are about as short as cosmic rays and of the same high frequency and energy. The theory that everything in the universe has a wave form as well as a particle form has been sponsored largely by Professor Condon of Princeton and is generally regarded as the most feasible explanation for the disintegration of radio-active elements, Professor Compton said.

Dr. Dempster, who is 43 years old, has been a member of the University of Chicago physics department for fifteen years. He is a graduate of the University of Toronto and of the University of Chicago, and has studied at Goettingen, Munich and Wurzburg, Germany. He served in the Signal Corps during the World War. According to Professor Compton, he is the outstanding authority on the actions of protons.

Dempster's work carries on a tradition of research into the fundamental nature of matter and electricity in the Ryerson Laboratory. The measurement of the charge on the electron by Professor Robert A. Millikan of the speed of light by Professor A. A. Michelson and of the corpuscular nature of light by Professor Compton, all done at Ryerson, have led scientists to classify it as the leading physical laboratory in the United States.

ORDERS INQUIRY AT LAREDO

Governor Moody Seeks Facts in Attempted Arrest of Calles.

Special to The New York Times.

AUSTIN, Texas, Jan. 2.—After a conference with citizens of Laredo who urged the removal from office of District Attorney John A. Valls of that city because of his seeking the arrest of Plutarco Elias Calles, former President of Mexico, on a charge of complicity in the slaying of General Lucio Blanco, Governor Dan Moody announced today that he would send Attorney General Bobbitt to Laredo to investigate the District Attorney's action.

Governor Moody said that he would not ask the Attorney General to make any recommendations and that all he wanted was the truth in regard to statements made in the Laredo controversy. One of these is whether or not an indictment really stands against Señor Calles in that city.

G.R. CHRISTIAN CACHE SOUGHT IN MEXICO

Fugitive Broker Hid Part of the Missing $2,400,000, Detectives Believe.

WOMAN INVOLVED IN CASE

Searchers Hope She May Provide Clue to Treasure Near Ranch Where He Lived Luxuriously.

Search for a large amount of money, which it is believed may have been cached in Mexico by the late George R. Cnristian, fugitive broker, is being carried on near the house in which he lived for some time below the California border, it was made known here yesterday.

Ervin J. Smith, head of a detective agency at 799 Broadway, has been working out of Los Angeles for several days in an effort to discover a part of the $2,400,000 which disappeared in 1924, when Christian dropped out of sight, it was said at Mr. Smith's office.

Christian was a partner in the Day & Heaton brokerage firm, which failed after his disappearance. He was captured in San Antonio last March and brought back to Trenton, N. J., to face Federal charges of misusing the mails, preferred by his brother, Louis, of Maplewood, N. J. In May, while he was out on bail, he was found dead in a hotel room in Omaha, Neb., where he had been living under an assumed name.

At Mr. Smith's office it was said that the search in Mexico for the possible cache was the result of a new "tip."

It was also said at Mr. Smith's office that the renewed quest for the cache came as a result of information concerning a Mexican woman in whose company Christian was seen in San Antonio just before his arrest. Her identity was not revealed, but it was said that efforts were being made to learn from her the existence or location of the missing money.

and Brock Pemberton, members of the subcommittee.

Mr. Pemberton pointed out that the Federal Government profited the most by the excessive prices charged for theatre tickets. Half of the premium above 75 cents collected by a broker is supposed to go to the government.

"Since the Tuttle investigation two and a half years ago the speculators have had to double their prices if they hoped to stay in business and keep within the law," declared Mr. Pemberton.

"The managers can control the situation by licensing the ticket agencies and by retaining ownership of tickets and merely consigning them to licensed agencies for release at the 75-cent premium. By turning over tickets to the broker in increasingly large quantities, the manager has created a Frankenstein that now ruins him.

"The unsound and mad system of merchandising has placed those brokers who would like to conduct their business legitimately in an unenviable position. The losses they must absorb on unsold tickets make it almost impossible for them to show a decent profit. A recent canvass of the larger brokers, all but one of whom have switched to a policy of all the traffic will bear (from that of a set, fair premium), indicated that all of them would be glad to return to the 75-cent premium arrangement if the demand to buy were eliminated.

"The adoption of the proposed plan would drive out the small operator who deals mainly in bootleg stuff. This would follow of necessity, as there are now more agencies paying high rents and other overhead charges than the theatre can carry.

"On the managerial end the only individuals the reform could hurt are those who receive premiums from the brokers and those who get cash advances on prospective productions. These are a minority. There is no reason why the majority should suffer to benefit them. That we do suffer is prohved by our grosses and our closed and half-filled theatres."

Mr. Pemberton admitted to his fellow-managers that he was a "monkey" because he turned over his best merchandise (choise seats) "to a middleman with no restrictions as to what he shall charge for them." By adding only a little service to their value, the middleman, he said, resells the tickets "for all the traffic will bear."

In his remarks Mr. Hopkins said that the manager who never approved of the "buy" method of selling tickets was forced into it for self-protection, "as he felt, naturally enough, that the 'bought seats' would receive much more of the broker's attention than those obtained only on consignment.

"The crux of the 'buy' evil is that the good 'buys' must support the bad 'buys,' and as there are usually more bad 'buys' than good ones the evil becomes chronic," he continued. "Runs of successful plays are appreciably shortened by the prices their tickets must bring the broker to lengthen the run of unsuccessful plays.

"All incentive to reduce box-office prices is removed by the fact that if the play is a success the public will in no way benefit by the reduction, as the broker is just as willing to charge $13 for a $3 ticket as for a $6 ticket. He is the only one who can possibly benefit by price reduction if the play is a success.

"The system is a vicious circle that is drawing tighter and tighter around the theatre, and unless its grip is broken the theatre as a commercial enterprise must sink to comparative unimportance."

Mr. Hopkins then proposed his resolution as the "first step" in an effort to bring drama lovers back to the theatre. The resolution follows:

WHEREAS the evils of theatre ticket speculation have grown to such proportions as to inflict grave injustice on that part of the public that still patronizes the theatre, and to alienate completely a still larger public that cannot or will not be so flagrantly dealt with, and

WHEREAS the chief cause of this abuse is the practice of many theatre managers and producers who relinquish control of prices of their tickets by selling them outright to ticket brokers, and

WHEREAS many managers and producers in permitting outright "buys" by brokers for successful plays, and forcing outright "buys" upon brokers for unsuccessful plays, must share with the ticket brokers the responsibility for grave impositions upon the public and incalculable damage to the theatrical industry, and

WHEREAS these evils cannot be corrected except by concerted action on the part of all managers and producers who have control of the disposition of theatre tickets, be it

RESOLVED, That the managers and producers whose names are attached hereto are prepared now to enter into an agreement with all other managers and producers by which they bind themselves for a period of two years, beginning March 1, 1930.

First—To abolish all "buys."

Second—at all times to keep a substantial number of desirable tickets on sale at the box office.

Third—To place tickets on consignment with only such ticket brokers as will agree to conduct their agencies in accordance with the rules adopted by the managers, the essence of these rules to be that the brokers shall bond themselves: first, to make no "buy" for any theatrical attraction, and second, to make no charge in excess of seventy-five (75 cents) cents a ticket for any theatrical attraction, penalty for proven violation on the part of the broker to be the withdrawal of all tickets, penalty for the proven violation on the part of the manager to be the removal of his tickets from all bonded agencies.

Fourth—To contribute to the support of a Managers' Bureau which will police the operation of the plan, and be it further

RESOLVED, That copies of this resolution shall be presented for signature to all managers and producers whose names are not hereto attached.

Signed this 2d day of January, 1930.

In support of the resolution, Mr. Miller asserted that suburban theatregoers had virtually disappeared, having been frightened away from the theatre by reports of high prices.

The economics of the situation, as it affected the manager, said Mr. Miller, was "frankly ridiculous." In many cases $13.20 was charged for seats priced at $3.85 or $4.40. As the manager's profit was about $1, it was obvious that the profit of the broker was $8 or $9, "which seems a rather costly method of distribution and one in which the middleman's profit is obviously out of all proportion to that of the producers."

GIVES FREE TICKET SERVICE

To stimulate theatre-going by visitors to New York and to gain support for the better plays, the Church and Drama League has started a free ticket service for its out-of-town members, according to an announcement yesterday by George Reid Andrews, executive director.

Through this service members of the league may order theatre tickets in advance at box-office prices. The tickets will be delivered to them at their hotels. The service will also arrange theatre schedules for its members, which will be in effect an extension of the league's play-reviewing program.

In his announcement Dr. Andrews said that, because of the difficulty of buying tickets for the popular shows conveniently and at reasonable prices, many of the visitors to New York were staying away from the theatres entirely.

GIFT BOMB BLAST TAKES BABY'S LIFE

HER HUSBAND QUESTIONED

But Officials Are Baffled in Quest for Slayer—Another Child's Condition Grave.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A 19-months-old baby, Samuel Hall, died at the Sibley Memorial Hospital tonight as the second victim of yesterday's explosion of a bomb which was sent, wrapped as a Christmas gift, to his sister, Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, a bride of a few weeks.

The baby, blinded by the explosion, had hung between life and death from the time he was taken to the hospital yesterday, soon after the blast had killed Mrs. Brady, and injured another sister, two brothers, his mother and grandmother and wrecked their little home at Seat Pleasant, Md., a suburb just east of the District of Columbia line.

Officials of Prince George's County, Maryland, today admitted themselves still at sea as to the probable source of the bomb.

Sheriff Charles F. Early said tonight that he was without a single plausible clue. Questioning of relatives, neighbors and friends had developed nothing, he said, despite rumors relative to rejected suitors of Mrs. Brady religious prejudices and other factors in her elopement on Nov. 14 to Fairfax, Va., where she and Herman Brady, young Maryland farmer, were married.

Meanwhile surgeons at two hospitals were doing what they could to save the life of Dorothy Hall, 4½ years old, also blinded by the blast.

Mrs. Nora Hall, the 45-year-old mother, was still in a serious condition with a punctured abdomen and lacerations and bruises on the head and arms. Her two older sons, Leslie, 16, and Thomas, 8, who suffered lacerated hands and facial injuries, were not considered in so grave a condition today. Mrs. Margaret Bromley, 86, the grandmother, was still suffering from shock.

A small coil or spring, a piece of copper wire, several nails and bits of brown paper are all police have been able to connect in any way with the death-dealing package. The spring was found in the glass-strewn yard of another home.

The Maryland officials turned over the spring to experts in the Bureau of Standards at Washington in the possibility of ascertaining a type of bomb to which it belonged.

Herman Brady, the husband, who had never lived with his bride, was questioned at Prince George County court house during the day by State's Attorney Parran and Sheriff Early. He returned to Washington after the questioning to make funeral arrangements for his young wife.

When first questioned yesterday, Brady said that he and Naomi Hall were married last June, but records at the Fairfax Court House in Virginia showed that the ceremony was performed there on Nov. 14 by Deputy Clerk E. R. Holbrook.

Brady insisted that his wife had no suitors other than himself. Members of the young woman's family said they were completely at a loss to account for a motive for the crime.

10 ON MOVIE PLANES KILLED IN CRASH

cabin ships, and Ross Cook the other.

The pilots were attached to the commercial flying field at Clover Field, Santa Monica, and were under temporary contract to the Fox Film Company, which had chartered the planes.

With perfect weather favoring them the three planes flew out over the ocean this afternoon, the Palos Verde Hills behind them, and the men aboard prepared for the daring stunt which is to be the climax of the play. They were moving in a V formation, manoeuvring for position. Turner's ship was in the lead and flying at a lower altitude than the others.

The two cabin ships, with the directors aboard, veered close to each other. Then apparently the piercing rays of the descending sun struck the eyes of one of the pilots. His plane darted down and struck the top of the companion plane.

There was a momentary shudder. Then a wing broke and one of the planes exploded. The other plane, tangled in the débris of its stricken, blazing companion, became engulfed in flames and the two whirled in one mass to the surface of the sea 3,000 feet below.

As they neared the water, figures were seen hurtling from them, as if they had jumped or been thrown through the open doors. Every one in the planes must have been killed instantly, for the bones of those whose bodies were recovered tonight were broken.

Third Pilot's Story of Disaster.

Turner did not see the collision itself, because it was above and behind him. At the field tonight, ill from the shock of the tragedy, Turner told of seeing the interlocked planes strike the water.

"We left Clover Field and were to meet near Point Firmin," Turner declared. "I had straightened out and was making a direct line for Point Firmin. The other ships were a little behind and above me.

"Suddenly one of my companions shouted, 'Look, they have hit each other!'

"I winged over and turned around to get a look at them. They were tangled together, both afire, and plunging toward the ocean. Just as they were about to hit two or three of the men either jumped or were thrown out of the burning planes. I saw the bodies splash into the ocean a little distance away from the point where the planes hit the sea."

Two Leaped With Parachutes.

The disaster was seen by thousands of motorists along the Coast Highway, by fishermen in boats close off shore and by the passengers and crew of the liner Ruth Alexander, which was off Point Vincente.

W. Carlson, chief officer of the liner, said that the crash, with the instant explosion, was like a flash of lightning.

"They were flying in V formation when one dived down on the other and brought them both down in flames," he said. "Two men on one of the planes jumped in parachutes, but they hit the water before the parachutes opened."

Speedboats and launches hurried to the scene. One of the speedboats had been provided by the film company to help in the filming of the picture and was hovering near to pick up Baxter's double when he jumped into the sea with his parachute.

Buoys Placed at the Scene.

The first rescue boats arriving, however, found that the planes, weighted by the heavy engines, had sunk. There weer only charred bits of canvas and blackened splinters of wood afloat. After several hours of search the three bodies were found, floating face downward. When darkness forced the suspension of the search tonight floating markers were placed at the scene.

Kenneth Hawks was married to Miss Astor less than two years ago. When the news of the disaster came she had just closed a matinee at the Majestic Theatre here, where she is making her legitimate stage début with Edward Everett Horton in "Among the Married." She was lying on a couch when Florence Eldridge, leading lady, broke the news to her hesitantly.

"If he is dead, tell me," broke in Miss Astor calmly. She appeared to be stunned, but did not collapse, and was taken to Miss Eldridge's apartment. Doris Lloyd was called from hollywood, hurriedly rehearsed, while Horton was before the curtain explaining the situation to the audience, and the evening play went on.

Mr. Hawks was 29 years old. He was born at Goshen, Ind., and attended Yale University where he was Charles (Chuck) Garland's partner in the intercollegiate tennis doubles team. Hawks interrupted his college career to enlist in the war and served one year in the air service.

Rouse and Cook, the aviators, had flown in previous airplane movie pictures and were regarded as reliable stunt pilots.

Brother's Narrow Escape.

Howard Hawks, a brother of Kenneth, also a motion picture executive, narrowly missed accompanying Kenneth on the flight which cost him his life. He had been deterred at the last minute by a telephone call from his wife, a sister of Norma Shearer. Howard Hawks took charge of the search for his brother's body. Tonight there was little hope that it would be recovered, for it was believed that it had been carried down in the plane.

A third brother, William Hawks, a stock broker, married Bessie Love, the actress, last week. Kenneth was his best man. William Hawks and his bride are now absent on a honeymoon.

The loss of the ten persons in today's accident is the most serious ever suffered but is not the first such accident in the films. Three aviators lost their lives in the film "Hell's Angels."

JEWISH AGENCY GROUP TO MEET HERE ON FEB. 1

Administrative Committee to Hold First Conference Since Arab Riots in Palestine.

The administrative committee of the Jewish Agency will hold its first meeting in the United States on Feb. 1 at the headquarters of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies, 71 West Forty-seventh Street, the committee announced yesterday. Felix M. Warburg, chairman of the committee, will preside.

Members from Palestine, Poland, Germany, England and other countries will attend. They will discuss general administrative affairs, the improvement of schools, hospitals and other institutions and plans for collection of funds for the various enterprises controlled by the agency.

It will be the first conference since the recent Arab riots in Palestine and it was said to be probable that the committee would concern itself with consolidating its forces in that country. It was considered doubtful, however, that the committee would concern itself with the political problems originating in the riots.

The administrative committee consists of forty members, twenty Zionists and twenty non-Zionists, all chosen by the first congress of the Jewish Agency in Zurich last August, at which the late Louis Marshall presided. Many prominent Jews of New York are on the committee.

Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the Zionist World Organization, will attend the conference. He will sail from Palestine on Jan. 24.

AMERICA GETS TITLE TO TURTLE ISLANDS

British Ambassador and Stimson Sign Convention Establishing Philippines Boundary.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Ownership by the United States of the Turtle Islands, a group of eight small islands with a population of 200 off the east coast of British North Borneo, was confirmed in a convention signed today by Secretary Stimson and Sir Esme Howard, the British Ambassador, which defines the boundary line between the Philippine Archipelago and North Borneo.

The officials also exchanged notes providing for a continuance of the temporary administration of the islands by the British North Borneo Company.

The arrangement confirms in substance the zones of sovereignty in that region and the administrative practice which existed under Spanish rule when Great Britain had similar understandings with the Spanish Government. The interests of the latter were transferred to the United States by the Treaty of Paris, concluding the Spanish-American War, and by the treaty two years later which took into account the southernmost fringe of the Philippine Archipeloga.

The convention signed today definitely recorded the boundary line for the first time. This passes to the north of British Borneo, but its exact course was withheld pending submission of the convention to the Senate.

Commissioner Johnson Renamed.

Commissioner of Public Works Joseph Johnson was formally reappointed yesterday by Borough President Julius Miller, who announced that all employes in the Borough President's office would remain in the new administration. Register Rebecca Hoffman announced the appointment of Miss Loretta M. Bonner of 106 West Fifty-second Street as her secretary.

Mechanical Ruggedness of "Eveready" Radios

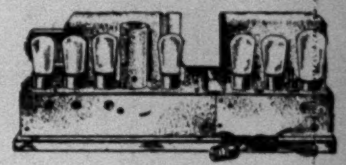
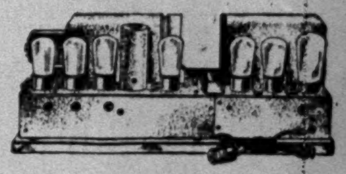
The "Eveready" Volume Control is Extremely Effective

Volume is controlled by a rugged, wire wound, variable resistance unit which is instantaneous in its response and wonderfully smooth in action. It will completely shut out the strongest local stations.



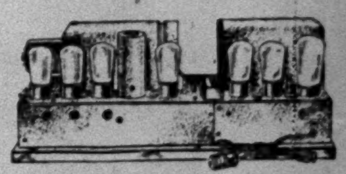
A Superior Tuning System

One of the four tuned circuits in the "Eveready" Receiver consists of a condenser tuned by a variable inductance coil, thus the circuit becomes more sensitive as it is tuned to the higher wave lengths, and the sensitivity is more uniform than in other four-circuit receivers employing conventional tuning methods.



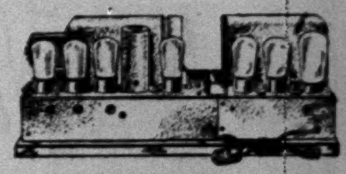
The "Eveready" Radio Incorporates the Best Mechanical and Electrical Features

The receiver is an 8-tube, including rectifier, single dial, antenna operated, all electric AC set, having three stages of radio frequency amplification, detector and two audio stages, the latest of which consists of two power output tubes, UX245's, in a push-pull circuit.



Phonograph Connection

A phonograph pick-up connection has been provided in the "Eveready" Model 52 Chassis which enables the user to plug in the leads from a phonograph pick-up and thus play his records through the amplifier in the set, without having to remove a tube or otherwise disturb the receiver.



A Beautiful "Eveready" Console Cabinet

The "Eveready" console, Model 52, is characterized by grace and simplicity of construction, enriched by the mellow luster and exotic grain of the walnut veneer. The "Eveready" Dynamic Speaker is built in.

MAYOR APPOINTS 27 FOR HOUSING STUDY

Committee to Aid in Drafting Proposed Amendments to Multiple Dwellings Law.

DEEGAN IS ITS CHAIRMAN

City, in Submitting Changes to Albany, Will Ignore Old Legislative Commission.

Mayor Walker last night announced the names of a special committee selected by him to cooperate in drafting proposed amendments to the multiple dwellings law. Its membership of twenty-seven includes architects, engineers, builders, realty experts and representatives of mercantile, trade and labor organizations and other civic bodies. Their recommendations will be submitted to Arthur J. W. Hilly, Corporation Counsel, before being introduced in the State Legislature. William F. Deegan, Tenement House Commissioner, is chairman of the Mayor's committee.

The Legislative Commission for the Revision of the Tenement House Laws, which more than a year ago took copious testimony on the subject, has invited the city to submit through it such amendments to the law as are desired by the city administration. Mayor Walker and his commissioners, however, take the position that the life of the State Legislative Commission lapsed officially last year when Governor Roosevelt signed the multiple dwellings law, and the city therefore will communicate its wishes to the Legislature through the committee appointed yesterday. Its members are:

WILLIAM F. DEEGAN, Tenement House Commissioner, chairman.
STEWART BROWNE, president of United Real Estate Owners' Association.
ARTHUR J. W. HILLY, Corporation Counsel.
EDWARD BLUM of Blum & Blum, architects.
WILLIAM T. McCARTHY, architect.
JOSEPH P. RYAN, president of Central Trades and Labor Council.
WILLIAM MEAD of Merchants' Association of New York.
SAMUEL SEIDERMAN, Associated Builders of Brooklyn.
PETER CAPPEL, 72 Bowery.
FREDERICK W. WELLS, president of Harlem Renters' Association.
Mrs. HELEN HANNING of the Community Councils of New York.
LOUIS TISHMAN of Tishman Realty and Construction Company.
MARK RAFALSKY of Rafalsky & Co.
AUGUST SCHWARZLER, builder and real estate.
HENRY WOLF, secretary, Bronx Chamber of Commerce.
HARRY SCHACT, president of Building Industry League.
ISIDORE BERGER, president of Greater New York Taxpayers' Association.
EFRIAM BYK, president of Yorkville Chamber of Commerce.
HENRY BRICKEN of Bricken Construction Company.
JOHN SLOAN of Sloan & Robertson.
JAMES RILEY GORDON, president of New York Society of Architects.
PETER GRIM, Real Estate Board of New York.
CHARLES QUINLAN, vice president of Wood, Dolson Company.
WILLIAM KENNEDY Jr., president of William Kennedy Construction Company.
FRED C. LEMMERMAN, president of Queens Chamber of Commerce.

Posthumous Decoration for Soldier.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The Distinguished Service Cross was awarded by the War Department posthumously today to Walter S. Yardrough of Nashville, Tenn., in recognition of heroism in crossing the Meuse River on Nov. 9, 1918, when a First Lieutenant in Company F, 355th Infantry, Eighty-ninth Division. He headed a patrol of five men who swam the river under heavy fire and reached the enemy side of the river where a few moments later he made the supreme sacrifice.

WALKER TO DONATE PAY RISE TO CHARITY

charities in this city. For the next four years my name will be found upon the list of contributors and patrons of many more institutions to the tune of $15,000. Now that, I hope, will be the last word ever about that."

Speaking of those who "lamented" the fact that $60,000 a year was to be added to the cost of the administration, the Mayor said that strangers, who previous to the public hearings on the $563,000,000 administration budget had never mainfested any interest in how much the city spent, rushed in to point out how the city might be saved a dollar.

"I do not think I have ever found anything I had to make a decision on that was as delicate," he declared. "No question but that the presidents of the boroughs of the city should have a better remuneration than they have been receiving. It is a colossal job. And yet there is a differential which should be maintained and must be maintained. So I said at the time there was no doubt in my mind of the fairness of the salary increase for the borough president, and there was never a scintilla of conspiracy about it.

"To the president of the borough of Queens I must publicly pay my compliments for thinking of it. We would have done it a year ago if we had thought of it. He was the only one who thought of it and he had been politically canonized a short time before that. He learned to stem against the tide, and he went upward over a political Niagara Falls. His word was to be listened to."

Mr. Harvey, it developed later, believes that charity begins at home. He said so when asked whether he intended to follow the example of Mayor Walker in giving his salary increase to charity.

"I am going to hold onto it," said Mr. Harvey. "Charity begins at home, and I would rather not say anything more about it."

The Mayor asserted he had never had any hesitation about signing the bill for salary increases for the borough presidents because there was nothing "immoral" about it. When the hearing on the bill was finished, he said, there was no one who said that the officers legislated upon and for should not receive the compensation that the legislation provided.

"They all said, 'This is a terrible thing for you to do, to increase your own salary,'" he asserted; and I said, 'Well, isn't it rather conventional? Didn't Congress raise their own salaries? Didn't the New York State Legislature raise their own salaries? What is the difference about this?' And yet I say life is too shart to be annoyed about things that should not annoy.

"I am going to tell you about the secret of the final disposition of the bill. I knew it was right, because no one had pointed out, to say nothing of convincing me, it was wrong to sign all these bills and increasing all these salaries. But I was a bit delicate about the Mayor's. I never thought of it. I never asked for it. But I still have a very definite regard for the obligations of the Mayor's office and the fact that he is the chief magistrate of this city, and the fact that he is held primarily responsible for anything that goes wrong.

"And no matter who the person is, I believe the Mayor is the chief magistrate of this city, and I did not propose in this equation or this yardstick of dollars and cents to minimize the importance of the office that I have been elevated to. So I made my mind up to sign the bill."

Defending himself against accusations of political patronage, Mayor Walker reminded his audience that "93 3-5 per cent" of all the 123,000 employes of the city hold their positions as the result of competitive civil service examinations. "The days of political patronage and politics in this city are done, I think," he declared.

The Mayor said the school he belonged to taught only one way to get political preferment in this city and only one way to win a partisan victory, that is, "to render service that meets the satisfaction and the approval of the people you are serving."

The political appointee, he said, frequently, after a job is found for him, discovers that the very neighborhood that he grew up in himself is not a fit place to bring up children, so he has to move out of the district.

"In my mind you should know that patronage does not mean—it means something—but it does not mean as much as you think it does. Service is at the basis of it all," he asserted.

In outlining the program of improvements contemplated by the city during the next four years, Mayor Walker said that street cleaning, the removal of ashes and garbage and sewage disposal would probably be the greatest task. He paid a tribute to Commissioner Schroeder as head of the hospital department, and predicted that as head of the newly organized Sanitation Commission he would obtain results within the year.

He referred to the "neglect" of city parks and hospitals, and said his administration had attempted to modernize the equipment and meet the demands of the people. In this connection he declared:

"Next year's budget-making will go on with the same practice, but with a genuine effort at greater improvements not only in the system but in the result, and I say to you at the beginning of 1930 that I would feel as if I had failed completely if in recognizing necessities for the transaction of business and the comfort of living in this city we did not meet them all. By that you need not be alarmed and think that there will be any orgy of spending. Of course, there will not be."

Mr. Loree, before introducing the Mayor, had referred indirectly to Mayor Walker's salary in speaking of the position of public officials with respect to service, working conditions and compensation. He deprecated the situation in which public officers in positions demanding high grades of ability are very inadequately compensated.

"Men mainly prize," Mr. Loree said, "in employment and business relations, continuity of service, agreeable working conditions and adequate compensation. None of these is offered to the administrative officers of our governments. The tenure of office is grotesquely short and insecure, all officers are exposed to unrestricted abuse, implications of unworthy motives and belittling of abilities are common, while compared with the rewards of life the positions demanding high grades of ability are very inadequately compensated.

"Nor must we forget that we seek, and should have, administrative results no less successful than in the conduct of great business. It is inevitable that, in a country as large as ours, and with conditions so widely variant, great unevenness should be shown in administration.

"This chamber has been ever ready to voice its approval of the well-directed efforts of public officers and to lend them such support as is within its power in the solution of their problems and their administration of public affairs."

Mayor Walker expressed his gratification to the members of the chamber for their cooperation with his administration and paid a personal tribute to John D. Rockefeller Jr., who sat in a front seat with his son, John D. Rockefeller 3d. Mr. Rockefeller, the Mayor said, "has already done so much for the city of New York and has encouraged me in the hope that he wants to do some greater things, some finer things for the city."

HUSBAND A SUICIDE, WIFE KILLS HERSELF

Woman Found Dead of Gas in Lynbrook Home—Body of Man in Garage.

WERE READY FOR A PARTY

He Leaves Note Saying He Was 45, and No One Had Use for So Old a Man.

Special to The New York Times.

LYNBROOK, L. I., Jan. 2.—Joseph B. Lantelme Jr., 45 years old, a foreman on the Long Island Railroad, and his wife, Lillian, 36, were found dead in their home here today. The police believe that the two had committed suicide on the last night of the old year, the wife taking her own life after discovering that her husband had died by his own initiative shortly before.

The bodies were found this morning by a friend, Edward P. Knettel, with whom the Lantelmes had planned to have a party on New Year's Eve. After they had failed to arrive at his home for the party and did not communicate with him yesterday, Knettel went to the Lantelme home at 61 Harding Avenue to determine the cause. Finding the house locked and no one responding to his call, he broke a kitchen window and entered.

The house was filled with gas from six open jets on a range in the kitchen. Knettel closed them and opened several windows, and then entered the living room to find Mrs. Lantelme lying dead on a couch. After a search for her husband in the house, Knettel went to the garage in the rear, where he found the body of Lantelme sitting on the front seat of his automobile. The doors of the garage were closed.

Dr. Rudolph Dery, police surgeon, who was summoned by Knettel, pronounced Mr. and Mrs. Lantelme dead. Both were fully clothed, he in an overcoat and she in an evening dress. Harold R. King, chief of the Nassau County detectives, concluded that the couple had prepared to leave the house on New Year's Eve and that Lantelme had gone to get his automobile. When he did not come from the garage after several minutes, his wife had gone to seek him. Upon finding her husband dead, police believe, she returned to the house and took her life.

Lantelme had apparently closed the doors of the garage, started the motor of the car and died of gas poisoning from the exhaust. On the two sides of an envelope found in the pocket of his overcoat was written the following note:

"Age 45. And I have always said no one has any use for an old man at the age of 45. So that's how it is. I will cause no more trouble or inconvenience to anybody or persons of either family. You will not have to live with the guinea any more. Good luck. Good failure to the rotten wop. My age 45. Time to go as I have always said."

Lantelme was of Italian birth, but his wife was an American. The couple were last seen on Tuesday evening, when they had dinner in the home of Lantelme's parents. Both were apparently happy, it was said, with no obvious reason for suicide. Lantelme was injured in an automobile accident about six months ago, but was thought to have recovered. They have no children.

CITY ANSWERS SUIT BY FRANKLIN FORD

Asserts WNYC Broadcasts of Holy Name Society Affairs Did Not Violate Law.

An answer was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by Mayor Walker and Albert Goldman, Commissioner of Plant and Structures, in the suit by Franklin Ford, radio broadcaster, to restrain the city's station, WNYC, from broadcasting any public meetings, especially religious gatherings. The suit contends that such broadcasts are in violation of the law, since the resolution of the Board of Estimate under which the station was constructed limited its use to city departments.

The answer refers to allegations that WNYC illegally broadcast a breakfast of the Holy Name Society of the Fire Department on April 21 and asserts that this was a proper function of the station because the society is an adjunct of the Fire Department.

The broadcasting on May 5 of a breakfast of the Holy Name Society of the Police Department at the Elks Club, Brooklyn, is defended on the ground that the breakfast was authorized by the Police Department because the Holy Name Society, as an adjunct of the Police Department, "teaches and inculcates the doctrine and practice of keeping holy and pure the name of Almighty God in the service and when not actively performing service by members of the Police Department." The Rev. Lawrence H. Bracken, named in the complaint as having presided at the breakfast, is a regularly appointed chaplain of the Police Department, the reply asserted.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Messages of President Hoover conveying New Year's greetings to the Presidents of the Chinese Republic and Haiti were made public today by the State Department.

The one to the President of the Chinese Republic reads:

"I thank your Excellency in my own name and on behalf of my fellow-countrymen for your courteous New Year's greetings, which are most heartily reciprocated."

The other, to Louis Borno, President of Haiti, read:

"I have pleasure in extending to your Excellency and to the people of Haiti cordial greetings on this anniversary of the independence of the republic."

NEW AIR MAIL LINE OPENED.

Pan-American Airways Start Service From Guatemala to Managua.

Pan-American Airways, Inc., announced yesterday the opening of a new feeder air mail line from Guatemala City, Guatemala, to Managua, Nicaragua, which is to augment the services of the existing lines by connecting with the Brownsville (Texas)-Mexico City-Central American line of the company so that direct air mail service may be established between the West Coast and Central and South America.

The new link will save from one to two days over the fastest time previously scheduled between the western half of the United States and the leading cities of the countries to the south.

I. C. C. SPEEDS WORK; DOCKET CUT IN 1929

Twenty-six More Examiners Are Added to Rate Force, Retiring Chairman Lewis Reports.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A marked speeding up in the work of the Interstate Commerce Commission during 1929 was reported today by Commissioner Ernest I. Lewis, who was succeeded as chairman today in the usual rotation of that office among the members by Commissioner Frank McManamy.

Mr. Lewis reported that the docket had been reduced by 280 formal cases, there having been 2,706 at the opening of the year and 2,426 at the close. This was the smallest number of cases pending since September, 1926. A maximum of 2,852 was reached in November, 1927.

In the opinion of Mr. Lewis, the major accomplishment during the year was the issuance of the railroad consolidation plan and the closing, by argument, of the Hoch-Smith rate readjustment cases, including the grain and livestock and the Eastern and Western trunk line freight rate cases.

Mr. Lewis said that twenty-six additional examiners had been added to the rate force and put through preliminary training.

COALITIONISTS SEEK BOUNTY ON SUGAR

Senate Westerners, Headed by Borah, Plan Fight to Obtain a Two-Cent Impost.

FOR HIGHER DUTY IF BEATEN

Proposal Is Advanced to Offset the Philippine Imports—Democratic Support Doubtful.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Supporters of the coalition headed by Senator Borah have decided to wage a fight in the Senate to force adoption of an amendment to the tariff bill providing for payments of a bounty to sugar growers to supplement the protection afforded by customs duties.

If the coalition finds, after a survey, that it cannot obtain a sufficient number of votes to put through the bounty system, it probably will throw its support to the sugar schedule as it was presented to the Senate by the Committee on Finance.

The committee recommended a world rate on sugar of 2.75 cents a pound, 2.20 cents on Cuban importations. The House bill rates were 3 and 2.40 cents a pound, respectively. The present law fixes 2.20 cents a pound on "world" sugar, and 1.76 cents a pound on sugar from Cuba.

Two-Cent Bounty Considered.

The bounty which would be paid under the amendment now being considered by Senator Borah and others is likely to be fixed at two cents a pound, which was paid to growers under the McKinley tariff act repealed by a Democratic Congress in the second administration of President Cleveland.

The benefits of the bounty would not be extended to Philippine sugar growers, Senator Borah declaring today that the plan had, in fact, been advanced as a means of providing protection for domestic growers against Philippine sugar, now admitted duty-free.

Western Senators representing beet sugar States are more concerned over competition from the Philippines than over any other imports. They declare that a world rate of 3 cents a pound as provided by the House would not protect the Western grower because of the heavy shipments of the duty-free Philippine product. With a continuance of the free trade policy between the United States and the Philippines, they argue, beet sugar producers can gain protection only through a bounty plan.

Would Accept Lower Rate.

Should the amendment be adopted the Western Senators would be willing to accept a reduction in the Finance Committee rates on sugar. They are not very hopeful, however, that the Senate will accept the bounty plan, believing that the administration is opposed to the idea. There also is doubt whether it will attract substantial support from Democratic Senators.

The Senate probably will take up the sugar schedule of the Hawley-Smoot bill late next week, as only a few items of the wool schedule remained to be disposed of when the Senate adjourned for the holidays.

Features other than the proposed bounty are likely to stir up controversy. Efforts will be made to substitute the higher House rates, and some of the Western contingent will seek to increase the rate of one-sixth of a cent a gallon on blackstrap molasses, the principal source of industrial alcohol.

Senator Borah reiterated today that he was unalterably opposed to the consideration of any business in the Senate until the tariff bill had been passed. Other leaders of the coalition appear to be in accord with the Idaho Senator in the belief that the tariff bill will be passed by Feb. 15.

HIT BY BICYCLE AND KILLED

Pennsylvania Farmer Is Run Down by His Young Son.

WAYNESBORO, Pa., Jan. 2 (AP).—Merle Sprenkle, 35, a farmer residing near here, was dead today as a result of being run down accidentally last night by a bicycle ridden by his son, Junior, 14. He suffered a fractured skull which proved fatal while he was being taken to a local hospital.

The father was returning to his home from the residence of Washington Pike here, where he was employed, when he was run down by his son who was returning home on an errand for his mother. In addition to Junior, the wife and four children survive.

CAMPBELL IS SUED ON ALCOHOL PERMIT

Action Would Compel Him to Allow Withdrawals to Concerns He Suspects.

LEGAL PROOF DEMANDED

His Admission That He Cannot Establish Guilt of All Barred Concerns Is Basis of Case.

Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell's New Year's statement that he did not have "absolute proof" of law violation in every case in which he had refused to renew permits for withdrawals of alcohol caused an action to be brought against him yesterday in the Federal court by the Ammonal Products Company, at 248 Water Street, to test the legality of withholding permits without actual proof of guilt. The action is returnable Tuesday.

While Major Campbell made no statement with respect to the step taken by the Ammonal Products Company through its attorney, Colonel Lewis Landes, it is understood he feels secure in his position, as he has been three times cited for contempt of court in connection with similar matters and each time has been sustained by the courts in his refusal to renew permits.

Sees Court Rulings Violated.

Colonel Landes said Major Campbell had been quoted as saying that his refusal to renew a number of permits had been based merely on suspicion. Colonel Landes continued:

"The courts have uniformly held that suspicion is not a ground for the revocation of a permit, and it is very evident that the prohibition authorities are proceeding to disregard the decisions of the courts throughout the land in an attempt to prevent the withdrawal of alcohol. It is believed that the courts will reverse the actions of the administrator and direct the honoring of withdrawals.

"Major Campbell is further quoted as saying that, as a result of many investigations, the administrator disapproved the renewal of thirty-four permits to withdraw specially denatured alcohol for the year 1930 and a total of sixty permits were revoked by the administrator, all this without proof that any of these permittees had diverted any of this denatured alcohol for beverage purposes.

"Major Campbell's statement admits there was no 'absolute proof' that all the alcohol withdrawn presumably for manufacturing purposes had been diverted to 'beverage channels,' but, where there was no direct proof of guilt, revocation of or refusal to renew permits was based on investigations which convinced him that the permittees had conducted their business contrary to regulations and in a manner that did not inspire the government with confidence in their operations.

Charges Injury to Business.

"I can only assume from this statement that Major Campbell, who is a very efficient official, in his zeal to stop all possible leaks is bound to interfere with legitimate business, and even with the arts in which denatured alcohol is a prime requisite. 'Proof' therefore, can only mean, to my mind, the opinion, prejudice or personal bias on the part of Major Campbell or his minions."

In his New Year's statement Major Campbell held that his drastic reductions in alcohol withdrawal had not, in his opinion, interfered in any way with legitimate business. He said also that most of the permits for which renewals had been refused were held by persons or concerns selling all or most of their product to "cover houses," which he described as bogus concerns set up as legitimate business enterprises in order to cover fictitious sales of alcoholic products by apparent confirmations of orders for and the delivery of the manufactured products to themselves.

OFFERS "QUART" DRY BILL

Bay State Legislator Asks Bootlegger Status for 2-Pint Carrier.

BOSTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—State Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware, Democrat and a Congregationalist minister, today filed with the clerk of the House two prohibition bills. The first provided an appropriation of $2,000,000 to enforce the State prohibition law, while the second would make transportation of a quart or more of liquor "prima facie evidence of intent to sell."

Sawyer, in filing his two bills, said that the appropriation measure would be an amendment to the State enforcement law. The fund would be administered by and under the direction of the attorney general's office.

The "one quart" bill was designed, he said, to protect any person who might carry a legally prescribed pint of liquor issued on a physician's permit, but to put those who transported a quart or more in the class of bootleggers.

WHALEN OUSTS GENTNER.

Patrolman Had Been Held in Death of Woman in Hotel Last April.

Patrolman Frank A. Gentner Jr. of the Charles Street Station was dismissed from the force yesterday by Police Commissioner Whalen for his conduct in connection with the death of Mrs. Helen Coberg, wife of another patrolman, in the Mansfield Hotel in West Fiftieth Street, April 25.

Gentner, after a hearing before Magistrate Corrigan in the Homicide court two weeks after the death of the woman from injuries she received in a room under mysterious circumstances, was held for the grand jury on a manslaughter charge. Five months later, after listening to the testimony of twenty-one witnesses, the grand jury refused to indict.

$100,000 IN LIQUOR LYING IN THE BAY

Government Agents Uncertain What to Do About Stores on Two Wrecked Vessels.

Government officials were in a state of indecision and not wholly in accord yesterday over the disposition of $100,000 worth of liquor, $50,000 of which lies on the bed of Ambrose Channel in the hold of the sunken Fort Victoria of the Bermuda-Furness Line, while the other $50,000 worth is in the motorboat carrier Tenya, lying under fifty feet of water off St. George, S. I.

The Tenya was pursued by the police launch Gypsy and was beached by her crew on the rocks off Ninety-sixth Street, Brooklyn. She had been rammed, apparently, by a rock and, when being towed by a Coast Guard patrol boat, sank with all her cargo.

The United States Custom Enforcement Bureau takes the position that no seized craft is actually delivered to them until it is brought alongside a designated pier. The bureau holds the Coast Guard still responsible for the delivery of the craft and her cargo. Captain Randolph Ridgley, commanding the New York division of the Coast Guard, said yesterday:

"The Tenya and her cargo are in fifty feet of water and it looks as if they'll stay there."

Colonel W. S. Conrow, in charge of all activities of the Custom Enforcement Bureau in the harbor, asked if he did not fear that men in small craft would grapple for the liquor in the sunken Tenya, replied that was unlikely, as most of her cargo was under her hood and also because patrol boats in that vicinity would make life very unpleasant for "liquor fishermen." He pointed out also that any one who might succeed in fishing up the liquor could be prosecuted under the Volstead act for possession.

Gregory O'Keefe, special agent of the Treasury Department and intermediary between the Customs Enforcement Bureau and the Coast Guard in matters involving liquor deliveries, said he would not decide for several days what to do about the Tenya and her cargo.

GERMANS ARE SWINDLED.

Villagers Await $4,000,000 From Non-Existant Philadelphia Estate

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

EICH, Germany, Jan. 2.—Some two dozen inhabitants of this little village in Rhenish Hess are entering the new year in great hopes of receiving $4,000,000 from America. They have been informed that 150 years ago an ancestor named Becker emigrated to the United States and willed that the amount realized from the sale of his property should be paid to his German relatives 100 years after his death.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—The Becker estate claimed in Germany apparently is the same as the Baker estate, a swindle which has bobbed up periodically for the past seventy-five to 100 years. With variations, the estate is supposed to take in the entire eastern half of the city, running from the city line to the League Island Navy Yard. It is non-existent.

Seized Rum Boat Missing at Miami.

MIAMI, Jan. 2 (AP).—The rum boat Victory II, seized by customs agents near here Tuesday, was removed from the government boat basin last night and authorities were searching surrounding waters for it today. Agents believe that the boat's crew of three men, who escaped along the banks of the Miami River when the craft was seized, is responsible for its disappearance. A cargo of assorted liquors estimated to have been worth $12,000 was seized with the boat and was removed before the craft disappeared.

terms have expired and they were not reappointed.

"Three United States Attorneys' terms have expired who have been reappointed.

"Ten United States Attorneys have been appointed who were not old incumbents, and are new to the office.

"Five United States Attorneys have been nominated, and nominations are now pending in the Senate, four of which are reappointments, and one to succeed the present incumbent.

"Thirteen United States Attorneys' terms have expired or will expire prior to Feb. 1, for which no nominations have yet been made."

It was said today that several nominations of new United States Attorneys would be sent to the Senate by President Hoover on Monday.

Borah Appears Not Impressed.

When the Attorney General's statement was shown to him, Senator Borah intimated that he did not think the record was impressive from a dry point of view by pointing out that only one United States Attorney had been removed, and that five had resigned due to unsatisfactory conditions in their offices.

Previously the Senator had intimated that investigation would show that prohibition enforcement was lax in at least seventeen judicial districts. Attorney General Mitchell declined to discuss the criticism.

One of the particular problems confronting the Department of Justice, Mr. Mitchell stated, was the difficulty encountered in keeping the posts of Assistant District Attorneys filled with suitable men. Many assistants have resigned recently because they were attracted by larger salaries than those paid by the Federal Government.

Senator Fess is sponsor of the movement to assign to Senator Borah the chairmanship of the joint committee of Congress. The creation of the committee was proposed in a resolution passed by the Senate on Dec. 20. The measure is now pending in the House, where action on it is expected next week.

To the committee will be referred the report of the Hoover Law Observance Commission, which will recommend transfer of the Prohibition Bureau to the Department of Justice, the establishment of a unified border patrol, codification of dry statutes and, possibly, the creation of subsidiary courts to deal with minor offenses against prohibition.

McNab Report to Be Ready.

The joint committee also will have submitted to it voluminous data on law observance collected by John McNab, who was named several weeks ago to make a special investigation of the subject as the representative of President Hoover. Mr. McNab has been pursuing his labors here and elsewhere without any public disclosure of his work, but it is understood that he will be ready to make a report as soon as the joint committee has been empowered to begin its labors.

Expressing the opinion that the selection of Mr. Borah as the chairman of the joint committee would be an admirable one, Senator Fess said:

"It is my earnest hope that Senator Borah will consent to take this chairmanship. His recent discussion of the question shows that he is familiar with every aspect of the problem of prohibition enforcement. He could do a service for 'dry America' in the chairmanship of this committee that would redound to his credit. It is my intention to recommend that Mr. Borah be assigned to head the committee."

The Senate resolution pending in the House provides for a committee of six members—three Senators and three Representatives. As the resolution originated in the Senate, it is assumed that the committee of six will elect a Senator as chairman.

Borah on Buyer's Culpability.

The attention of the Idaho Senator was directed to a recent statement by Senator Jones that the Volstead act made the buyer of liquor equally guilty with the seller, and that supplemental legislation on this point, as provided by the Sheppard bill, was really not necessary.

"I think that under the present law you can get the purchaser," Senator Borah said. "Perhaps the law might be made a little more specific as to the culpability of the buyer. If it can be shown by the supporters of the Sheppard bill that enforcement can be made more effective by its passage, I would be inclined to support it."

Prohibition Commissioner Doran refused to confirm or deny the report that the Prohibition Bureau is working on a plan of reorganization of the permit system for controlling the use of industrial alcohol.

Dr. Doran declared, however, that a new menace to prohibition has been found in the increased production of corn sugar. Corn sugar distilleries are of more concern to dry-law officials than the diversion of industrial alcohol by bootleggers, he asserted.

Department of Commerce reports show that the production of corn sugar jumped from 152,000,000 pounds in 1921 to 968,000,000 pounds in 1928.

Jones Praises Hoover's Stand.

In a radio address arranged by The Washington Star under the auspices of the National Radio Forum, Senator Jones tonight denied that drunkenness had increased under prohibition.

Drinking had declined among members of Congress, despite assertions to the contrary, he added, saying that there was manifest everywhere a better spirit of cooperation toward making prohibition a success.

Senator Jones commended President Hoover's dry stand, and expressed confidence in the ability of the President to deal with the problem.

"I do not know what the attitude of our President was before prohibition became the law of the land," the Senator said. "He sets an example now that every good citizen should be proud to emulate."

The President preached and practiced prohibition, the Senator said, adding:

"He cannot work out overnight the task that confronts him. We must have patience and, instead of hampering, help. His personal example should be followed by every good citizen in his home, at social gatherings and in his business affairs.

"I talked with a Senator a short time ago. He said that before prohibition he had drunk his champagne and his highballs and enjoyed them, but that since prohibition he had drunk none and would not drink any so long as the law stands. That spirit is the essence of good citizenship.

Regrets Drinking in Congress.

"There are some Senators and some Representatives who drink. I regret it. They and those who hold office and have taken a special obligation to obey and maintain the Constitution and the laws of the land should do so. Their failure, however, does not excuse any citizen for violating the laws of his country.

"In my judgment a far fewer number of Senators and Representatives drink now than did twenty and thirty years ago. I have seen far fewer Senators under the influence of liquor during the last ten years than I did during the preceding ten years. They will get fewer and fewer as the years go by.

"It is commonly said by those opposed to prohibition that many Congressmen vote 'dry' while they drink liquor. That is no vaid argument against prohibition. I am sorry that it may be so, but this just emphasizes the strength of the sentiment of the people back home."

Senator Jones advocated teaching the "evils of intemperance" in the public schools. He said that such a law, recently passed by one State, was "a wise step."

"There should be, and there must be, cooperation upon the part of municipal, county and State officials with the national force," he continued. "The friends of prohibition must concentrate their influence to bring this about. Then we will see the goal in sight."

SING SING ENTRIES DROP.

1,306 Prisoners Received in 1929, Next to Lowest Mark in Decade

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The number of prisoners received at Sing Sing during 1929 was 1,306, Warden Lewis E. Lawes announced today, pointing out that this figure is next to the lowest one recorded during his ten years of duty there. The low record is 1,173 men, a total shared by the years 1923 and 1928. The record for the decade he announced as follows:

Year.	Prisoners.	Year.	Prisoners.
1921	1,490	1926	1,606
1922	1,360	1927	1,381
1923	1,173	1928	1,173
1924	1,431	1929	1,306

BARS FEDERAL MEN IN RUM SHIP INQUEST

Rhode Island Attorney General Lacked Names of Coast Guard Crew in Killing.

SEES MANSLAUGHTER BASIS

New London Base Will Make Liquor Craft in Which 3 Were Slain Available to State.

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 2 (AP).—Seven witnesses were heard today at the State's inquest, from which Federal officials were barred, into the deaths of three rum-runners on the motor boat Black Duck off here Sunday. The Federal officers were barred by Attorney General Oscar L. Heltzen, who said he did not consider that they had a right to be present to get information that could be used for a defense if an indictment should be brought against the crew of the Coast Guard boat 290, who shot the rum-runners.

The inquest, conducted by Mr. Heltzen and Coroner Perry B. Dawley, was continued until next week, probably Monday, at which time Mr. Heltzen said he hoped to have the difficulties that have arisen between the State and Federal authorities sufficiently ironed out so as to get the testimony of the Coast Guard crew.

Mr. Heltzen said he intended to confer with Federal Attorney Henry M. Boss at Providence, tomorrow, and if unable to get the information he sought, he would telegraph to the Treasury Department at Washington immediately.

The inquest was private and none of the testimony was made known. The Federal officers barred were Deputy Collector T. F. Finnegan of Boston, Customs Agent Joseph P. McKenna and Inspector George M. Murphy, who said they were conducting an investigation of the shooting for the Treasury Department. In discussing his refusal to permit the men to enter, Mr. Heltzen asked Mr. Finnegan if he had the names of the crew of the 290, and Mr. Finnegan replied that he did not have them.

The witnesses heard were Sergeant James Toomey and Privates Ray Rankin and Clifford Reistrick of the army medical detachment at Fort Adams, who received the bodies of the dead men when they were brought to the fort by the Coast Guard crew; Charles Travers of New Bedford, Conn., the surviving member of the crew of the Black Duck; Lieutenant O. D. Bowman, who was officer of the day at the fort when the bodies reached there; Medical Examiner Samuel Adelson of Newport, and Thomas Cassidy, a New York reporter who was understood to have testified that a Coast Guard officer at New London had told him the one-pounder of the 290, the gun usually used in firing a warning at rum ships, had not been fired at the time of the killings.

Mr. Heltzen said he had "plenty of testimony" that the one-pounder had not been fired.

"Manslaughter" Basis of Inquiry.

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 2 (AP).—Voluntary manslaughter is the basis of the State's investigation of the triple liquor smuggling killings in lower Narragansett Bay by the Coast Guard Patrol Boat 290, Attorney General Heltzen said today upon his return from Washington.

He said the State would try to establish, if the facts justified it, that the Coast Guard crew was criminally negligent and committed an action which resulted in the unnecessary deaths of the three men aboard the Black Duck early Sunday morning.

Mr. Heltzen said he was informed by Assistant Attorney General Benjamin M. McLyman that the Federal authorities were not giving the desired cooperation in the investigation. The shooting is distinctly a State's case, Mr. Heltzen said, but it is likely that the Federal authorities would remove it for trial to the Federal district court here should an indictment be found.

Sending Rum Ship to Rhode Island.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 2 (AP).—The Black Duck, liquor-laden boat on which three of the crew were shot to death and the fourth was wounded early Sunday morning, will leave the Coast Guard base here early tomorrow morning and arrive at State Pier, Providence, R. I., before 10 A. M., Lieut. Commander L. T. Chalker, executive officer of the base, announced tonight.

The boat, with its cargo intact, is being sent to Providence at the order of Emery J. San Souci, Collector of Customs at that port, Commander Chalker said. It is to remain under guard at the State Pier while Rhode Island authorities conduct an inquest and examine the craft.

Patrol Boats Searched for Liquor.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Jan. 2.—Lieut. Commander L. T. Chalker, executive officer at the Coast Guard base here, this afternoon ordered the thirteen patrol boats at the pier searched for liquor as an aftermath of the round-up of liquor stolen Sunday from the cargoes of the three captured rum-runners, the Flor del Mar, the Black Duck and the Roamer. The search was reported to have brought no more liquor to light.

Echoes of the brawl which took place in a local rooming house Sunday night, when liquor alleged to have been stolen by the Coast Guardsmen from the captured rum ships flowed freely, were heard in the police court this morning when Harry Stone, sailor at the submarine base, was fined $75 and received a suspended sentence of ten days in jail.

Charges against Mrs. Ruth Cummings, keeper of the rooming house, of operating a disorderly house were dismissed.

WESTCHESTER BOARD ACTS ON PROBATION

Favors Creation of County Bureau —Nicoll Approves Health District Plan.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The Westchester County Board of Supervisors went on record today as favoring the creation of a county probation bureau or department to assist in the probation work of the county and children's courts.

The board unanimously approved the recommendations of a special committee headed by Supervisor Pliny Williamson, which studied the probation needs of the county with the assistance of the National Probation Association and the division of probation of the State Department of Correction.

In accordance with the resolution adopted today, the board will determine what legislation will be needed to create the new county department and will include in the budget for 1930 the sum of $6,500 to be paid to a chief probation officer of the children's court, who will become the head of the county's probation department if it is created during the year.

The board also received today from State Health Commissioner Matthias Nicoll Jr. official approval for the creation of a Westchester County health district as recently approved by the Board of Supervisors. Dr. Nicoll also informed the board that the State would match the county's appropriation of $50,000 for the cost of operating the new health district in accordance with the public health law.

AUTO BUREAU RUSH GOES ON

Heavy Demand for 1930 Licenses Is Likely to Continue Several Days.

New York motorists who had failed to obtain their automobile registration plates for this year crowded the Motor Vehicle Bureau's offices yesterday.

At the bureau's headquarters, 220 West Fortieth Street, 100 additional inspectors and clerks were on duty. Lines of from twenty to twenty-five persons filed all day before the twenty windows to apply for the new licenses. State and city policemen were on duty to handle the crowds and answer questions, and it was indicated that the rush would continue today and for several days.

skunk." He denied that Cornell had obeyed the rules of the sea, saying:

"Cornell did not show his pennant in any manner so that the men on the rum-runner could see it. He did not sound his Klaxon.

Joseph Walker, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, said killings were "unjustifiable and a high-handed characteristic of prohibition enforcement."

He continued, amid applause:

"I accept the challenge issued by the Governor in his address to the Massachusetts Legislature. If the Legislature does not repeal the baby Volstead act, the people will. Massachusetts will never help enforce a law the repeal of which she has already voted by an overwhelming majority.

"The Constitution commands our respect, but the Eighteenth Amendment is inconsistent with the Constitution, and deserves no respect whatsoever.

"I say restore the Constitution. Give us again liberty and self-government."

Representative John J. Douglass aroused his audience by his denunciation of the killing and his demand for a change in the Constitution.

"We are not here to defend rum runners," he said. "We are here in protest against the action of a Federal department attempting to enforce an unenforceable law. We are here to enforce the command of God, 'Thou shalt not kill.'

Demands "Right of Existence."

"We are here to demand the right of existence from our government. The United States has no more right to kill a man unlawfully than has an individual. Men were slain feloniously Sunday morning by the Coast Guard of the United States. They were murdered."

He denounced the Coast Guard members for getting drunk on the liquor they had captured that day. He quoted a "high Admiral" as saying, "We mean business" in shooting down citizens without warning, and said that the Admiral took that stand only because he is backed by "a fanatical Anti-Saloon League and a fanatical Congress."

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, after criticizing the attitude of Governor Allen on the baby Volstead act, declared that he expected to be a candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket next Fall, and run on a platform of repeal.

Referring to the "murderous shooting," Mr. Fitzgerald said:

"Those three men were bringing in liquor for New Year's Eve celebrations. They knew it would be consumed by Governors of States, Mayors of cities, Selectmen of towns, judges of the Supreme Court, judges of the Superior Court and the municipal court—in fact, by public officials everywhere.

The Coast Guardsmen had no more right to shoot those men than would Boston police officers have to go into hotel dining rooms on New Year's Eve and shoot persons who were drinking at the tables, because the police would know that the people at the tables had violated the law in transporting the liquor there."

Senators Send Telegrams.

A telegram from Senator Metcalf of Rhode Island, charging that the bodies of the victims were robbed of money and jewelry, was read at the close of the meeting.

Senator Walsh of Massachusetts wrote, saying that he regretted being unable to attend the meeting "to protest against a shocking and apparently unwarranted shooting." He said that he would continue to press authorities in Washington for "whatever defense, if any can be made, of what appears to be the cruel and ruthless, if not murderous, conduct on the part of the officials."

The resolution adopted by the meeting, calling for an investigation by President Hoover, was as follows:

Resolved, That we, citizens of the United States, assembled this second day of January, 1930, in convention in Faneuil Hall, Boston, are deeply shocked and indignant at the attitude of Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman, who, as the responsible head of prohibition enforcement, has justified without examination the killing of three citizens by the Coast Guard in Newport harbor.

We believe that we have a right to respectfully demand that you, Sir, as President of the United States, order a thorough and searching investigation into the facts surrounding this deplorable incident, by somebody not connected with the Coast Guard or the Treasury Department.

By the continuance of such governmental practices as the incident above described, we can see nothing but the destruction of the liberties for which our fathers fought, for which free men have bled, from the time of the great charter.

We are not asserting the guilt of the Coast Guard, but we believe the attitude of the government as at present taken will justly give the impression that attempt is being made to suppress the facts and whitewash a criminal act of the worst kind, and all this for the enforcement of an unpopular, unnecessary and stupid law, which has no proper place in the Constitution of our nation and which all intelligent people know can never be enforced.

Be it further Resolved, That the original of the above resolution be signed by the chairman of the meeting and duly verified, and that it be sent to the President of the United States and a copy thereof to each member of the Congress, and Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman.

Maj. Gen. Clarence R. Edwards, former Commander of the Twenty-sixth Division, was quoted in the course of the meeting as saying that if the army were asked to enforce prohibition he and "every other gentleman" would resign from the service.

BRITISH GET SECRET PLANE

It Combines Features of High-Speed Fighter and Helicopter.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COWES, Isle of Wight, Jan. 2.—The construction of a new type of hovering airplane, combining the main features of a high-speed fighting craft and of a helicopter, has been secretly completed here and the machine has been delivered to the Air Ministry for official tests at Farnborough Airdrome.

The machine, known as the "Heligyro," was built to the order of the government from designs by Vittorio Isaaco, an Italian born in the United States. It is a single-seater, with the engine and tractor screw in the nose of the fuselage. Rotating planes, fitted above the fuselage on the lines of the Cierva helicopter, are said to introduce a new principle of flight, the action of which has not been disclosed.

LOELIA PONSONBY BETROTHED TO DUKE

FATHER IS CLOSE TO COURT

Sir Frederick Is King's Treasurer and Keeper of Privy Purse—Uncle Is Labor Party Leader.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The engagement was made known tonight of Miss Loelia Mary Ponsonby, daughter of Sir Frederick and Lady Ponsonby, to the Duke of Westminster, one of the best known peers of England. The couple are now in the Mediterranean. Although no formal announcement has been made, Lady Ponsonby confirmed the report this evening.

Sir Frederick is probably closer to the royal court than any man in England. He holds the titles of treasurer to the King and keeper of the privy purse and deputy constable and lieutenant governor of Windsor Castle. He edited the much discussed letters of the former Kaiser's mother, who was the daughter of Queen Victoria.

The Duke of Westminster, who is 50 years old, is a famous yachtsman, sportsman and hunter of big game. He owns more than 600 acres of valuable property in London alone.

Sir Frederick, by his publication of "Letters of the Empress Frederick," brought on himself the displeasure of former Kaiser Wilhelm, son of the Empress. The former Kaiser was said to have brought action against the publishers on the ground that the letters "reached England in a not unsuspicious manner and were not destined for publication." Later the action was denied by Wilhelm's own publishers. The Empress's letters referred to her son in highly unfavorable terms.

Sir Frederick is the elder brother of Arthur Ponsonby, Labor party leader. In the reigns of Victoria, Edward VII and George V, the Ponsonby family has been intimately associated with the British court.

The Duke of Westminster, reputed to be one of the wealthiest peers, has been married twice. He and his first wife, who was Miss Constance Edwina Cornwallis-West, were divorced in 1919, eighteen years after their marriage. In 1920 his Grace married Miss Violet Mary Nelson, daughter of the late Sir William Nelson. They were divorced in 1926, after which rumors were current that the Duke would marry Mme. Gabrielle Chanel, Parisian couturière.

The Duke succeeded his grandfather as second Duke in 1899. His other titles are Marquess of Westminster, Earl Grosvenor, Viscount Belgrave, Baron Grosvenor of Eaton in the county palatine of Chester, and a baronet. He was personal assistant to the Controller, Mechanical Warfare Department, Minister of Munitions in 1917; formerly Honorary Colonel of the Sixteenth Battalion, County of London Regiment; formerly a Lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards and aide de camp to Viscount Milner when the latter was Governor of Cape of Good Hope. He served in the South African War and the World War.

COUNTESS OF SEAFIELD IS REPORTED ENGAGED

Wealthy Scottish Peeress Said to Be Betrothed to Derek S. Herbert, Eton Athlete.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Society in London is awaiting the formal announcement of the engagement of the Countess of Seafield, one of the richest young women in England, to Derek Stuhley Herbert, who a few years ago was a noted athlete at Eton. The Countess is 23 years old and Mr. Herbert is 22.

For a time it was rumored that the countess would be married to Prince Nicolas of Rumania, younger son of Queen Marie, but this report proved baseless.

She is the youngest countess in her own right in England and owns thousands of acres of great estates in Scotland. Her family seat at Castle Grant, Invernesshire, has been rented by George J. Gould for the shooting season.

Nina Caroline Ogilvie Grant, the Countess of Seafield, is a member of a family that has been distinguished in the history of Scotland since early in the fifteenth century. The countess also is Viscountess Reidhaven and Baroness Ogilvie of Deskford and Cullen and Viscountess Seafield and Baroness Ogilvy of Cullen, all in Scotland. In 1915 she succeeded her father, the eleventh earl, in his Scottish peerages. He was thirtieth chief of the historic clan of Grant.

The countess inherited from her father the whole of the Grant and Ogilvy estates, embracing nearly half a million acres and yielding an income of more than $1,000,000 a year. She was born in 1906.

MARION MOORE ENGAGED TO WED

New York Debutante of Last Winter Is to Marry John W. Cross Jr., Son of Architect.

MARY BROOKS BETROTHED

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Small Moore of 4 East Sixty-sixth Street and The Gables, Roslyn, L. I., have announced the engagement of their younger daughter, Miss Marion Moore, to John W. Cross Jr., son of John W. Cross of this city and the late Mrs. Cross. Miss Moore is a granddaughter of Mrs. William H. Moore of this city and Rockmarge, Pride's Crossing, Mass., and the late Judge Moore, who for many years was one of the prominent exhibitors and officials of the National Horse Show. She is a niece of Paul Moore. On the maternal side she is a granddaughter of Mrs. John R. McGinley of this city and Pittsburgh and the late Mr. McGinley, who was a director of many corporations.

Her sister, the former Miss Jean Moore, was married last June to the Hon. Oliver Malcolm Wallop, second son of the Earl and Countess of Portsmouth of Barton House, Morchard Bishop, Devonshire, England. Edward S. Moore Jr. is her only brother. Miss Moore attended the Ethel Walker School in Simsbury, Conn., and later spent a year abroad in study. She was introduced to society in New York last Winter.

Mr. Cross is a grandson of Mrs. Howard Page of this city and the late Mr. Page. His mother, who died some years ago, was Miss Lily Lee Page, a belle of her time. The Pages come from an old Kentucky family. The father of Mr. Cross is a prominent architect. Mr. Cross is a grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. R. James Cross, who for many years lived at 6 Washington Square North. Through his paternal grandmother he is a member of the Redmond family of this city. He is a nephew of W. Redmond Cross and of Eliot Cross, who married the former Miss Martha McCook, a schoolmate of Miss Moore's mother. Miss Mary R. Cross and Miss Emily R. Cross are his aunts. The latter live with Mr. Cross and his father at 132 East Seventy-second Street. Mr. Cross attended Yale, where he was a member of the Chi Psi fraternity.

No date has been set for the wedding.

GEORGIA WARD WED TO ANDREW L. SMITH

Rev. C. J. McCormack Performs Ceremony in St. Patrick's Cathedral—Other Marriages.

The marriage of Miss Georgia Henrietta Ward, daughter of Mrs. George H. Ward of 33 West Fifty-fifth Street and the late Mr. Ward, to Andrew Leslie Smith of Buffalo, N. Y., took place on Wednesday afternoon in St. Patrick's Cathedral. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Christopher J. McCormack, assisted by the Rev. Henry Hammer.

The bride had two matrons of honor, Mrs. Bernard C. Deikman and Mrs. George E. Snider. Other bridal attendants were Mrs. Samuel Mackleduff, Mrs. Willard Oberender, Miss Marjorie Dewitt and Miss Elsa Gehlen. Marcelline E. Snider was the flower girl. Bernard C. Deikman was best man for Mr. Smith, whose ushers were Randolph Brandt, William Culverson, James E. Colgan and Samuel Mackleduff.

A reception followed at the Passy. Mr. and Mrs. Smith sailed yesterday on the De Grasse for a wedding trip abroad. On their return they will live in Buffalo.

TOURNEY FINAL WON BY YALE QUINTET

HORWITZ STARS ON ATTACK

Leads Game's Scorers With 12 Points—N. Y. U. Checks Holy Cross Easily, 40-21.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 2.—Rallying in the ebbing minutes of tonight's game, Yale cut down a two-point Georgetown lead and won the final of its annual basketball tournament, 26 to 23. The lead passed and repassed half a dozen times and neither five had more than a five-point margin.

Georgetown, with a 19-to-14 advantage, held this slender lead only momentarily in the second half. Georgetown led in closing the first half, 13 to 12. Eddie Horwitz, whose final basket in the last minute of play assured Yale's victory, was high scorer with twelve points and Don Dutton, Georgetown's scoring ace, with ten, headed the visitors' tallying.

The score was tied three times in the first half which closed with Georgetown taking the lead for the fourth time during the half when Mesmer tossed a long basket in the final two seconds of play. Albie Booth, Yale's football ace, was started at right forward and exhibited clever interference. In the final three minutes of the half his only goal gave Yale 12 to 9 lead. Both fives wrestled with a one or two-point lead throughout. Neither team used a substitute during the half.

Nanry Breaks Loose.

Georgetown forced the play in opening the second half and the fight under the Yale basket was terrific. Captain Nanry broke loose, went the length of the floor, and dropped a field basket, giving Yale a 14 to 13 advantage. Georgetown renewed the attack. Captain McCarthy retaliated with a short shot, placing Georgetown in a 15 to 14 lead.

Dutton's two tosses from the foul line jumped the score of the Washingtonians to 17. Yale smashed a team path to the Georgetown basket but a stiffening defense prevented a score. As Georgetown turned the tide toward the Yale basket, Beyer was counted out with four personal fouls. McGowan replaced him for the first substitution of the evening, but Shea broke through for a clever basket, giving Georgetown its 19 to 14 advantage.

McGowan cut the lead down one point with a toss from foul and Booth's pass to Nanry under the basket added two more to the Yale score. McGowan's long heave reached the basket, tying the score once more at 19-all, and Georgetown made its first substitution by replacing Shea with Dillon. Patterson of Yale was benched with four fouls, the veteran Linehan, recovering from a football injury, going upon the floor. Dutton broke the tie with a toss from foul, and Mesmer tossed another.

Lead is Cut Down.

With nine minutes left Georgetown's 2-point lead was sliced away by a quick toss from Linehan to Horwitz and the fives battled away at 21-all. Georgetown, under the Yale goal, missed two easy shots and Horwitz threw a basket from foul, placing Yale in the lead, 22 to 21. Linehan dropped a deft shot from mid-floor, increasing Yale's lead to 24 as the crowded Yale gymnasium echoed with applause.

Opening the final three minutes of play, Yale adopted the frozen ball policy. McCarthy broke through for a superb scoring shot as the last minute began. Horwitz placed the game out of danger by racing the length of the floor and, with ten seconds remaining, tossing the final field basket.

New York University nearly doubled Holy Cross's score in winning the consolation game by 40 to 21. The Violet team led at half time by 16 to 7.

The winners' scoring was well distributed among eight of the nine players they injected in the game, but Lefft led with twelve and Captain-elect Jerry Nemecek of the football team followed with eight. Charley Shuman had six. Substitute Farrell headed the Holy Cross scoring with seven.

Nemecek Tallies Twice.

Nemecek replaced Banks in the final ten minutes. He quickly scored two field baskets.

The Crusaders alternated their first and second teams, although the reserve five remained on the floor only six minutes. During the first half the scoring was consistently slow, both teams displaying a higher quality defense than offense. Captain Newblatt's checking and interfering were an outstanding feature of the New Yorkers' game.

After N. Y. U. had made two field baskets in opening the second period, Driscoll tossed the longest scoring shot of the evening from mid-floor and Desautels followed with an under-the-basket shot for Holy Cross. Lefft's side-shot basket was followed by two baskets from foul by Farrell and Nemecek's successful shot from foul, giving N. Y. U. a 23-to-13 supremacy. Holy Cross's belated spurt, including Desautels's basket from foul and Shanahan's floor shot, was quickly neutralized by Shuman's clever long toss for the hoop.

Two dashes by Lefft, each ending with a scoring shot for the basket and two quick baskets by Substitute Werner, who had just entered the play, featured the final five minutes.

PENN A. C. QUINTET BEATS N. Y. A. C., 41-33

GAME IS HARD FOUGHT

Masline, Landers and Laub Make Dazzling Shots in an Exciting First Period.

The Penn A. C., led by the speedy and accurate Joe Schaaf, former University of Pennsylvania star, triumphed over the New York A. C. basketball team in the opening game of the Eastern Athletic League's season at the Winged Foot Club House last night, 41 to 33. Schaaf scored more than half of his team's total—22 points.

It was a hard-fought game despite the advantage that the Philadelphia quintet had at the finish, though most of the battling by the Winged Foot players was done in the opening half. In that session the New York A. C. fought tooth and nail and thrice tied the score and twice held the lead.

In that session, also, the daring shots of Schaaf from the floor were matched by Johnny Masline, Landers and Laub of the New York A. C. and at the end of the first half the Penn A. C. held only a two-point advantage at 19 to 17.

The visitors warmed to their work in the second half and Schaaf could not be stopped by the Winged Foot defense men. Schaaf dashed in with long field goals and inserted accurate foul shots until the Penn A. C. slipped into a safe lead.

Schaaf made eight goals from the floor and shot six fouls. Thomas, the Penn A. C. centre, added seven points to the total, with three field goals and a foul. Masline, with four field goals and four fouls, and Laub, with three field goals and two fouls, led the attack for the New York A. C.

NEBRASKA SCORES OVER WEST VA., 45-19

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Jan. 2.—With Harvey Frace, forward, scoring frequently in the second half, the University of Nebraska basketball team toppled the West Virginia University mountaineers, 45—19, in the latter's opening game tonight.

After finishing at half-time behind, 16—9, the mountaineers spurted at the outset of the second period and reached 16—13, but at this point Grace started his work and the West Virginians could not stop the Nebraska offensive thereafter. Grace scored nine goals.

CAVANAUGH STAYS AS FORDHAM COACH

TEAM UNDEFEATED IN 1929

Eleven Made Fine Defensive Record—St. Mary's on Schedule for Next Fall.

Major Frank W. Cavanaugh, head coach of the Fordham football team, which went through the last season undefeated, was re-engaged yesterday by Fordham as coach for the 1930 season.

Major Cavanaugh and the university's athletic officials came to terms under which the Maroon coach agreed to a one-year contract. The Fordham coach's previous contract, which expired with the Bucknell game on Nov. 23, had been for three years.

Cavanaugh crowned his coaching regime at Fordham during the season just ended. In nine games played Fordham won seven and tied two and emerged as one of the few undefeated elevens in the country. Fordham defeated New York University, Holy Cross, Westminster, St. Bonaventure, Boston College, Thiel and Bucknell in the greatest season in the history of football at the Jesuit institution. Tied games were played with Davis and Elkins and West Virginia.

Record Made by Team.

The victory over Chick Meehan's Violet team was the first for the Maroon forces since 1925 and that over Boston College, where Cavanaugh coached before coming to Fordham, was the first triumph for the Maroon over the Eagles since 1918, when Frankie Frisch was a member of the Fordham eleven.

In his three years at Fordham Cavanaugh's teams have played twenty-six games, winning fourteen, losing ten and tying two. During the same three years Fordham has rolled up 377 points as compared with 288 for its opponents. In Cavanaugh's first year the present Fordham Varsity players were freshmen and the Maroon eleven of that year had its most disastrous season. Three contests were won and five lost.

The following year, 1928, Fordham won four games and lost five. It was during the season just concluded, however, that the work of Major Cavanaugh reached its climax.

Siano Re-elected Captain.

Fordham's 1929 team was one of the best defensive elevens in the country. Only 19 points were scored against the Maroon in its nine games and not a single touchdown was made through the Fordham line, all the rival goals being the result of forward passes.

Captain Siano, star centre and one of the best pivot men in the country, was a principal reason for the Maroon's great defensive record. Siano, characterized by Cavanaugh as one of the greatest players he has ever coached, was re-elected by the Fordham players as their leader for the 1930 season.

The schedule for next Fall includes games with New York University, Bucknell, West Virginia, Holy Cross and Boston College, while among the newcomers on the list are St. Mary's of California and Detroit University.

St. Mary's will play Fordham at the Polo Grounds on Nov. 15, marking the first appearance in the East of a football team representing that institution.

SASSE'S APPOINTMENT AS COACH CONFIRMED

General Smith Officially Designates Him to Succeed Jones as Mentor of Army.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Jan. 2 (AP).—Appointment of Major Ralph Sasse as head coach of football at the United States Military Academy to succeed Captain (Biff) Jones next Fall, was officially confirmed by General William R. Smith, superintendent of the Military Academy, late today.

The new West Point gridiron chief, who was graduated from the cavalry school at Fort Riley, Kan., and the staff school at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., has been Army line coach the last four years.

Jones will be stationed at the field artillery school at Fort Sill, Okla., after the end of the present scholastic year at West Point.

Army officials, stopping here briefly on their return from the unsuccessful Western invasion, announced the appointment of R. B. Semple of Cambridge, Mass., as football manager and J. P. McConnell of Booneville, Ark., as assistant manager.

Regarding the 34-to-13 defeat of the Army by Stanford, Coach Jones had little to say.

"Superior reserve material of the Stanford team, injuries and the inadequate preparation of our team were responsible for the defeat," Jones said.

F. A. Wandle, trainer, paid tribute to Red Cagle, retiring captain.

"You can say all you want about the records some of these football players have made during the last few years," he said, "but my hat's off to Cagle. During the entire four years of competition he has played every minute he has been in the game."

Wandle said some of his men lost from ten to fifteen pounds during the game. Murrell, star fullback, and Perry lost fifteen pounds each, and, according to the trainer, Maxwell reduced four pounds sitting on the bench under the California sun.

ILLINOIS FIVE BEATEN.

Notre Dame Eleven Wins Erskine Award; Pittsburgh Rated Second and Purdue Third

The Notre Dame football team yesterday was announced as the winner of the Albert Russell Erskine award, designed to be emblematic of the 1929 national college football championship. The award was made following a ballot among nationally known sports writers throughout the country. Notre Dame received a final total of 190 votes. The University of Pittsburgh was second with 41 and Purdue University third with 2.

Originally fourteen teams were nominated. The preliminary ballot on these resulted in Notre Dame receiving 777 points, Pittsburgh 442 and Purdue 210. The other teams received votes from 48 for St. Mary's down to one for Utah and Stanford.

In the balloting first place counted for 5 points, second for 3 and third place for 1 point.

Notre Dame, Pittsburgh and Purdue were selected as the field from which the committee of award, of which W. O. McGeehan was chairman, would make its final selection. The country-wide poll gave Notre Dame 179 votes and to this was added the solid eleven votes of the committee, making the South Bend college's grand total 190.

A State-by-State analysis showed that in all but six Notre Dame led on the first ballot. Missouri and Nebraska voted for Pittsburgh, Alabama and Kansas divided between Notre Dame and Pittsburgh, New Mexico split between Notre Dame and St. Mary's and Oregon divided among Notre Dame, St. Mary's and Purdue.

In making the announcement Chairman McGeehan said that the award had been received with such favor among the football experts and public at large that it would be continued.

The first ballot produced the following results:

Notre Dame	777
Pittsburgh	442
Purdue	210
St. Mary's	48
Tulane	22
Southern California	21
Texas Christian	10
Tennessee	8
Yale	2
Dartmouth	2
North Carolina	2

LONG BEACH GOLF WILL START TODAY

First Half of Field of 300 to Tee Off in Open Tourney in California.

HUNTER AND GOLDEN READY

McLeod Among Other Leading Players in First Division—MacDonald Smith Not on Entry List.

Special to The New York Times.

LONG BEACH, Cal., Jan. 2.—A field of close to 300 golfers is entered for the Long Beach open to be played tomorrow, Saturday and Sunday over the local municipal course.

The competition will be fifty-four holes. Half the field will play eighteen holes tomorrow and the other half will play eighteen Saturday. The low sixty-four and ties will continue in the final thirty-six holes the last day.

Most of the prominent players are not scheduled to play until Saturday. The best known of those in Friday's field are Fred McLeod, former national open champion; Willie Hunter, former British amateur champion, and Johnny Golden, holder of the New Jersey open title for the last three years.

Among the stars scheduled to tee off Saturday are Horton Smith, Craig Wood, Joe Turnesa, Johnny Farrell, Bobby Cruickshank, Bul Melhorn, Billy Burke, Al Espinosa, Tommy Armour, Harry Cooper, George Von Elm, Henry Ciuci, Al Watrous, Walter Hagen and Leo Diegel.

Although Hagen and Diegel are entered, there is a possibility they may not compete, because they are working together in a movie comedy on golf. Hagen won the Long Beach tournament last year.

Although local newspapers have carried a report that MacDonald Smith would play at Long Beach, the tournament committee has not received his entry. Reports from San Francisco, where the Long Islander spent the Christmas holidays, quoted Smith as announcing his first appearance in the Winter fields would be to defend his title in the Los Angeles open next week

MRS. MAGOON TAKES PINEHURST GOLF PRIZE

Wins Kickers' Handicap on Draw—Mrs. Keating Has Low Net and Gross With 86 12--74.

SALTUS CLUB WINS JUNIOR FOILS TITLE

Defeats N. Y. U. Fencers, 5 to 2, in Final to Capture Team Championship.

CETRULO TAKES 7 BOUTS

Is Star of League Tournament—N. Y. U. Beats Penn A. C., 5-1, in Semi-Final Round.

Fencers of the J. Sanford Saltus Club captured the Amateur Fencers' League of America junior team championship by defeating the N. Y. U. representatives, 5 to 2, in the final match of the competition at the Fencers' Club last night. Eight teams participated in the tournament.

Gerald Cetrulo of the victors was the individual star of the evening, winning every one of his seven bouts. Other members of the Saltus team were Marcel Pasche and Edwin Dow. The trio received gold medals, emblematic of the championship.

The Saltus representatives triumphed in impressive fashion in the preliminary round of the competition by disposing of the New Haven Fencers, 5 to 1. Cetrulo and Pasche won two bouts apiece and Dow broke even in two. Other preliminary matches were won by the Penn A. C., the Fencers' Club and N. Y. U. The Penn A. C. defeated the New York Turn Verein, 5 to 2; the Fencers' Club disposed of the New York A. C., 5 to 4, and N. Y. U. vanquished C. C. N. Y. by a similar score.

In the semi-final round the Saltus Club advanced at the expense of the Fencers' Club by the close margin of 5 to 4. Cetrulo won thrice and Pasche twice. N. Y. U. entered the final round by downing the Penn A. C., 5 to 1.

HARVARD SEXTET LOSES TO TORONTO

HARD FIGHT AT START

Second Period Proves Downfall for Harvard When Toronto Registers Three Goals.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Jan. 2.—Toronto University, which beat Harvard 3 to 2 last week, tonight took the Crimson into camp, 6 to 2, in a match at the Garden. Harvard's game was much improved but the Canadians were very much on their game.

Goal keeper Ames of Toronto had a busy night and his skillful work in the cage was needed. Speed and better stick work told the story in the second period, in which Canadians made three of their goals.

The teams fought hard for more than sixteen minutes before the first goal was scored. This was made by Harley in a fast line shot from an angle after taking a sharp pass from Marshall. Toronto outplayed Harvard generally during the period, and much of the time was a man shy because of penalties.

In the second period Toronto got three goals and Harvard two. Putnam tied the score at the start of the period, but Paul and Marshall followed with goals quickly. Garrison and McMullen made pretty solo goals midway through the period.

Toronto's fifth goal was spectacular, made after a rush of the entire length of the rink. Paul made the sixth goal on a similar play.

The line-up:

Toronto U. (6).		Harvard (2).
Ames	Goal	Draper

WALSH TO REMAIN AS YALE LINE COACH

Reported to Have Received Rise in Salary Though Contract Had One Year to Run.

IN DEMAND AS HEAD COACH

Had Several Attractive Offers Other Than That From Georgetown—Led Notre Dame Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 2.—Adam Walsh, Yale's line coach, will remain at New Haven another season, it was announced today by the Yale football officials. He was offered the position of head coach at Georgetown, but declined the offer.

He had received several other flattering offers and though he came to Yale under a two-year contract, it was stated at Yale that the university would not have stood in the way of his acceptance of another position.

No mention was made in the Yale statement of changed contract conditions, though it was reported that he had received a substantial increase in salary.

Walsh came to Yale from Santa Clara College, where he had been head coach following his graduation from Notre Dame, where he captained the eleven which contained the Four Horsemen.

CLARKSON SIX PREVAILS.

Wins Exhibition Game With Ashbury College on Ottawa Ice, 8-4.

OTTAWA, Ont., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Clarkson College of Potsdam, N. Y., defeated Ashbury College, 8 to 4, in an exhibition hockey game today. The Clarkson team has been in the city during the past few days practicing prior to the opening of its schedule in the United States.

Although lacking in condition, the Clarkson players put up a fine exhibition to defeat the Ottawa representatives.

ENGLISH CRICKETERS WIN.

Marylebone Club Defeats Otage Eleven at Dunedin, New Zealand.

DUNEDIN, New Zealand, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—The Marylebone Cricket Club, the English team visiting New Zealand, defeated an Otago eleven today by ten wickets. Frank Wooley, who scored 132 for the Marylebone side, was in deadly form with the ball, his averages reading: Six wickets for 50 runs and four wickets for 38 runs. The final score was: M. C. C. 322 and 5 for no wickets, Otago 166 and 160 (Knight, 51).

CAPABLANCA HELD EVEN BY VIDMAR

Rivals in Seventh Round of Hastings Chess Agree on Draw After 21 Moves.

SERGEANT DEFEATS TAKACS

Latter Loses Under Time Limit Rule—Miss Menchik Scores Upset, Beating Sir George Thomas.

HASTINGS, England, Jan. 2.—Pitted against Dr. Milan Vidmar of Yugoslavia, one of the three competitors likely to go through without a defeat, José R. Capablanca of Cuba scored his fourth draw in the premier international chess tournament, the seventh round of which was contested today at the Town Hall.

The Cuban master had the black side of a queen's pawn opening and was content to hold his position safe. After twenty-one moves had been recorded the pair agreed to a draw. This was the shortest game of the session. Capablanca, with a score of 5-2, retained his lead. Dr. Vidmar is still tied for second place with Sergeant and Yates, two of the British representatives.

Sergeant moved up by winning the black side of a Zukerfort opening from Takacs of Austria in thirty moves. Takacs, in a difficult position, allowed his clock to run and lost under the time-limit rule. Yates held his place by drawing a Ruy Lopez with Maroczy of Hungary in fifty-six moves after an adjournment. Maroczy, who had the white side, thus scored his seventh consecutive draw.

Miss Vera Menchik of Russia scored a surprise victory, winning from Sir George Thomas, champion of the City of London Chess Club. The English baronet defended irregularly against Miss Menchik's queen's pawn opening, and when the complications of the middle game set in, found himself in time difficulties. He resigned after thirty-one moves.

In the other game Price of England, playing the white side of a queen's gambit declined, lost to Winter of England in thirty-three moves.

REINFELD WINS AT CHESS.

Santasiere Retains Lead Despite Defeat in Marshall Club Play.

A. Edward Santasiere yesterday sustained his first defeat at the hands of Fred Reinfeld, New York University star, in the annual tournament for the championship of the Marshall Chess Club, but retained his hold on first place. Reinfeld adopted the queen's pawn opening, against which Santasiere set up a stone-wall defense. However, a premature king's side attack brought trouble to Santasiere and he lost in thirty moves.

Reinfeld tied Santasiere in total victories, but his score is still inferior. The leading scores: Santasiere, 6½—1½; Reinfeld, 6½—2½; Smirka, 6—2.

AMERICANS CRUSH RANGER SIX, 7 TO 1

McVEIGH BREAKS DEADLOCK

Long Shot in Second Session Gives Winners Lead—12,000 See Contest at the Garden.

By WILLIAM E. BRANDT.

The second Rangers-Americans game of the National League season at Madison Square Garden last night gave 12,000 excited spectators the season's most amazing spectacle, the star-spangled squadron playing inspired hockey and giving Les Patrick's blue shirts their worst defeat of the season. The score was 7-1. The last time the Americans and Rangers played each other, Dec. 17, the Rangers won, 6 to 2.

The Rangers scored first and held a 1-0 lead until nearly the close of the first period, when Sheppard's goal tied the count. The Americans broke the deadlock on a long shot by McVeigh early in the second period and from that moment held an upper hand that became a mailed fist before the finish.

Lionel Conacher's downtrodden command, with only four victories this season previous to last night, peppered the Ranger goal the rest of the middle period, but netted the puck only once. Connie himself punched the puck home in 10:51.

Americans on Rampage.

Then in the third period, when the Rangers tried overcrowding the Americans' defense in an effort to overcome the two-goal margin, the Americans ran wild. Breaking through the blue shirts after six minutes of even play, the Americans counted three goals inside of a minute to double their score and before the finish planted their seventh goal in the blue shirts' basket, thus registering a more decisive score than the Rangers' worst previous setback, the 7-2 trouncing at the hands of the Canadiens Dec. 19.

In the pell mell closing stages, with two Americans in the penalty box and five Rangers up the ice battering away at the puck, the superiority of the Americans in beating back the numerically stronger offensive forces verged on the sensational. Benny Grant, subbing for Worters in goal, made a wonderful showing, risking severe injury again and again as the blue shirts scrimmaged all over him and pressed him back against the posts.

The Americans, by their recent victories over Detroit and Pittsburgh, proved their rising tide of scoring strength, but because the schedule made them play a New Year's night game in Boston they stepped on the rink without much status as contenders for the evening's honors.

Murdoch First to Score.

Murdoch's score in 7:25 of the first period seemed the start of a Ranger fusilade, but it turned out to be the last Ranger bullseye of the evening. The tying score resulted from a plunge by Leo Reise, lanky American defense man, which took him close to the net, where he passed to Sheppard for the first Americans' goal in 18:40.

The most vital goal of the evening was McVeigh's long shot in 4:01 of the second period, a slant from the right boards which Roach's stick deflected, but not enough to clear the puck from the net. That spark touched off an explosion of star-spangled skaters.

The Rangers had Bill Cook and Keeling in the defense positions when the third period Americans' barrage commenced. With five forwards and a goalie the Rangers were all primed for a scoring outburst, but two swift skims up the ice by Normie Himes reversed their ideas. Himes scored in 6:47 and 7:18, each shot serenaded by ear-cracking roars from the stands.

Back came Johnson and Bourgault, but less than half a minute later Holmes and Patterson, two huge forwards, came plunging through. Holmes handed the puck to Pat, who sank it in 7:42.

The Rangers sent five men up the ice from that point on, and the fighting was furious around the Americans' goal for the rest of the game.

Perhaps because the initial face-off had for its honorary referee, Primo Carnera, the Italian Giant, the voice of the crowd sounded more like fight night than hockey. Primo received the first of the many ovations handed out by the crowd.

PIRATES DEFEAT OTTAWA

DETROIT, Jan. 2 (AP).—Detroit's Cougars came out of a slump here tonight to blank the league-leading Canadiens, 4 to 0, in a rough National League hockey game.

The Cougars held a slim one-goal margin for two and a half periods and their lead was threatened every minute. At the turning point of the final period, however, the Canadiens, who played a hard game with the Chicago Black Hawks last night, tired and the Cougars piled up three more goals.

Bill Beveridge, Cougar goalie, made a dozen sensational saves during the play, his work being mainly responsible for the shut-out victory.

The line-up:

Ottawa Bows to Pirates, 3 to 1.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 2 (AP).—Reinforced by the acquisition of Gordon Fraser and Jess Spring, the Pittsburgh Pirates won a furiously contested National League hockey game tonight, defeating the Ottawa Senators, 3 to 1.

Gagne put Ottawa in the lead with a goal, but Jarvis, White and Milks, backed by E. Smith, Briden and Lowrey, soon turned the tide for Pittsburgh.

The line-up:

Pittsburgh (3)		Ottawa (1)

Referees—Goodman and Corbeau. Time of period—20 minutes.

QUIMBY BREAKS EVEN.

Pizzola Also Divides Matches in English Billiard Tourney.

James Quimby and E. Pizzola each won one and lost one match in the English billiard tourney at Lawler's Manhattan Academy last night. Quimby first defeated T. Pennington, 300 to 288 in 46 innings and then lost to J. Williams, 300 to 216, in 32 innings. Pizzola lost his first match to E. Burns, 300 to 288 in 69 innings, and then took the measure of H. Allsop, 300 to 190, in 41 innings.

HOPPE WINS TWO MATCHES.

Beats Green, 50-26, and Latter by Same Score at 3-Cushions.

Willie Hoppe, who is meeting leading amateurs at three-cushion billiards at the Strand Billiard Academy, won two matches yesterday.

In the afternoon he defeated Joseph Green, 50 to 26, in 60 inings, having a high run of 6 to Green's 3. At night Hoppe vanquished Edward Latter, 50 to 26, in 44 innings. Hoppe's best effort was 7 and Latter's 4.

MATSUYAMA WINS TWICE.

Defeats Mussier in Afternoon and Ward in Evening Billiards.

Kinrey Matsuyama was the victor in two exhibition 18.2 balkline billiard matches Lawlers' Manhattan Academy yesterday. In the afternoon he defated L. Mussier, 250 to 21 in nine innings, aided by a high run of 169. In the evening he downed Dave Ward, 250 to 22 in ten innings with a high run of 74.

The world's three-cushion billiard championship will start tonight at the Palm Garden, Fifty-second Street and Eighth Avenue, with Johnny Layton, the defending titleholder, competing against Harry Schuler of Brooklyn in the opening match. Following that contest, Otto Reiselt of Philadelphia, former champion, will play Charles E. Jordan of Los Angeles.

This will be the first title billiard competition in three-cushions in more than a year and in all twenty-eight games will be played, two afternoon matches and two evening after tonight until the final day, Jan. 10, when one game will be held in the afternoon and the other in the evening.

The draw for the opening matches was made at a meeting of the eight players in the field with the tournament officials yesterday. Albert G. Cutler, who will referee, also was present at the meeting during which the rules were discussed. The first game will start at 7.45 o'clock and the other will begin fifteen minutes after the conclusion of the opener.

The only outstanding player missing from this tournament is Willie Hoppe who withdrew a short time ago when he failed to come to terms on a contract with the National Billiard Association of America, sponsor of the tournament. Allen Hall of Chicago was named to take his place.

Layton rules favorite to retain his crown. He has been a national figure in pocket billiards and three-cushions for more than twenty years. He has turned back Hoppe twice in final games in championship tournaments and he retained the crown by defeating Hoppe, 50 to 24, in twenty-four innings in the deciding game of the last tourney in Chicago.

Gus Copulos of Detroit, Tiff Denton of Kansas City and Augie Kieckhefer of Chicago are other players who will be seen in the tournament. The last named has been holder of the championship at eight different times. He is a left-handed shotmaker and one of the most daring in the game. Reiselt, who is pitted against Jordan in the second game tonight, is a former champion and has been prominent in three-cushion play for the last ten years. While Reiselt was ill recently, he has fully recovered and reports that he is in fine form for the competition.

All games will be at fifty points. The draw for tomorrow's contests will be made after the matches this evening. A total of $15,000 will be distributed among the players. Seating arrangements have been made at the Palm Garden for 700 persons.

CARLSON WINS WITH CUE.

Defeats Clements in National Class C 18.2 Billiard Tourney.

Only one match was played in the National Class C amateur 18.2 balkline billiard tournament yesterday. This was in the Brooklyn division at Lawler's Brooklyn Academy and resulted in a victory for Robert Carlson at 150 to 122 over James Clements. Carlson won in sixty-seven innings with a high run of 12 against his opponent's 14.

FANS RUSH TO RING AT WRESTLING VERDICT

Disorder Reigns for Fifteen Minutes When Referee Rules Hagen Defeated Romano.

George Hagen, former United States Marine, threw Mike Romano of Italy in 30 minutes and 30 seconds of their scheduled finish wrestling match which featured the card at the Ridgewood Grove Sporting Club, Brooklyn, last night.

The crowd, believing that Kid McPartland, the referee, had unjustly called Romano down when Hagen slammed him to the mat, rushed to the ringside and threatened McPartland and Hagen but before they could do more than make their protest a squad of ten private police swarmed among them and forced them back from the ring side.

However, it was fifteen minutes before order was restored and the remainder of the bouts on the program put on. Romano had substituted for George Calza, who had sustained a sprained wrist.

Romano, who tipped the scale at 203 pounds, was outweighed seventeen pounds by his opponent. Romano claimed that only one shoulder had been pinned to the mat, and the crowd agreed with him, thus precipitating the disorder.

In the forty-five-minute semi-final bout Hans Steinke of Germany and Wladek Zbyszko of Poland wrestled to a draw in a fast bout. Steinke weighed 240 pounds, Zbyszko 224. Another draw resulted in the match between Joe Komar, 235 pounds, and Vanka Zelizniak, 214 pounds. In the final match Jack Washburn, 223 pounds, threw Cyclone Ress, 192, in 17 minutes of a scheduled 30-minute bout.

ZOOM IS HOME FIRST BY 4-LENGTH MARGIN

THE SHOW OFF IS SECOND

Film, the Favorite, Finishes Last and Rider Is Suspended—Fire Chief in Easy Triumph.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2.—Harry Payne Whitney, whose horses won more money than those of any other owner in 1929, was the owner of the winner of the feature race at the Fair Grounds today. It was the first 1930 Whitney victory and Zoom was the horse to bear the light blue silks with brown cap. This gelded son of Pennant scored easily in the six-furlong dash but racing luck took much from the competition.

Following heavy rains the track was deep in mud and this cost Count Palatine dearly when making his stretch run. Closing fast with a winning chance he stepped into a soft spot, almost fell and lost several length. Previously Film, the favorite, had gotten off to a winging start only to bolt to the outside fence and bring up last. Jockey J. Cavens, rider of Film was suspended by the stewards.

Zoom had galloped along without any trouble and crossed the line four lengths ahead of The Show Off while Scotland was third, half a length behind the second horse. Count Palatine was next and then came The Southerner, Walter R. and Film. The winner paid $6.20 in the mutuels and was timed in 1:16 under 110 pounds.

The defeat of Film was quite a blow to the form players as he had a much better record than the other starters and was heavily backed. In four starts at Jefferson Park he had won twice and been second another time. He had bolted in his previous race at Fairmount but Cavens handled the gelding at Jefferson Park and apparently had him under good control.

Film was not the only favorite to fall, for Isostasy, public choice in the third race, ran out twice and finished ninth in a ten-horse race. Isostasy ran out first at the paddock turn, but as the race was at a mile and an eighth there was time for him to make up the lost ground.

This he did, moving up fast and getting into second position and it looked as if he would take the lead. But he again ran out on the stretch turn and Fire Chief went on to win easily by three lengths from Great Sport with Bourbon third. The time was 2:04 1-5. Jockey R. Russell was the rider of the winner, but his namesake K. Russell took riding honors as he scored a double when he was first on Zoom and then on Tempter in the sixth race.

FRASER, TURFMAN, DIES.

Secretary-Treasurer of Ontario Jockey Club Since 1898 Passes.

TORONTO, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—William P. Fraser, secretary-treasurer of the Ontario Jockey Club and the Canadian Racing Association, died of pneumonia at his home today.

Mr. Fraser was born in England and came to Canada in 1890. The following year he joined the Ontario Jockey Club and in 1898 he was appointed secretary-treasurer, which post he has held for thirty-two years. On the formation of the Canadian Racing Association he became secretary-treasurer of that body.

Mr. Fraser was credited with the remarkable continuous competition for the King's Plate, whose seventy-two years of unbroken competition can be approached in antiquity only by the Travers Stake at Saratoga.

Canadian Lawn Bowlers Lose Three New Zealand Matches

AUCKLAND, New Zealand, Jan. 2 (AP).—The touring Canadian lawn bowlers opened their New Zealand tour today and suffered defeat in all three matches played, losing to North Auckland by 165 shots to 117 and to two Auckland teams by 126 to 102 and 133 to 105 shots, respectively.

PAT SCORES EASILY AT AGUA CALIENTE

Drumheller's Entry Shows Way to Grand Dad in Feature at Six Furlongs.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 2 (AP).—George Drumheller's Pat won the featured race on today's card. Grand Dad, owned by the La Brae Stable, was second and Serenader, owned by I. T. Whitehill, was third.

The race was a six-furlong sprint and the time was 1:14. Eight horses comprised the field. Pat paid $7 to $2 in the mutuel machines.

Pat carried Serenader, the favorite, along at a fast clip in the early running, drew away when the latter began to tire in the stretch and won easily by two lengths. Grand Dad followed the pace closely and finished strongly on the inside, two lengths ahead of Serenader. The latter was tiring badly at the finish.

Curry to Meet Leiner.

Joe Curry and Maxie Leiner will meet in the star bout of ten rounds at the 212th Anti-Aircraft Armory tomorrow night. In the semi-final Pete Laratonda and Al Gwynn will box eight rounds.

Sports of the Times

Reg. U. S. Pat. Off.

By JOHN KIERAN.

THERE'S nothing left for the East to do except take correspondence school lessons in football. Their instruction charts will be post-marked "California." Those fellows taking to the tall timber on their hands and knees are football followers who, a month or two ago, were stating with lordly assurance that the Pitt Panthers were three touchdowns stronger than any other team in the country.

There were extenuating circumstances in the slaughter of the Panthers by the terrible Trojans. Few will contend that the score of the game is an accurate indication of the relative strength of the two teams through the run of the season. The warm weather undoubtedly had something to do with the complete rout, and the lay-off of a month after the end of Pittsburgh's regular schedule was a contributing factor.

But a year's lay-off and a burning tropical sun couldn't cover the difference between the teams as the game was played. The Panthers had no adequate defense for the Trojan air attack. Carnegie Tech and the Army kept reasonably close to their Coast opponents through two periods and then wilted. Under such circumstances, dragging in the change in climate as an important factor is fairly reasonable. But the Panthers went to pieces like the wonderful one-hoss shay, "all at once and nothing first, just as bubbles do when they burst." Even the most enthusiastic Californians wouldn't claim that their climate was magical enough to bring about such a complete change.

Concentration.

They know how to play football on the Coast. They have big fellows, good coaches and practically an all-year outdoor sports program. Those things help tremendously. But another thing that helps is the concentration of football material in a way that the East will never rival. Indeed, the probability is that any lessening of this advantage will come through a drop in the Coast concentration as population increases on the Western Slope and more colleges and universities spring up.

As a traveler hies westward he finds a greater number of colleges and universities that are entirely State institutions. In such institutions the tuition is free, and the living expenses for students are much lower than they are in the East. Naturally, the students flock to them in great numbers, and all the more so because they haven't the wide choice of near-by colleges and universities that is to be had in the East.

On the Coast a lad debating the choice of a university, with some slight thought of athletic opportunity and reputation, could probably limit his field to a dozen. But anywhere along the Atlantic Coast the collegiate competition is far keener and more extensive. This wider dispersal of student and athletic forces cuts down the average strength at any given institution.

Back to Earth.

But that's too technical to be dragged into a discussion that arose over a game in which the score was 47 to 14. The truth is that they have some advantages on the Coast, and they make the most of them. That they can win outside the limits of their own backyards has been proved time and again in track, rowing, football and other sports.

Oregon State and Stanford came East last year to mop up, and California made the overland trip to Franklin Field in the recent season and scored a triumph over a good Penn team. The Army, Carnegie Tech and the Pitt Panthers were run ragged on the Coast in the past few weeks. No one needs to be reminded that Washington and California crews have done well at Poughkeepsie, and that Southern California and Stanford track and field teams have beaten the pick of the East time and again on Eastern fields.

In the meantime, Notre Dame adherents should be permitted a few expansive grins. They have a good record in their own Coast encounters. They went through a hard schedule without a loss. They defeated the Southern California team that swamped the Panthers. Yes, indeed, the Sick Man of South Bend had a fairly healthy team in the field through the season of 1929.

Incidentally, the victory for the Eastern All-Stars over the Western All-Stars at San Francisco shouldn't be taken too seriously in a football way. Some of the best Coast players weren't available, due to the Southern California and Stanford engagements with the Panthers and the Army.

Cutting Classes.

The boxing overlords made a good move in crossing the "junior" classes off their official books. There was no more reason for recognizing those "in-between" classes than in having a championship at every pound on the scale. The ancient order should be allowed to stand until there is a final revision on a metric basis, which will come some day in boxing just as it will come in track and field sports and, for that matter, in all civilized computation.

There's another point that might be mentioned. Champions in boxing, with their demands for huge purses and guarantees and further stipulations that contenders must come in over title weight in many bouts, are really a drawback to the game. The fewer champions the better. It might be better to have but one championship, and that in the unlimited class. The titles are too often merely levers for prying extra money from boxing fans and giving as little as possible in return.

Out in the Cold.

Still another point is that there is often a debate over the real champion at any given weight, and the logical contenders are far from helpful in solving the puzzle. There's the light-heavyweight title that was abandoned by Tommy Loughran and the heavyweight championship tossed aside by Gene Tunney, not to mention lesser classes.

There is no world's heavyweight champion at the moment, nor any light-heavyweight champion, and the world rotates at its normal speed. Maxie Rosenbloom and Leo Lomski are due to exchange buffets at the Garden this evening in an endeavor to get a more definite rating on the light-heavyweight title claimants, but in all the proposals to clear up the claims in this class one finds no mention of Larry Johnson of Chicago, who recently tipped over Joe Sekyra in no time at all.

Johnson is out in the cold. That's no place to keep a willing worker in the Winter-time. Chicago fight followers insist that if they let Johnson in he'll make it hot for somebody.

BOWMAN RE-ELECTED UNITED HUNTS HEAD

No site for the staging of the Spring meeting of the United Hunts race meet this year has as yet been selected by the United Hunts Racing Association, it developed yesterday at the annual meeting at the association's offices, 250 Park Avenue. Because of this fact the closing of entries for the Initial Handicap, the big feature of the Spring session, has been postponed from next Monday until Jan. 15. The site of the meeting is expected to be announced one week from today.

John McEntee Bowman again was named president, F. Ambrose Clark was re-elected vice president and H. A. Buck re-elected secretary. Lewis E. Waring was elected treasurer to fill the place of the late Edward M. Weld and James Simpson Jr. of Chicago was elected a director in place of Mr. Weld.

MICHIGAN SUSPENDS SHIRES

State Board Acts After Hearing Evidence on Scheduled Bout.

DETROIT, Jan. 2 (AP).—Charles Arthur Shires, White Sox first baseman, was suspended from boxing in Michigan rings by the State Boxing Commission today.

The action was taken after the commission had heard evidence regarding a bout which was to have been staged last night with Battling Criss of Rockwood, Mich., as an opponent. The commission voted a recommendation to the National Boxing Association that Shires be suspended in States controlled by that body.

Northampton Rugby Union Loser.

LONDON, Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—Northampton, playing at home, lost a Rugby Union match today to London Hospital by 12 points to 3.

CARNERA SHOWS SPEED.

Primo Carnera, 285-pound Italian boxer, engaged in his first American workout yesterday. The huge European boxed two rounds with Romero Rojas before a packed gallery at Stillman's gym.

Carnera impressed boxing followers with his skill and speed. Despite his bulk the Italian demonstrated that he is a fairly accomplished boxer, and he gave evidence of hitting power when he forced Rojas to cover under the force of a heavy right-hand uppercut to the body.

Mack Sees Slump in Boxing.

BOSTON, Jan. 2 (AP).—Large arenas, with their heavy overhead expenses, and exorbitant demands of outstanding boxers caused the boxing sport to slump alarmingly during the last year, according to the annual survey of Eddie Mack, Boston Garden promoter.

BUSH SIGNS WITH CUBS.

Pitcher Reported to Have Received a Substantial Increase.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Guy Bush, right-handed pitcher, who scored the Cubs' only victory over the Athletics in the last world's series, today signed a two-year contract with the National League champions. The salary involved was not revealed, but was said to represent a substantial increase.

GIANTS WILL PLAY 23 GAMES IN SPRING

16 WITH THE WHITE SOX

Opening Engagement Set for March 6 Against University of Texas at Austin.

By JOHN DREBINGER.

Another long siege of training but one marked by a decided curtailment in the number of exhibition games has been mapped out by Manager John McGraw for the Giants this Spring, according to announcement yesterday by Secretary Jim Tierney. The vanguard of the squad, consisting of the batterymen and possibly several of the rookie fielders, will report at the San Antonio encampment on Feb. 15. Two weeks later all the others will report, but in all the time remaining up to the opening of the championship season only twenty-three exhibition games will be played.

The exhibition schedule is studied with innovations. Sixteen of the twenty-three games will be played with the White Sox, who also will train at San Antonio. Nine of these will be staged while the teams are training in Texas, five more will be played during the journey northward and the final two will be played on Comiskey Field in Chicago on April 12 and 13. On the following day the Giants will pay their annual respects to West Point to bring their exhibition season to a close on April 14.

Mexican Trip in Doubt.

Contrary to expectations there may be no trip into Mexico this year. Last year, following a two-day excursion to Laredo on the Mexican border, McGraw, who has a penchant for carrying his baseball into distant lands, appeared quite enthusiastic over the idea of crossing the border this year for a trip extending seven or eight days and taking in Mexico City and several other Mexican cities.

McGraw, however, seems to have some of that enthusiasm, though there there is still a possibility a short invasion may be arranged later in as much as the Giants' exhibition schedule has no games booked between March 16 and March 28.

Aside from the White Sox the Giants will meet no other major league teams with the exception of the Indians, whom they will face in two games in New Orleans on April 1 and 2.

Route of Giants Northward.

Five days later the Giants will rejoin the Sox for the trip north, which will take the McGrawmen through new fields, as four stops will be made in Indiana, games having been booked for Evansville, Terre Haute, Indianapolis and Fort Wayne, and one in Toledo before the series comes to a close in Chicago.

The schedule follows:

March 6, University of Texas at Austin, Texas; 8 and 9, White Sox, at Houston, Texas; 13, 14, 15, 16, 28, White Sox, at San Antonio; 29, White Sox, at Fort Worth; 30, White Sox at Dallas; 31, Shreveport at Shreveport, La.

April 1 and 2, Indians at New Orleans; 5 and 6, Memphis at Memphis, Tenn.; 7, White Sox at Evansville, Ind.; 8, White Sox at Terre Haute, Ind.; 9, White Sox at Indianapolis, Ind.; 10, White Sox at Fort Wayne, Ind.; 11, White Sox at Toledo, Ohio; 12 and 13, White Sox at Chicago; 14, West Point at West Point.

Tilden Gains Final Round; Defeats Boussus in France

PARIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—Bill Tilden defeated Christian Boussus, young French southpaw, in the semi-finals of the French international covered-court tennis championships today by scores of 6—8, 6—2, 8—6. The American will meet his old rival, Jean Borotra, in the final on Saturday.

ROSENBLOOM BOXES AT GARDEN TONIGHT

Maxie Rosenbloom and Leo Lomski will clash for the fourth time when they engage in the feature bout of ten rounds at Madison Square Garden tonight. The bout tonight will serve in the nature of a rubber contest for the battlers, each of whom is highly regarded as a candidate for the light-heavyweight crown, vacated last Summer by Tommy Loughran.

Rosenbloom carried off the decision over Lomski in the first battle, nearly three years ago, but Lomski evened the score when he outpointed the Harlem favorite in a return match at the Queensboro Stadium in 1928. Their third bout ended in a draw.

Because of the imposing record he has piled up during the past year, Rosenbloom has been installed a favorite at 6 to 5 to conquer the Aberdeen (Wash.) entry. But Lomski is not without his backers, who believe that the Western light-heavyweight will crush Rosenbloom with his heavy body attack, the odds having been from 8 to 5.

The semi-final bout between Georgie Courtney and Joe Banovic, also listed for ten rounds, promises much action. The Oklahoma light-heavyweight is eager to score a decisive victory over Banovic in the hope of advancing himself among the contenders for Loughran's discarded crown.

Canada Lee and Arturo Scheckles, welterweights, will meet in the first ten round bout. A six-rounder between Eddie Reilly and Marty Gold, and a four-round battle between Sammy Binder and Sammy Fertita complete the card.

Willie Garafola will meet Larry Marinucci in the main bout of ten rounds at the 106th Infantry Armory, Brooklyn, tonight. In the semi-final Jimmy Abbott will oppose Johnny Ciccarelli.

Tommy Door and Frank Merkt will collide in the feature contest of ten rounds at the Twenty-second Medical Regiment Armory tonight. The semi-final will bring together Johnny Huber and Jack Sharkey, west side lightweight.

SCOTT OR CAMPOLO WILL MEET SHARKEY

Boston Heavyweight Designates These Two as Prospective Opponents in Miami Bout.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 2.—After a four-hour conference tonight with William F. Carey, president of the New York Madison Square Garden, Jack Sharkey, American heavyweight claimant to the title, tonight declared that he had signed a contract with Carey to meet either Phil Scott, the English champion, or Victorio Campolo, the Argentinian, for a bout in Miami on Feb. 27.

Carey wanted Sharkey to meet Tuffy Griffiths, but the Boston battler declined to meet Griffiths in Miami. Sharkey said that he had been approached and was considering a bout with Griffiths in Chicago during the Summer which will be promoted by Jack Dempsey.

Sharkey would prefer to meet the Argentinian in Miami this Winter as he believes that Campolo, a big favorite in South America, would help the gate receipts.

Tomorrow night Sharkey will entrain for Miami for a vacation before he starts training for the bout. Before Sharkey leaves Boston for Florida he and his manager will hold another conference with Carey and the definite opponent will be then determined.

Sharkey will receive a flat guarantee of 27½ per cent of the gate receipts for the Miami contest.

Neither Carey nor Sharkey said that the bout will be for the world's heavyweight championship.

Sharkey plans to stay away from any active work for about three weeks when he will return to Boston for a short stay before going back to Miami for his final training.

BENNETT STOPS HAMBY.

Jim Bennett, 180 pounds, representing the regular army, knocked out Ralph Hamby, 179, of Fort Jay in the second round of their scheduled eight-round feature bout at the 102d Medical Regiment Armory last night. In the semi-final eight Paddy Quinlan, 169, Fort Jay, received the decision over Irving Spiegler, 170, of the 212th Anti-Aircraft Regiment, while the third scheduled eight-rounder terminated in the first round when Bill Higgins of the 106th Infantry stopped Jack Grace of Fort Slocum.

In the first scheduled six, Georgie Mumford, 369th Infantry, knocked out Tommy O'Keefe, 102d Medical Regiment, in the fourth round. Teddy Anderson of Mitchel Field stopped Dave Cooke of the 102d Medical Regiment in the second round. The opening four-rounder went to Nick Pizollo when he gained the verdict over Dick Di La Cruse.

CUBS RELEASE GONZALES.

Veteran Cuban Catcher Becomes a Free Agent.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Mike Gonzales, veteran Cuban catcher of the Cubs, received his unconditional release today. Gonzales broke into the major leagues in 1914 when he joined the Cincinnati Reds. Subsequently he was with the St. Louis Cardinals, New York Giants and Cubs. He served fourteen seasons in the majors, serving two years with St. Paul but returning to Chicago in 1925.

The veteran did most of the catching for the Cubs last season when Gabby Hartnett's arm went lame. Because he has served at least ten years in the majors, Gonzales automatically becomes a free agent.

TITLE SWIMS TODAY FOR SCHOOL TEAMS

George Washington High to Defend Senior P.S.A.L. Crown Against Erasmus Hall.

PROSPECT IN JUNIOR FINAL

To Encounter Henry O'Neil Natators—Hamilton-Lane Game Tops the Basketball Program.

The annual P. S. A. L. city swimming team championships and the Alexander Hamilton-Franklin K. Lane basketball game in the Brooklyn P. S. A. L. competition are the feature events on today's local scholastic program.

At the Knights of Columbus pool, Fiftieth Street and Eighth Avenue, tonight, George Washington High will defend its senior high school championship against Erasmus Hall and Prospect Junior High will meet Henry O'Neil Junior High for the laurels in that division.

George Washington and Erasmus both were undefeated in nine dual meets in the New York and Brooklyn sections of the Fall P. S. A. L. competition, respectively. Prospect won every one of its eight starts in New York and Henry O'Neil triumphed in all of its six meets in Brooklyn.

The Hamilton-Lane court clash will conclude the Brooklyn season. It will be played in the Erasmus gymnasium. The winner will be tied with New Utrecht in the final standing and will play the latter quintet for the Brooklyn title at the Madison High gymnasium tomorrow.

Among the other games today are: James Monroe Evening High at Theodore Roosevelt Evening High, Harlem Evening High at Morris Evening High, Hoboken Academy at Brooklyn Friends, Jersey City Prep at Boro Hall Academy, and East Side Evening High at New Lots Evening High. Thomas Jefferson High of Brooklyn will go to Patchogue to encounter the Patchogue High five.

Play-offs in the Bronx and Queens P. S. A. L. basketball tournaments are booked for tomorrow. Bryant and Newtown will battle for the Queens title in the Jamaica High gymnasium and De Witt Clinton will face Theodore Roosevelt for the Bronx laurels in the Monroe High gymnasium.

HOME FOR BATTLE, HEFLIN 'PITIES' FOES

Mourns for 'Misguided 27' Who Exiled Him From Party, Then Promises to 'Teach Them.'

SURPRISE SET FOR TONIGHT

Senator Chuckles Over 'Dark Secret' to Be Revealed at State-Wide Meeting in Birmingham.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 2.—Democrats and "Hoovercrats" from every part of Alabama opposed to the Democratic Executive Committee's action in barring from the party primary Senator J. Thomas Heflin and Judge Hugh A. Locke, candidates respectively for United States Senator and Governor, will centre in Birmingham tomorrow for the State-wide mass meeting, at which both men will speak.

Senator Heflin arrived here today from Washington to confer with leaders of his Senatorial campaign in which he will run as an "Independent Democrat."

The Senator appeared cheery about everything and everybody except the Democratic State Committee, especially the twenty-seven who voted to bar him from the party. Terming them the "misguided twenty-seven," with mournful mien he said:

"I am sorry for them. How pitiful is their lot! How ashamed they must feel when they meet good men on the streets!"

"And let it not be said that old Tom will not do his part toward teaching them," he went on, with a twinkle of fire in his eye. "Old Tom will show them the proper way to the right."

And then the Senator laughed heartily, not one of those ordinary chuckles for which he is famous but a deep, rumbling laugh which caused the front of his white vest to crease and wrinkle in places.

"And I hear that Mussolini and the Fascists have reached out into dear old Alabama too," said the Senator. "Ah, that is too bad.

"But we'll take care of those pretty fellows, never fear. I am planning to demand a Senatorial investigation into their goings on."

The Senator's anonymous and threatening mail has dropped off lately, he said.

"And that is disappointing," he chuckled, "for I can hardly start a day properly without at least one letter threatening to take my life."

The most vivid of all the threatening letters he ever received was written in blood with a huge bloody hand imprinted on the paper, he said.

"I don't know what kind of blood it was—probably blood of some jackass." And he laughed again.

As for Friday night's meeting, the Senator had little to say. He chuckled all about the room when he was asked for his attitude toward the party which has disowned him.

"We'll see about that, we'll see about that," he repeated. "Right now I'm not ready to say just what I'm going to say about the poor misguided twenty-seven.

"That's a dark secret—a secret which will be revealed at Friday's meeting.

"I'd like for each of the twenty-seven to be present; I'll have a suggestion for them—no, I can't tell what that suggestion is."

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Jan. 2 (AP).—The Jefferson County Democratic Executive Committee today censured the State Central Committee for its action of Dec. 16 in barring as candidates from the Democratic primary persons who did not support the party's Presidential nominee in the last general election.

LINDBERGH IS COLD TO PLAN FOR STATUE

Tells St. Louis Mayor He Prefers to Be Remembered as "The Boy Who Flew the Air Mail."

ST. LOUIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—Rather than be memorialized in stone as the hero of the New York-to-Paris flight, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh would prefer to be remembered in St. Louis as "the boy who flew the air-mail."

While expressing no particular objection to a movement to erect a statue to him in a city park here, the famous flier expressed this preference in a telephone conversation today with Mayor Victor J. Miller, prior to leaving with Mrs. Lindbergh on their westward cross-country flight.

"He neither endorsed nor seriously objected to the statue," said Mayor Miller, originator of the idea, who added that he has not decided whether to abandon the proposal. The Mayor's idea was to erect the memorial by small popular subscriptions and he had received several donations, including $1 mailed in by a youth from Saginaw, Mich.

ARTISTS TO WED HERE.

License Issued to Leopold Seyffert and Miss Grace J. Vernon.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—A marriage license was issued in New York today to Leopold Seyffert, portrait painter of this city, and Miss Grace J. Vernon, an artist, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Vernon of 904 Atwood Road, Overbrook, Pa. Mr. Seyffert said that the marriage would take place in New York this month.

He and the former Miss Annie Fleck, an artist, were divorced here on Nov. 25.

In 1925 the Logan Medal and $1,000 were awarded to him for the portrait, "Myself." At that time he was president of the Art Institute of Chicago.

Cuban Bankers to Confer.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

HAVANA, Jan. 2.—President Machado will confer tomorrow morning with representatives of banks having branches in Cuba. They are expected to discuss a financial plan for the Sugar Export Corporation, as well as for financing the next sugar harvest.

CITY BREVITIES.

Frank H. Sherin, superintendent of the fourth floor at R. H. Macy & Co., was the guest of fellow employes at a dinner at Will Oakland's, Fifty-first Street and Broadway, last evening.

Winter classes in home nursing and first aid given annually by the New York Chapter, American Red Cross, will open the week of Jan. 13, according to an announcement just given out by Miss Frederika Farley, director of teaching service.

The Textile Trade Travelers' Association of the United States will hold a dinner dance tomorrow evening at Hotel Astor.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

Mengelberg Interprets Mozart.

Mr. Mengelberg, recovered from his recent regrettable indisposition, conducted the concert given by the Philharmonic-Symphony Society last night in Carnegie Hall. The soloist was Harold Samuels, the pianist, who on this occasion played, not Bach, but Mozart. Mozart composed, among other works, the piano concerto in A major. Mr. Samuel's performance of this work was the feature of the program, or at least of the first half of it.

The second half was originally announced to begin with the first performance in America of a new work, "Six Symphonic Epigrams," by the Dutch composer, Willem Pipjer, but the late arrival of the parts made impossible the performance of the novelty this week. Hence, as a predominating feature, in place of the ultra-modernism and atonality of Pipjer, made known to us in seasons past by a symphony which Pierre Monteux performed, the pellucid performance of Mozart by Mr. Samuels.

An extraordinary symptom of the return to classicism, which has made the music of Bach such an important factor in latter-day program, is the recrudescence of the Mozart piano concertos. Mr. Iturbi, Mr. Gabrilowitsch and now Mr. Samuels have elected to play Mozart at symphony concerts, a proceeding which, a few years ago, would have been attempted once or at most twice a season, but certainly not three times. How is it that these Mozart concerti, which have nothing to do with the modern prescriptions for success in the concert hall, grow, apparently, on performers and audiences? There is no sumptuous or frenetic orchestration, no pulsing climaxes, no hair-rising passages of bravura to leave the audience agape, nothing but very pure Mozart melody, very clear Mozartean form and orchestration. And the audience exults. It exulted last night with Mr. Samuels.

He plays the A major concerto with a simplicity that would baffle lesser musicians, with the sincerity of the artist as sure of himself as a man as he is sure of himself as an interpreter. Mr. Samuels, it might be said, did not once raise his voice. He sang the melodies deliciously, his legato playing being as remarkable for its smoothness—the smoothness that Mozart sought and commended—as his staccato was crisp and clean. His fast movements sparkled, and his slow movements sang with an intensity of beauty and a contained loveliness which gave the music its complete due, while there never was overemphasis or disproportion. This was a rarily simple, completely sincere and masterly performance of a very beautiful piece of music, each of the Mozart piano concerti having beauties all its own. The same form, the same general scheme of instrumentation prevail in the A major as in the E flat concerto played by Messrs. Iturbi and Gabrilowitsch. But the A major concerto is another world of beauty, and Mr. Samuels initiated his audience into this glamorous realm with a fineness of feeling and a perception of symmetry that once more acclaimed Mozard as a unique genius in the whole literature of music.

Mr. Mengelberg opened his program with the D major suite, of Bach. His fast movements and his dance movements had the sturdiness, the two-fisted energy and jollity, of the good old Bach, who wrote great music as coolly as a carpenter turns out his daily handiwork or a shoemaker addresses himself to his last. The air, almost too celebrated, which Wilhelm popularized through his transcription, was not so fortunately stated, for the conductor was inclined to drag the tempo, and the cadences were sentimentalized. This oily sentimentality is anything but advisable in Bach, and by so much was the beautiful air disfigured. Few, indeed, are the conductors who are willing to let such a passage speak for itself, and Mr. Mengelberg, last night, was unhappily not an exception to the rule. Elsewhere his vigorous rhythms and his grasp of the music did it honor.

The orchestra applauded this performance heartily, as it was later to applaud two popular works of Richard Strauss: the brilliant and sadistic dance of Salome from the opera of that name and the tone-poem, "Don Juan."

60 SHIPS SAIL TODAY FOR NAVAL EXERCISES

Guantanamo and Canal Zone Are to Be Scenes of the Annual Winter Exercises.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Sixty vessels of the navy will sail from their home ports on the Atlantic Coast tomorrow for annual Winter exercises and manoeuvres in Southern waters.

Seven battleships, the New York, Oklahoma, Nevada, Wyoming, Arkansas, Utah and Florida, and eight light cruisers, the Detroit, Trenton, Richmond, Memphis, Cincinnati, Milwaukee, Raleigh and Concord, with seventeen destroyers of the scouting fleet, will meet at Hampton Roads and leave next Wednesday for Guantanamo, Cuba, engaging in tactical exercises en route.

Mine Squadron One, headed by its flagship, the Camden, and two submarine divisions of the control forces will proceed to the Canal Zone while the nine auxiliary ships of Train Squadron One, will go to Guantanamo.

The airship squadrons of the scouting fleet will leave tomorrow from Hampton Roads, the Wright, Sand Piper and Teal acting as tenders for the twenty-four planes that will fly south to participate in the manoeuvre. Forty-seven other planes attached to the battleships and light cruisers of the scouting fleet will also take part in the manoeuvres.

These vessels will be joined in March by thirty-two vessels of the battle fleet, now in the Pacific, which after transit of the Panama Canal, will engage with the scouting fleet in fleet manoeuvres, first in the Caribbean and then at Guantanamo. These exercises will not be connected directly with any defenses of the Panama Canal.

Both the battle and scouting fleets will visit New York after the manoeuvres for a period of leave and liberty for officers and men from May 8 to 18. Then, after a fleet concentration at Hampton Roads, the battle fleet will return to the Pacific Coast.

MUSIC NOTES.

Harold Samuel is to appear at the Town Hall next Tuesday afternoon playing the piano accompaniment to Schubert's "Dichterliebe" cycle at the concert of a visiting English baritone, Keith Falkner.

The Mozart Trio, whose members are Marion Carley, Lillian Fuchs and Nancy Wilson, will give a concert next week at the Plandome Village Hall, Manhasset, L. I.

Ilse Emge, soprano, will appear Saturday of next week at the Chalif Hall, her songs including a group by Erich Riede of the Metropolitan, accompanied by the composer.

PONSELLE TRIUMPHS IN 'DON GIOVANNI'

Rouses Audience to Great Enthusiasm in Her Portrayal of Mozart's Donna Anna.

A REVELATION IN ROLE

Gigli's Exquisite Singing of Ottavio One of the Features of a Splendid Performance.

Rosa Ponselle added another opera portrait last night to her list of notable achievements when as Donna Anna in Mozart's "Don Giovanni" at the Metropolitan Opera House she roused her audience to demonstrations of enthusiasm which recalled the legendary days of the opera gods of a past generation. Such singing as she accomplished in a rôle far removed from the vocal and dramatic style to which she is accustomed was something of a revelation even to her most ardent admirers. In Spontini's "La Vestale" she proved herself capable of compassing the difficulties of the classic grand manner to a surprising degree, but that rôle after all, is tinged with the spirit of the early Italians and permits far greater freedom than the exacting music of Mozart.

The expectant audience interrupted the action for a moment with a burst of applause when Miss Ponselle made her entrance in the first act. At the outset her singing of the florid and excited measures of the opening scene with Don Giovanni was marked with a restraint which was perhaps exaggerated. By the middle of the first act, however, the luscious voice displayed its old brilliancy and power, to the glory of Mozart and the delight of the vast audience.

In the typical Italian rôles with which Miss Ponselle has been identified she has often—legitimately, perhaps—employed her unique voice in a style occasionally mannered, toying with grandiloquent phrases and reveling in the sheer beauty of a mellow flood of tone. Last night she consecrated herself wholeheartedly to the very essence of the Mozartean tradition, never projecting herself out of the picture, always maintaining an aristocratic elegance of line, an aloof distinction and a careful coordination of vocal and dramatic elements with the performances of her associates.

These, included the principals, whose capable and often brilliant efforts have made the present revival a popular and artistic success. They were Elisabeth Rethberg, whose lovely voice and fine art find graceful opportunities in the music of Donna Elvira; Editha Fleischer, a sprightly and charming Zerlina; Ezio Pinzza, a dashing figure as the Don; Beniamino Gigli, whose exquisite singing of Ottavio's first-act aria was one of the high lights of the performance; and Pavel Ludikar, Louis D'Angelo and Leon Rothier in the other rôles. The performance, conducted by Mr. Serafin, unfolded with uncommon smoothness and brilliancy. It was said that every seat in the house was sold, and all standing room occupied, with scores turned away.

ROBERT WEENOLSEN WEDS.

Playwright Marries Miss Marjorie Otway-Ward in Cannes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CANNES, France, Jan. 2.—Robert Weenolsen, American playwright and scenario writer, today married Miss Marjorie Otway-Ward, daughter of an English army officer, Major Otway-Ward of the South Staffordshire Regiment.

Mr. Weenolsen is a member of a wealthy South Pasadena (Cal.) family and owns the beautiful Cold Brook Farm here. The marriage is the culmination of a long-standing domance, but was suddenly decided upon because Mr. Weenolsen must go to Hollywood to supervise talkie productions which he has written. The bride's parents were unable to reach here in time for the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Weenolsen will sail for the United States on Saturday on the Bremen.

Mr. Weenolsen, in collaboration with Sherrill Webb, wrote "Honest Liars," a farce comedy produced at the Sam H. Harris Theatre on July 19, 1926.

Alice Brady in "Strange Interlude."

Alice Brady, who became a member of the Theatre Guild's Acting Company this season, will appear for the first time in the leading feminine rôle of "Strange Interlude," in Atlantic City on Jan. 27. Miss Brady will succeed Elisabeth Risdon in one of the play's two touring companies. The other is now current in Chicago with Judith Anderson heading the cast.

"The Game of Love and Death," the Guild production in which Miss Brady is now appearing, will close tomorrow night at the Biltmore Theatre.

Giving "The Lower Depths" Today.

The apprentice group of the Civic Repertory Theatre will present Gorki's "The Lower Depths" at 1:30 o'clock this afternoon at an invitation performance. Egon Brecher, a member of Eva Le Gallienne's acting company, has directed the performance and supervised the production. Joseph Kramm, Arnold Moss, May Sarton, Lee Hillery and Robert Lewis will be members of the cast. Under the title of "At the Bottom," the play will also be presented on Tuesday evening at the Waldorf Theatre by Leo Bulgakov's cooperative group.

Hunter to Give "Patience" Tonight.

Hunter College will give "Patience" tonight and tomorrow night as its fourth annual production of a Gilbert and Sullivan operetta. This year's production, in addition to student actors, directors and managers, is staged by a technical staff composed of students.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Guiseppe Radaelli and Livia Marracci, said to have appeared in opera in Milan, and Jans and Whalen have been added to the cast of "The International Revue," now in preparation.

Tony Sarg's Marionettes will next season appear in a presentation of "Alice in Wonderland." They will conclude their engagement in "Rip Van Winkle" at the Assembly Theatre tomorrow.

Joseph Rumshinsky, who writes the music for Molly Picon's starring vehicles, will compose the incidental music for "Even in Egypt," previously called "P. S.: He Got the Job," the play in which George Jessel will soon appear.

"Angels on Earth" will begin a series of week-end engagements at the Yiddish Art Theatre, Broadway and Twenty-eighth Street, tonight. "Jew Suss" will continue in special performances on week nights.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Playboying the Western World.

THE PLAYBOY OF THE WESTERN WORLD, a comedy in three acts by J. M. Synge. Staged by Michael Breathnach; settings by William George Gaskin; costumes by Florence Kronman; produced by the Irish Players. At the Irish Theatre.

Christopher Mahon	Sean Dillon
Old Mahon	Jess Sidney
Michael James Flaherty	Royal Dana Tracy
Margaret Flaherty	Betty Murray
Widow Quin	Grania O'Malley
Shawn Keough	George Mitchen
Philly Cullen	Francis Kennelly
Jimmy Farrell	J. S. McLaughlin
Sara Tansey	Ann Mitchel
Susan Brady	Alice Erhardt
Honor Blake	Cele McLoughlin
A. Bellman	R. S. Plowden

No spuds were flung at the actors who revived Synge's "Playboy of the Western World" last evening at the Irish Theatre in the Village, showing, no doubt, how wondrously fifteen or twenty years of civilization are after taming a man. But, out of the balcony, whence the vegetables and abuse came in 1911, chuckles and titters kept up a steady commentary on the play, and proved that the gallery gods, like many of the monarchs of the orchestra, knew the play by heart and needed only a suggestion or two from the stage.

Strictly speaking, the performance was hardly more than amateur. Some of the lines were delivered in the broadest accent, vexing our provincial ears; some were pleasantly touched with the music of Irish speech, and some were spoken in plain Manhattan American. Listening was at times more than a little irksome. Apparently some of the actors were professional. But some of the fairest of them, with bare feet and unbound tresses, ran in and out with the excitement of newcomers and appeared to be enjoying the lark as much as the colleens of the play. In these circumstances it was a performance of great unevenness—wooden in some of the liveliest scenes, and no match for the fine points of the script; but it grew steadily more intelligible and fluid as the evening wore on, and became quite unobjectionable in the rowdy climax of the last scene. If your standards are not too exacting toward a meagerly equipped, incipient organization, you can pocket the unsteady performance for the sake of the play.

For the play is one of the most comical ever written—a well of pure humor undefiled—and the ethics are worth a jokesmith's careful attention. When young Mahlon merely boasts of having slain his father he is a hero; it is "a gallant tale," as his sweetheart says. But when his father comes in with only a cracked skull, and Mahlon goes about slaying in earnest, then his prowess is only "a dirty deed." They are all for canonizing him when he is a liar; they prepare to hang him when he seems to have matched the deed to the word by committing patricide before their eyes. What is heroism in the imagination is bloody villainy in fact. It is a good point, washed in the purest humor and made doubly interesting by the "poetry talk" of the dialogue. Meanwhile, you can observe how well Sean O'Casey is now doing for the Irish of the tenements what Synge did for the Irish peasant years ago. The humors are much the same. Only the bitterness of a political point of view has made them caustic.

VALERIE TAYLOR TO WED.

English Actress to Marry Hugh Sinclair, English Actor, Sunday.

Valerie Taylor, an English actress, now appearing in "Berkeley Square," will be married to Hugh Sinclair, English actor, at the Little Church Around the Corner on Sunday afternoon at 12:30 o'clock. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Randolph Ray, rector of the church.

Miss Taylor and Mr. Sinclair first met while they were students of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts in London seven years ago. Mr. Sinclair, who is now rehearsing in the new Preston Sturges play "Recapture," made his first appearance on Broadway in the second "Charlot Revue." Since then he has been seen in the Ina Claire revival of "Our Betters," "These Few Ashes" and "Other Men's Wives." Miss Taylor has played important rôles in the London production of "Berkeley Square," "The Sea Gull" and "On Approval."

Mme. Morgana Heard at Plaza.

Miss Anna Case, scheduled to sing yesterday morning at the Hotel Plaza "Artistic Morning," was unable to appear on account of illness. Mme. Nina Morgana, soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Company, took her place, singing several groups of songs. Others on the program were Alberto Salvi, harpist, and Christopher Hayes, tenor. The last concert of the series will take place at the Plaza on Jan. 16, with Beniamino Gigli as the artist.

"Prometheus Bound" Tonight.

Aeschylus's "Prometheus Bound," in an English version, will be presented tomorrow night at the Heckscher Theatre by Eta Sigma Phi, the classical honorary society of New York University. Richard Hale will play the title rôle, supported by Sophie Bernsohn, Antony Grey and Max Leavitt. Irwin Swerdlow directed the production.

SCREEN NOTES.

"The Hollywood Revue," a talking and singing picture, is now on view at the Capitol.

The screen offering at the Paramount and the Brooklyn Paramount beginning today will be an audible film called "The Laughing Lady," an adaptation of a play by Alfred Sutro. The principals are Ruth Chatterton and Clive Brook.

"Hot for Paris," an audible film, with Victor McLaglen, Lennox Pawle, Fifi Dorsay and El Brendel, is at the Roxy.

At the Cameo the next offering will be a Russian silent film called "The Man From the Restaurant."

"No, No, Nanette," an audible film adaptation of the musical comedy, will be presented this evening at the Warners' Strand.

At the Hippodrome next week the feature will be "The Racketeer," a talking picture, with Robert Armstrong and Carol Lombard.

"The Farmer's Wife," an adaptation of a story by Eden Phillpotts, with Jameson Thomas and Lilian Hall-Davis, will be on view tomorrow at the Little Carnegie Playhouse.

At the Fifty-fifth Street Playhouse the attraction will be "Throw of the Dice," adapted from an ancient Hindu legend called "Nala and Damajanti."

"Second Choice," an audible picture, featuring Dolores Costello, is the principal attraction at the Warners' Beacon.

At the Film Guild Cinema the screen offerings will be "The Golem" and "A Woman of the World."

"Hell's Heroes," a talking picture, continues for a second week at the Colony.

At the Little Picure House the feature will be "In Old Arizona," with Warner Baxter.

"The Royal Box," a talking film in German, continues at the Fifth Avenue Playhouse.

George Bancroft in "The Mighty" continues at the Rivoli.

At the William Fox Theatre in Brooklyn the screen offering is "The Broadway Hoofer," with Marie Saxon.

CYRIL MAUDE PLANS RETURNING TO STAGE

Recovered From His Serious Illness, He Expects to Appear in London in Spring

RETIRED FOUR YEARS AGO

Announced Then That He Intended to Devote Himself to Writing—His Famous Roles.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—Cyril Maude has so completely recovered from his serious illness last Spring that he plans returning to the stage in April or May. His present plans are to appear in a London theatre under the management of Mrs. Evelyn Dagnall, whose husband, the late T. C. Dagnall presented Mr. Maude in his greatest success, "Lord Richard in the Pantry." To friends Mr. Maude declares he feels younger than ever, although he soon will be 68.

Cyril Maude, whose last New York appearance was in Michael Arlen's "These Charming People," announced that he would retire from the stage in April, 1926. At that time, he said, he intended to devote his time to writing.

Although a native of England, Mr. Maude made his first stage appearance in Denver, Col., in 1884, returning to London two years later. He was first seen in New York in November, 1913, in "The Second in Command." His performance in "Grumpy" established him as a star in this country in 1915. In 1916 he acted here in "The Saving Grace" and in 1923 "If Winter Comes" and "Aren't We All?"

ALFRED LUNT STILL ILL.

"Meteor" Performances Canceled for the Rest of This Week.

The performances of "Meteor" scheduled for the remainder of this week at the Guild Theatre have been canceled because of the illness of Alfred Lunt, who is suffering from an attack of acute neuritis. Theatre Guild subscribers were informed by letter yesterday that Mr. Lunt, who has scored a success in the leading rôle of the play, would resume his rôle next Monday night.

Due to Mr. Lunt's illness, the Wednesday matinee was canceled. Immediately after the performance on Wednesday night the decision was made to cancel the remaining performances in the week.

MILNE PLAY FOR LONDON.

"Michael and Mary" With Edna Best and Herbert Marshall.

"Michael and Mary," the A. A. Milne play now running at the Charles Hopkins Theatre, will be presented in London next month by Gilbert Miller and Mr. Hopkins. The latter will sail for London tomorrow on the Berengaria to stage the play at the St. James Theatre.

Edna Best and Herbert Marshall, who appeared in New York last season in "The High Road," will have the rôles played here by Edith Barrett and Henry Hull.

"Prince of Pilsen" on Jan. 13.

"The Prince of Pilsen" will follow the current "Babes in Toyland" at Jolson's Theatre as the next of a series of operetta revivals there. It will open on Monday, Jan. 13, with a cast including Al Shean, Vivian Hart and Roy Cropper. "The Prince of Pilsen," the work of Frank Pixley and Gustav Luders, was first produced here in 1903.

FROM THE FOUNDER'S WRITINGS

It is Not the Length of Life That Counts

It is its depth and purpose. To eat, drink, smoke and sleep through the darkness and the daylight, and turn our habits into little wheels to carry us about, as if life was some kind of a factory building that we had to look over every day, is measuring life with a shoestring. Gladstone said, "Be inspired with the belief that life is a great and noble calling and elevated and noble destiny."

Wanamaker Annual January Sales

This is Our Big January Towel Offering! Luxurious Thick-Napped Bath Towels

The $9 grade for

$5.75 dozen or 48c each

Soft, snowy-white cotton bath towels . . . extra large, 25 x 50 inches . . . remarkable resistance and durability . . . light as a feather. Towels men like to draw across their shoulders . . . the resilient deep pile not only absorbs moisture instantly, but stimulates the circulation, sending the blood tingling through one's veins. Made with neat swastika-patterned borders in colors to match your bathroom . . . rose-pink, blue, gold or green.

Months of preparation . . . examination of towels from many famous mills . . . finally the choice of this one towel . . . our feeling that it is the best value possible for the money . . . the enthusiasm of the people who have seen it . . . hefted it . . . felt its strength . . . seen its absorbent qualities . . . "No wonder," they say, "that you have bought more of this one towel than of any other at any time!" . . .

Use the blank below for mail orders . . . or call GRAmercy 6200 for Personal Service and order your supply by 'phone . . . but don't delay too long . . . it is usual for us to sell thousands of towels in a day . . . and even the great reserves of this sale will melt quickly when housewives find out the news!

WANAMAKER'S—STREET FLOOR, OLD BUILDING

CORRECTION AND APOLOGY

We sincerely regret the unfortunate typographical error, made not by ourselves but by the printing company placing the advertisement in type, in which the Special price of a $19.75 layette of 43 pieces appeared as $1 instead of $15, the actual price, which was in line with the other prices announced: $22.50, $35, and $49.50. We extend our apology to those who were inconvenienced, and regret that despite all our precautions an error will occasionally occur.

Hemstitched Irish Linen Pillow Cases

Good size pillow cases . . . 21 x 33 inches . . . of a fine, closely woven linen . . . pure white . . . a linen that will improve with every tubbing! Beautifully made . . . the narrow seams all carefully reinforced . . . with 2½ inch hems done by machine, but very painstakingly.

$2,000 IN ONE GIFT SENT TO AID NEEDIEST

'OLD FRIENDS' ARE LOYAL

They Duplicate Contributions Made Last Week—Many Others Give Again.

440 CASES PROVIDED FOR

Late Donations Slowly Bringing the Fund Nearer to Last Year's Total—$315,624 Now in Hand.

The Neediest Cases Fund was brought within $22,486.94 of last year's relief by eighty-six contributors who gave $4,519 yesterday. Some duplicated previous gifts, from $5 to $250, and one gave $2,000 anonymously.

Many contributors, who evidently clipped out cases published two weeks ago, waiting to see if the fund would need their aid, are now sending in the clippings with $5 and $10 attached.

Others send funds for Neediest whose case numbers they can no longer remember, but whose distress they are still able to describe.

Several of the large contributions which were repeated yesterday were transmitted to the Neediest Fund through one or another of the nine charity societies that submitted their needy cases for selection at the outset of this appeal on behalf of the Neediest of all.

Mrs. E. H. Harriman sent a check for $250 through the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, as her second contribution to the fund. An anonymous contributor sent a second $100 check through the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, which also received $200 from Jessie H. Miller "for your Neediest cases still unprovided for."

"Old Friends" Give Again.

Six of the participating charity societies reported that a group of contributors that distributed gifts of $100 to each society a week ago under the title of "Old Friends" had repeated the benefaction yesterday. A total of $600 was received from this group by the Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor, the Charity Organization Society, the State Charities Aid Association, the Catholic Charities, the Brooklyn Bureau of Charities and the Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities.

Each gift was accompanied by a letter signed "Old Friends," which explained: "We are desirous of helping to accomplish the successful raising of funds which would equal the amount collected last year, and therefore are trying to do our part by duplicating our previous contributions to the organizations to which we have but a few days ago sent our first contributions."

Some of the contributions reaching THE NEW YORK TIMES directly yesterday came from abroad and from points in the United States distant from New York, but apparently not beyond sympathy for New York's Neediest.

A few who were closer to the distress expressed regret at contributing late; but others, who have been acquainted for years with the working of the fund, simply transmitted their contributions "as usual," knowing there was still time to help because the relief proposed is not a holiday gesture which is extended temporarily to sufferers who then slip back.

The total of $315,624.07 already contributed to the Neediest Fund, including the addition published herewith, has provided for the permanent relief of more than 440 cases, in accordance with the budgets prepared at the outset of the Neediest appeal by the nine charity societies which investigated them. Without any deduction for overhead, these societies will administer this relief until the Neediest are restored to self-support and self-respect, long after the holidays are forgotten. Last year 469 cases were aided.

If the Neediest Fund does not reach last year's total during the next few days, the task of making up the difference for the relief of the Neediest by additional appeal will pass to these nine charity societies which represent the organized neighborliness of a great city.

More Are Being Helped.

The contributions that are continuing into the new year as they did a year ago, when distress was no less than it is now, are making it possible daily to rescue a few more children who are homeless and helpless, or old persons who have come gradually to distress through outliving their generation. Many of the Neediest are having cause to be grateful for the left-over holiday exuberance and returning optimism in the business outlook which may provide for them after all.

A gift of $20 arrived yesterday from an anonymous contributor in Florence, Italy, and $10 came from Mrs. F. B. Mackay in Lausanne, Switzerland. From Quincy, Ill., a contributor who wished to be known only as "A Friend" sent $100. From Glendale, Cal., Henry J. Sills sent $70. G. M. Walton of Ypsilanti, Mich., sent $25 "to be applied on some case of an aged person."

A holiday gift of a $2.50 gold piece was sent "In Memory of Mr. Max Reiss," and a pencil letter in a child's handwriting, signed by Fifi Robert, enclosed a $5 check and a 50-cent coin presented to her.

Checks for $100 were received from Samuel C. Hooker, from two anonymous givers, and in memory of Dora Wendell Kirchwey. Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wagner sent $90; Mrs. Edward C. Hoyt, $50, and I. M., $50, "with pleasure." The letters accompanying the contributions yesterday are illustrated by the following:

M. H. S.—I am sorry for my delay and am encouraged by your article to find there is still time for one to give. I wish I could send more. Some day perhaps I can. If Case 154 is the lonely woman who wants to stay where she and her husband lived, please let this $10 go to her. A friend of mine said she thought it was Case 99; but I think I'm right. Doesn't she make paper flowers with one hand? Please enter it in memory of Mary Wilson. Thank you.

(The case referred to is No. 99, entitled, "Alone at 61, She Makes Flowers.")

Mrs. I. B. Catz—We have many pet animals in our home and as my boy Donald's best wish is to have a parrot, he loved to send this $10 to do a good deed in the new year for the sailor family whose children dreaded to give up their pet, the parrot. I am sorry I forgot the number of this case, but I am sure you can look it up and send the enclosed with the hope that it will aid to make those children happy and to keep their parrot.

(The case referred to is No. 245, entitled "A Ship's Engineer a Year Ashore.")

Hopes Goal Will Be Reached.

A. V. M.—I have been watching your Neediest appeals with the greatest interest and I want to add this last minute contribution of $10 with the hope that you may reach and pass last year's mark and that it may help a little bit to do it.

Alice Mouronval—Please accept a delayed check of $10 to be applied to the general fund for the Neediest Cases.

Mrs. P. N. Evans—Enclosed find check of $5 to be applied where needed in great hopes that the full amount will be raised.

T. M. Parrott—Please accept a belated contribution of $10 to the Neediest Cases fund. I should like to have it applied to a case where a family of children deprived of the natural breadwinner needs help.

Mrs. S. W. Johnson—Am sorry this $3 is so late. Please give it to some old couple who are trying to keep together and are sick or very poor. I truly wish it were more.

Anonymous—May I add at the last moment a small gift of $25 to the fund to be used wherever any Needy Cases still exist?

The Hygienol Company, Inc.—Enclosed please find check for $14, which is the contribution toward your fund from the employes of this company.

Mr. and Mrs. Moses C. Kronheimer—I am enclosing a check of $10 for the Neediest Cases, sponsored by your wonderful paper. This is our annual contribution.

H. M.—This $3 is to be used for whichever case or cases need it the most.

Peter—Enclosed find $1 for the splendid work you are doing. Wish I could send more, but my salary is small and my expenses heavy since my mother met with an accident sixteen months ago.

A. B.—Enclosed please find check of $2 for the Neediest Fund. Sorry I could not take care of it before; also that it is not a larger amount. It is the widow's mite.

Those who have delayed or forgotten may still send checks for the "Hundred Neediest Cases Fund" to The New York Times, Times Square, New York City.

No agents or solicitors are authorized to seek contributions for the Hundred Neediest Cases.

Contributions to the Neediest Cases are exempt from the Federal and State income tax.

The nine charity organizations which administer the Hundred Neediest Cases do so free of cost. There is no deduction of any kind, administrative or executive. Every dollar goes to the Neediest.

1913	9,646.36
1914	15,032.46
1915	31,819.92
1916	55,792.45
1918	81,097.57
1919	106,967.14

INDICTED IN FRAUD, FOUND A SUICIDE

Abraham Lauterstein Hangs Himself as He Is Accused With Nine Others.

CITED IN BANKRUPTCY RING

Group Are Alleged to Have Cheated Creditors of Furniture Concern Out of $250,000.

Abraham Lauterstein, 44 years old, a partner in the Prospect Furniture Company at 29 De Kalb Avenue, Brooklyn, one of ten men indicted by the Federal Grand Jury yesterday on charges of using the mails to defraud, in connection with the failure of the National Home Outfitting Company at 192-196 Lexington Avenue, Manhatatn, hanged himself in the basement of his store last night, according to the police.

The body of Lauterstein, hanging from a strip of length of sash cord, was found about 10 P. M. by his partner, Harry Schachter, of 1,245 Eastern Parkway, who also was named in the Federal grand jury indictment.

Lauterstein, who lived with his wife and three children at 673 Brown Street, Brooklyn, had left near him two signed blank checks, drawn on the Eastern Parkway branch of the Municipal Bank. On the back of a third blank check he wrote a note addressed to an office employe, which, the police said, read as follows: "Bessie dear, draw out whatever I have in the bank and give it to my family. This is all they have to live on." The note was signed, A. Lauterstein.

Schacter told the police that he had had an appointment for last evening with his partner, and that when Lauterstein did not meet him and could not be found at his home or at his usual haunts he had gone to the store in search of him.

The others indicted are Morris Chauls, 107-46 114th Street, Richmond Hill, Queens; Jack Lerner, 248 Audubon Avenue; Michael Celes and Morris M. Eletsky, Waterbury, Conn.; Morris Sanford, formerly of Brooklyn, present address unknown; Bertram Henes, formerly of Pittsburgh, present address unknown; Michael M. Kantor, 302 Marine Avenue, Brooklyn, and Benjamin Elfand, 20 Dahill Road, Brooklyn.

Henes and Sanford are alleged to have been the leaders in a "bankruptcy racket" whereby creditors of the bankrupt concern were defrauded out of about $250,000. It is charged that the mails were used in getting credit through false representations. The complainants in the case are manufacturers of furniture and other articles and are located in Maryland, Ohio and Virginia. It is further charged that the National Home Outfitting Company, through false representations, obtained a credit rating of $200,000. These alleged false representations, according to the indictment, were made in Pittsburgh and elsewhere out of New York.

Schachter and Launderstein are alleged to have removed furniture from the establishment of the bankrupt with intent to defraud creditors. Elfand, Kantor and Chauls are charged with having made numerous purchases for the alleged conspirators.

I. R. T. FIGHTS PASSAGE TO CHRYSLER BUILDING

Subway Contends Proposed Way Would Create Dangerous Jams—Gets Temporary Injunction.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company got a temporary injunction yesterday from Supreme Court Justice Mitchell restraining the W. P. Chrysler Building Corporation, owner of the Chrysler Building at Forty-second Street and Lexington Avenue, from carrying out its plan to break into the subway walls at that point in order to construct a passageway from the Chrysler Building to the mezzanine floor of the Grand Central subway station. An application to continue the injunction pending the trial will be heard on Jan. 6.

The Interborough contends that the proposed action will result in a greatly increased congestion in the subway stations in the Forty-second Street neighborhood, and that persons entering the proposed passageway from one of the largest office buildings in the world will be a constant source of danger to the general public. Frank Hedley, president of the Interborough, made an affidavit in support of this contention. It is contended further that the majority of persons using the proposed passageway into the subway will not become subway passengers, but will be bound for other buildings in the immediate neighborhood or for the Grand Central Station.

The suit is based on the contention that the subway company has complete authority over the walls of the tunnel at the point where it is proposed to break through, and that the action of the Transit Commission, in giving approval to the Chrysler company to erect the passageway at its own cost and to keep it clean and free of disorder, violated the rights of the company.

DENIES DANCER'S CHARGES.

F. P. Earle, Artist, Answers $180,000 Damage Suit in Los Angeles.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 2 (AP).—Ferdinand Pinney Earle, artist, in a deposition on file today in Superior Court denied that he ever proposed marriage to Dolores Salazar, Spanish dancer. The deposition, signed in Paris, was the 51-year-old defendant's answer to the dancer's $180,000 breach-of-promise suit.

When the case was called for trial this morning, Judge Keetch continued it indefinitely to await the arrival of additional depositions from Earle.

Earle declared that he had proposed to only one, the present one of his four wives. As for the others—"there is such a thing as spontaneous agreement without proposal," he explained.

In her suit, Miss Salazar demands $50,000 for breach of promise to marry, a like sum for alleged betrayal, $30,000 for alleged breach of contract to star her in motion pictures, and $50,000 for damages and failure to place agreed amounts in Hollywood banks for her credit.

The dancer also declares that Earle won her by a "course of ardent love making and passionate letter-writing" and that he finally abandoned her in Paris.

MYSTERY IN RETURN OF $30,000 PEARLS

BOX NOT OPENED FOR HOURS

Mrs. M. H. Gilmore, Owner of Gems, and Mme. Farrar to Testify in Crain's First Inquiry.

The mysterious receipt of a $30,000 pearl necklace by the police of the East Fifty-first Street station on New Year's Eve was the first case to confront former Supreme Court Justice Thomas C. T. Crain yesterday in his first active day as District Attorney. The necklace is the property of Mrs. Mary H. Gilmore, wife of a lawyer, of 277 Park Avenue, and was lost or stolen while she was on a Fifth Avenue shopping tour on Nov. 22 with Mme. Geraldine Farrar, the singer.

Mr. Crain announced that he had ordered Assistant District Attorney Harold W. Hastings of the indictment bureau to begin an immediate investigation with a view to presenting the entire matter to the grand jury early next week. Mrs. Gilmore, Mme. Farrar and several other witnesses, including the desk lieutenant and some detectives and patrolmen at the station, are to be called for questioning today by Mr. Hastings, Mr. Crain said, and probably would be called in the grand jury inquiry also.

It was understood that the necklace was returned by an unidentified messenger at noon, in a neatly sealed package, addressed to a detective whose identity was withheld by the District Attorney. The messenger merely placed the package on top of a flat desk in the detective bureau at the station, after the desk lieutenant had directed him to the room.

Thought It a Joke at First.

It was learned that the detective to whom the package was addressed was not in the station at the time, but that a patrolman told the messenger to leave it on the desk for him. So little attention was paid to the messenger that it was not clear whether he was in uniform.

The package was said to have remained for several hours on the desk, in the belief that it was a New Year's gift, before the detective returned. When he opened the wrapping he found a cigar box, and in this was the necklace, carefully wrapped in tissue paper. At first he thought that it was an imitation necklace which had been sent to him as a joke by one of his associates, it was said, but careful inspection showed that the necklace was genuine.

The detective got in touch with higher officials at the detective division in Police Headquarters and was ordered to bring the necklace there. It was not until yesterday morning, however, that Deputy Chief Inspector Edward Mulrooney, head of the division, established that the necklace was that which had been reported lost or stolen by Mrs. Gilmore.

The return of a $3,000 peachblow vase to the same station more than twenty years ago was recalled. The vase had been stolen from a mantel in the reception room of Richard Canfield's gambling house at 5 East Forty-fourth Street during the excitement of a spectacular raid on the place by the then District Attorney, William Travers Jerome. Only officials from Mr. Jerome's office and the police had been permitted to enter the raided house and the identity of the person who stole the vase and returned it several weeks later through a messenger to the station never was established.

$10,000 Demanded Over Phone.

"Mrs. Gilmore was not sure how she lost her necklace," Mr. Hastings said yesterday. "She recalled having placed it around her neck before she left her home for the shopping tour with Mme. Farrar. She promptly notified an insurance company, the name of which Mr. Crain does not desire revealed at this time, on her return home.

"The officials of the company offered a reward of $3,000 for the return of the necklace, but little progress was made by police and private detectives until Dec. 11, when a telephone message was received by Mrs. Gilmore from a stranger who said that he would return the necklace to her, under a sitpulation of secrecy, if she would give him $10,000 in cash.

"Mrs. Gilmore reported this conversation to the insurance company officials, and they notified the police and the District Attorney's office. At a conference with me, attended by these insurance officials and the detectives, Mrs. Gilmore was advised to enter negotiations with the stranger for the return of the necklace, but the negotiations fell through."

14 Reds Get Suspended Sentences.

Fourteen Communists of the fifty-seven arrested Dec. 21 at a demonstration in front of the Dan Palter Shoe Company, 151 West Twenty-sixth Street, were found guilty of disorderly conduct by Magistrate Brodsky in Jefferson Market Court yesterday. He gave them suspended sentences. The balance of the fifty-seven were discharged when the policemen who made the arrests failed to identify them as the persons who had acted in a disorderly manner. Six of those receiving suspended sentences were women.

Burglar Sticks in Chimney; Calls on Household for Help

CHADDS FORD, Pa., Jan. 2 (AP).—A burglar who tried to enter the house of John D. Schiedt here early today by way of a chimney got stuck and was forced to call upon the occupants for help. He was rescued by firemen and arrested by State police.

He gave his name as Michael Toth of Philadelphia, and said he and two companions tried to enter the Schiedt home by windows and doors but failed. He then climbed to the roof and slid down the chimney. Just above a fireplace in the living room he found himself trapped. He squirmed for two hours before a son of the owner of the house and a caretaker heard his moans and called the police.

DETECTIVES REFUSE DEMOTIONS FOR PAY

13 PROMOTIONS ANNOUNCED

Six Sergeants Become Lieutenants and 7 Patrolmen Sergeants—412 Enter Police School.

Police Commissioner Whalen denied yesterday reports that a shake-up in the Police Department would result in the retirement of officials 60 years old or more. He also announced the promotions of six sergeants to the rank of lieutenant and of seven patrolmen to the rank of sergeant.

At the same time 475 second-grade detectives, who, through a situation created by the recent referendum raising the pay of patrolmen, receive less pay than men they outrank, refused a chance to accept demotions that would have meant salary increase of $300 a year.

The sergeants who received the rank of lieutenant are:

BEACH, CHARLES B., West Twentieth Street station.
EINMAN, DAVID, Sedgwick Avenue station.
FLOOD, JOHN, Ralph Avenue station, Brooklyn.
HARRIS, HENRY, Charles Street station.
HOAR, JOHN A., Ralph Avenue station, Brooklyn.
TIERNEY, MICHAEL, Traffic Precinct D.

The patrolmen who were promoted are:

CONFREY, CHRISTOPHER W., headquarters squad.
HEARN, AMBROSE, East Twenty-second Street station.
KELLY, THOMAS C., West 123d Street station.
McCOY, JAMES F., radical squad.
O'HANLON, DENNIS J., automobile squad.
PALICKE, EDWARD A., Traffic Precinct P.
SHEVLIN, JOHN F., Charles Street station

Patrolman McCoy, who joined the police force May 3, 1908, was designated acting detective sergeant July 10, 1915. He has received fourteen commendations and four awards for "excellent police duty." Among other cases he is credited with solving three bond robberies involving securities worth $715,000.

The mass decision of the second-grade detectives to retain their rank in spite of what has amounted to a cut in salary was made while they were being addressed at headquarters by Deputy Chief Inspector Edward P. Mulrooney.

As second-grade detectives they get $2,700 a year. Most of them were promoted from patrol duty, where the former salary was $2,500. This was raised to $3,000 by the referendum and Inspector Mulrooney offered the men the chance of voluntarily becoming third-grade detectives, through which they would qualify for a patrolman's salary.

The men said afterward that they preferred to retain their seniority, even at a temporary sacrifice, as all feel that they will get increases soon through efforts being made by Commissioner Whalen to have a new scale of salaries, based on the $3,000 minimum, put into effect by the Board of Estimate.

The seven men who became sergeants, it also was pointed out, gain nothing financially by their promotions, as a sergeant now receives the same salary as a patrolman. Lieutenants are paid $3,500 a year and c ptains $4,000. The commissioner is trying to have the pay of each of the three command ranks raised $500 a year.

Grant Crabtree, chief clerk of the Police Department, swore into service yesterday 412 new members of the force, who now will spend three months in training in the Police College. Commissioner Whalen outlined their duties to the recruits.

BOY, 6, ALCOHOL SUFFERER.

His Case Among 17 in Newark New Year's Eve Celebration.

Seventeen cases of alcoholism and forty-eight stolen automobiles resulted from the celebration of New Year's Eve in Newark, the police there reported yesterday. All those who were made ill, including a 6-year-old boy, will recover, and all but ten of the stolen automobiles have been found.

The boy, who had to be treated for alcoholism, was said to have sipped some wine at a party he attended with his parents. As for the ten automobiles still missing, the police expect that they, like many others, were taken only for the celebration and will be returned.

HOSPITALS OPPOSE AMBULANCE CHANGE

H. S. Cullman Outlines Many Objections to Having City Take Over Service.

LOSS IN EFFICIENCY FEARED

Dr. Greeff to Confer Today With Representatives of Sixteen Brooklyn Institutions.

Dr. J. G. William Greeff, new head of the Department of Hospitals, will confer this morning with representatives of sixteen non-municipal hospitals in Brooklyn on one of the major problems of his department, that of reorganizing the city's emergency ambulance service. He will outline to these representatives, organized as the Ambulance Conference of Brooklyn, his department's proposals for taking over the ambulance services of the sixteen non-municipal hospitals in Brooklyn.

It is understood that the proposals to be made by Dr. Greeff will be based largely on the suggestions of his predecessor, Dr. William Schroeder Jr., now head of the Department of Sanitation. The plan contemplates the purchase by the city of thirty new ambulances at an aggregate cost of $96,000 and their upkeep, together with the cost of drivers, for a full twenty-four-hour service.

The city will propose that the ambulances and drivers be housed by the hospitals as at present is done with their private ambulances. What disposition the city proposes that the hospitals shall make of the ambulances they now use, and what machinery the city would set up to insure efficiency and discipline among drivers on city payrolls, will not be known in detail until after this mornings conference.

Officials of the Department of Hospitals were reluctant, in deference to Dr. Greeff, to discuss the situation. Officers of hospitals, however, continued to question the wisdom of the proposed reorganization of the emergency ambulance service.

Cullman Outlines Objections.

Some of the objections to the city's proposal to take over the ambulance service were outlined yesterday by Howard S. Cullman, president of the Beekman Street Hospital, whose board of directors includes many prominent New Yorkers. Mr. Cullman said:

"To many of us who are sincerely and vitally interested in the perpetuation of the ambulance service along constructive lines, the elimination of the proposed plan to store ambulances outside of municipal or private institutions is most gratifying. The proposal to house ambulances in fire stations, police stations or municipally constructed garages in our opinion was fundamentally unsound from a professional, economic and administrative standpoint.

"The latest proposal for the city of New York to purchase new ambulances, replacing the ones now in use, and to have ambulance drivers on the city payrolls should be given serious consideration from many angles before adoption. What economic advantage is there in scrapping perfectly good equipment to purchase new ambulances?

"The non-professional service of municipal and private institutions is under the closest supervision of their superintendents. How could these institutions be held responsible for ambulance service if the ambulance drivers, as city employes, boarded, lived and worked for an institution that had no control or jurisdiction over them? Dual or divided authority is seldom conducive to an efficient organization.

Fears Ambulance Chasing.

"The greatest danger, however, of the proposed plan is in the actual employment by the city of these drivers. A recent report of the Bar Association showed the danger of collusion in ambulance chasing unless the greatest care was taken in the employment of ambulance drivers. Why eliminate our present safeguards for a system that has even greater possibilities of corruption?

"Many of the private hospitals are strongly in favor of an increase in the present city appropriation for ambulances. The amount allotted as of January, 1930, is $3,500 per annum. This amount just about covers the salaries, board, lodging and equipment of two drivers annually, which is seemingly a minimum requirement on a twenty-four-hour ambulance service. Without any charges for internes or garage facilities the annual cost for ambulance service to an institution is approximately $6,000, estimated as follows:

Insurance	400
2 drivers $100 per month	2,400
Board, lodging, 2 drivers	700
Equipment, 2 drivers	400
Gasoline, repairs, &c.	800
Instruments, bandages, medicine, &c.	200
Total	$6,000

"Some of the Brooklyn institutions furnishing ambulance service to the city are seemingly unwilling to continue this service on an appropriation of $3,500 per annum. The proposal of the city to be responsible for the employment of drivers and to furnish new ambulances, as outlined, has many serious objections. Why is not the solution of this problem the payment directly to the institutions of the proper cost for the ambulance service and making them entirely responsible, together with the municipal institutions, for the care of the sick and poor needing emergency service?

BILLY DOVE QUITS HUSBAND

Actress, Wed in 1923, Is Considering Divorce, Say Film Officials.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Jan. 2 (AP).—First National Studios today disclosed that Billy Dove, featured motion picture actress, and her husband, Irvin Willat, director, have separated.

Studio officials quoted Miss Dove as admitting that incompatibility had resulted in a definite rift in her six years of domestic happiness and that divorce probably would follow later.

Mr. Willat, who is in New York City working for a small independent film company, married Miss Dove in Ocotber, 1923, soon after she left the Ziegfeld Follies for the movies. Rumors of their separation arose in Hollywood film circles after she failed to join him for the Christmas holidays.

Phillips Exeter Academy Dance.

The annual Phillips Exeter Academy New York dance was held last night at the Ritz-Carlton. There was a midnight supper. George W. Hawkins was in charge of the arrangements, assisted by Robert C. Brooks, Robert H. Kennett, John L. Tribuno and Edgar W. Gemmell. The floor committee included Walter Martin, Charles Bernuth, John Dean, William Weaver, William Vail, Franklin Wagner, Emery Mayo, Mason Knox, Walter Marting and Clemens Herschel.

Unconscious, Army Flier Falls Two Miles, Then Lands Safely

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Unconscious and falling over two miles in a tail spin was the recent experience of Lieutenant D. D. Graves of the Army Air Corps, attached to the Ninety-fifth Pursuit Squadron at Rockwell Field, Coronado, Cal., according to a report received by the chief of the air corps today.

Lieutenant Graves had gone aloft to test a pursuit plane in combat manoeuvres at an altitude of 25,000 feet. He was in the midst of such acrobatics when a fitting failed to function on his oxygen tank, as a result of which he lost consciousness.

The plane lurched into a tail spin, and at 15,000 feet Lieutenant Graves began to recover. So fast was his drop, however, that the plane reached 13,000 feet before he regained his faculties sufficiently to grasp the controls. He effected a safe landing.

CITY IN DEADLOCK WITH I. R. T. ON CARS

Transit Commission Plan of Financing for Equipment Rejected by Company.

GUARDS ITS PREFERENTIAL

Unification Bill in Legislature Held as Solution of This and Other Problems.

The Interborough Rapid Transit Company and the city of New York have been unable to reach an agreement, at conferences arranged by the Transit Commission, on a plan of financing the purchase of new cars which the Transit Commission has ordered the Interborough to put in operation. Negotiations are at a deadlock, it was learned yesterday.

The Transit Commission at present has no intention of applying to the courts in the matter. The city's unification bill is pending in the Legislature, and it is the belief of the commission that if the measure is passed it will be unnecessary to appeal to the bench. It also is believed by the Transit Commission that the enactment of the unification bill would smooth out many other difficulties.

Under a financing plan worked out largely by William G. Fullen, chairman of the Transit Commission, it was proposed that the city buy the minimum of 290 new subway cars required by the commission's order. It was proposed that the city arrange to buy the cars by a bond issue, inasmuch as the Interborough professed to lack capital. However, it was proposed that payment of the city's interest and sinking fund be put on a preferred basis and paid as part of the operating expenses of the Interborough.

Those terms offered as the city's ultimate concession were rejected by the Interborough on the ground that the payment of the preferred charges might result in reducing the Interborough's preferential in lean years to a point where it would be inadequate for the company's needs.

Seeking relief from subway congestion on the Lexington Avenue line, especially between the Thirty-fourth Street and Grand Central stations, a delegation of the Thirty-fourth Street Midtown Association called upon Mayor Walker at City Hall yesterday afternoon and asked his support of a plan for reservoir stations on a subway line running under Lexington Avenue from Thirty-first to Forty-second Street. The Mayor informed the committee that he would arrange a conference with the Board of Transportation.

The Thirty-fourth Street Midtown Association has suggested that it might be practicable to extend the Times Square-Forty-second Street shuttle south from Grand Central Station to Twenty-eighth Street, using the old subway tracks under Park Avenue, and in that way eliminate one of the causes of congestion at the Grand Central Station.

WILL OF F. W. SAVIN WILL BE CONTESTED

Adopted Children, Disinherited by Banker Who Married Servant, Expected to File Suit.

The will of Frank W. Savin, 79-year-old banker, who was the oldest member of the New York Stock Exchange when he resigned and sold his seat last year, is to be contested, it was learned yesterday.

Mr. Savin, who died last Tuesday in Port Chester, N. Y., following an operation for appendicitis, is survived by his fourth wife, Mrs. Anna N. Schleis Savin, who was a maid in his home before their marriage. With the exception of the servants, she is living alone now in Winchester Hall, the seventy-five-room mansion at Port Chester, with the gables and towers of an Old World château.

It is expected that the late banker's former wives' relatives and adopted children, Muriel Elizabeth Wisnell Savin and Charles Edy Monroe, whom he is said to have disinherited, will all fight for a share of their father's estate.

The two children of the millionaire's first wife, Josephine and Frank W. Savin Jr., who were also disowned by the banker, have not been heard of in recent years.

The banker's will has not yet been filed with Surrogate George A. Slater at White Plains, N. Y.

On Jan. 26, 1920, Surrogate Slater, on petition of Mr. Savin and his first wife, Sarah Monroe Savin, allowed the banker to adopt Charles Edy Monroe, an adult, who then lived with him as his own child. Mr. Monroe, at that time, said he was born on Aug. 9, 1874.

Mr. Savin was married to Anna Mary Schleis, a Czechoslovak maid employed at his Port Chester estate, in January, 1927. He was 76 years old at the time, and she was 41. She had been in his employ at that time for fourteen years.

ACADEMY ATTACKS HIGH MEDICAL FEES

Physicians' Group Lists Overcharging Persons of Small Means as Grave Abuse.

HOSPITAL STUDY IS URGED

Inquiry Sought on Fitness of Personnel and Manner of Picking Appointees.

INADEQUATE TRAINING SEEN

Publicity Method of Some Doctors Is Criticized—Dr. Carl Koller Receives Honor Medal.

Declaring that "all is not well with the medical profession," the annual report of the New York Academy of Medicine, read at a meeting of the organization last night at 103d Street and Fifth Avenue, denounced certain "glaring" professional abuses, such as the overcharging of patients with small means and advocated "an intensive study of hospital practice which would include the qualification and method of appointment" of the medical personnel of hospitals.

The report, read by Dr. Walter L. Niles, also said that the present method of medical testimony in the courts is "highly unsatisfactory from the point of view of the courts as well as from the point of view of the dignity of the medical profession." The report urged a study of this question and contended that there was need of "a satisfactory definition of murder in the first and second degree and manslaughter."

Dr. John A. Hartwell, president of the academy, appointed a committee to study and make recommendations "in regard to the legal definition of insanity, the disposition of those convicted of criminal offenses and on the question of expert testimony when there is a psychiatric problem involved."

Medal of Honor Awarded.

Besides listening to the reading of the report, members of the organization bestowed upon Dr. Carl Koller of 68 East Eighty-sixth Street the first medal of honor ever awarded by the academy. The medal, donated by Dr. Samuel McCullagh, was given to Dr. Koller in recognition of his work in applying local anesthesia in connection with operations on the eye. The medal of honor is to be given annually for outstanding work in medicine.

The academy also elected six distinguished American and European scientists as honorary fellows. They were Jules Bordet, bacteriologist; Ernst Fuchs of Vienna, Sir Frederick Gowland Hopkins, Mme. Curie, René Leriche, teacher of surgery at the Universities of Lyons and Strassbourg, and Sir Thomas Lewis, distinguished heart specialist of London.

After asserting that "all is not well with the medical profession," the general report of the academy went on to say:

"It is recognized that in the present commercial age, there is a desire on the part of many physicians to achieve financial as well as professional success, and it is regretted that in many instances physicians are willing to place greater financial reward on a higher plane than their professional standards. It is known that there are many physicians who are frequently guilty of gross unprofessional conduct."

"Glaring Abuses" Listed.

The report enumerated the following "glaring abuses": 1, the overcharging of patients who cannot afford the fees demanded; 2, the publicity obtained by many physicians which indicates that they are better qualified to treat certain conditions than are their colleagues; 3, the division of fees between specialists and the general practitioner.

The report then went on to take up hospitals, saying that while many hospitals are organized on a high plane, "it is known that there are many hospitals which are not well organized, where the professional administration is lax and history and record keeping is practically non-existent." It asserted that there are many hospitals which are not regularly inspected and where physicians act without supervision and operations are undertaken without the knowledge of any other physician.

"It is believed that in some hospitals unnecessary operations are performed by physicians who are inadequately trained for their work," the report said.

It declared that while there are various agencies, such as the State Board of Charities, the Department of Health and the Department of Hospitals, who supervise certain aspects of the work, "none of these agencies exercise any supervision over the qualifications of the physicians in attendance or of the recording of results."

It was urged for this reason that steps be undertaken by the academy "to make intensive study of hospital practice which would include the qualification and method of appointment of the medical personnel."

DAUDET BACK FROM EXILE.

Royalist Leader Too Moved to Speak as Paris Friends Greet Him.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—Leon Daudet, Royalist editor, who has been in exile for more than two years, returned to Paris today and his emotion was so great that he was unable to respond to the cheers of several hundred of his followers at the Gare du Nord when he stepped from the train which brought him from Brussels. There were calls for a speech, but M. Daudet's voice failed him and tears streamed down his face.

President Doumergue signed the pardon three days ago which permitted him to return following intercession in his behalf by a delegation of members of Parliament representing many different political groups.

M. Daudet was convicted of libel after violent attacks in his newspaper, the Action Française, against a chauffeur in whose taxi his son was found shot. He accused the chauffeur of perjury, although the police had exonerated the latter because they were satisfied that young Daudet was a suicide.

The editor today went directly from the railway station to Père Lachaise Cemetery, where his son is buried.

MAYOR WALKER FINDS A WAY.

By announcing yesterday that the whole increase of his salary by $15,000 a year is to be given to charity, Mayor WALKER clears the record, so far as he is concerned. There would have been no serious objection if the bill before the Board of Estimate had merely provided that the Mayor's salary should be $40,000 a year, beginning with 1934. Such a scale of pay would not be regarded as exorbitant for the Mayor of Greater New York, with all his cares and responsibilities. That principle and that salary Mr. WALKER has now secured for the municipality, without any personal benefit. He has stilled the criticisms which arose when it was supposed that he was voting to put $15,000 into his purse annually more than the people supposed he would get when they re-elected him Mayor.

It may still be said by some captious people that he should have vetoed the bill for the Mayor's salary while allowing the increases for the other officials to stand. But the argument was conclusive that if salaries were to be raised at all the Mayor's should be larger than any of the others. Both these results have been attained by the Mayor, without his being himself a penny the richer for it. It was a solution of his difficulty both adroit and generous. The city charities to which he promises to give the extra money will be glad of his aid, while the whole city will be pleased that the Mayor has freed himself from even the suspicion of mercenary self-seeking. It is a distinct reason for felicitating Mayor WALKER.

Also to be complimented is the Mayor for his statement to the Chamber of Commerce concerning his official plans. He proposes to devote all of his time and energy to his duties as Mayor of New York. Politics he intends largely to put to one side. Use of patronage to build up a personal or party machine does not enter into his purpose. He remains, to be sure, a loyal Democrat, but believes that he can do more for his party, as well as for the city, by "being a good Mayor for 6,000,000 "people rather than a good poli-"tician for 100,000 people." There could be no better spirit for the Mayor as he begins the New Year and his second term at the City Hall.

AUSTRIA IN 1930.

In a series of letters from Vienna on this page Mr. JAMES has described the uneasy political situation in Austria and its possible implications for the peace of Central Europe. From the first days of the Austrian Republic there has been hostility between Socialist Vienna and the predominant Catholic and rural population of the provinces. Tension grew acute in 1927 when Communist demonstrations in the capital imparted a mighty stimulus to the development of the anti-Socialist Home Guard—the Heimwehr—whose numerical strength is now estimated at 400,000. In purpose the membership of the Heimwehr seems to range from persons sincerely alarmed by the threat of communism to those aiming at a Fascist régime as a step to the restoration of the HAPSBURGS. The concrete issues in controversy deal with the revision of the Austrian Constitution for the purpose of checking Socialist ascendency in Vienna. There paternalistic experimentation has been conducted on a large scale, notably in the matter of municipal housing. But since the Constitution can be amended only by a two-thirds vote in Parliament, it is Heimwehr doctrine that a change can be brought about only by force.

The possibility of a test of arms and civil war still exists; and to that extent Austria is undoubtedly an object of concern to the Powers and the League of Nations. Compared, however, with the situation only three months ago, it would appear from Mr. JAMES's review that things have rather bettered. This improvement may be summed up in a single word, SCHOBER, which is the name of Austria's new Chancellor. Until his promotion he was chief of police in Vienna, where he has resolutely enforced peace between the embattled factions. Of him Mr. JAMES writes that his chief concern is to save Austria from civil war and at the same time avert the establishment of a dictatorship. Thus Austria, after several months of acute uncertainty, is at least for the time being fortunate in having at the head of affairs a man of high ability who is also a man of moderation.

Under SCHOBER's influence a compromise amendment to the constitutional laws was voted on Dec. 7. The ultra-Heimwehr demands for conferring extraordinary powers on the President of the republic, reducing Vienna from the status of a province to that of a commune, re-establishing titles of nobility, and providing for the future amendment of the Constitution by plebiscite were rejected. But the Central Government did receive a power of audit over Vienna's finances and control of schools, and police were transferred to it from the provincial governments. The Heimwehr is not content, and agitation persists. But Herr SCHOBER's weighty influence is for peace, and behind him there is another factor which has operated for moderation elsewhere in Central Europe, and that is Austria's need of a new foreign loan.

THE PRISON PROGRAM.

What Governor ROOSEVELT calls "Chapter One" in his program of prison reform deals with measures that can be adopted at once. There is no controversy over the need of more guards. This was one of the obvious lessons of the recent outbreak at Auburn. The Governor asks for eighty-one and suggests that their pay be slightly increased. The Legislature need not hesitate to comply with this request, which is supported by the State Crime Commission. The message contains no reference to Colonel CHANDLER's doubtful project for an independent "guard corps," freed from civil service restrictions. It does advance, however, a scheme to relieve overcrowding and unemployment in the prisons of the State by establishing cantonments where the better behaved convicts can be given outdoor work. This is "frankly an experiment"; it will probably have the best chance of success in the camp to be established at the site for the new prison at New Attica, where there is a lot of grading and excavating to be done.

Other chapters will follow. Liberal provision must be made for new construction, and there are important questions of fundamental penal policy to be considered. Already Senator BAUMES has brought forward a proposal to abolish the present parole board, composed of the Commissioner of Correction, a deputy commissioner and a prison warden, and to substitute for it a commission of three men appointed by the Governor at substantial salaries to serve full time. Here is the nucleus of a great reform. It follows the lines of the reorganization suggested by Mr. GEORGE W. ALGER in his report to Governor SMITH in 1926. In his address here a few days ago Lieut. Gov. LEHMAN indicated that Governor ROOSEVELT would recommend separating the parole function from the disciplinary function in some such way.

The prison industry problem, made more acute than ever by the destruction of the workshops during last Summer's riots, must also be faced. With public interest aroused as seldom before, the Legislature has in all this an extraordinary opportunity. It can afford to ignore for the moment the question of responsibility for past derelictions, whether on the part of the Legislature or the Executive. The two parties can debate the record to their hearts' content in the campaign next Fall, if only they will agree now and promptly on measures to relieve prison conditions which are no longer tolerable.

THE SAFETY AWARD.

Award of the Guggenheim Fund safety prize of $100,000 to an American airplane, the Curtiss Tanager, is not clouded by doubt of the impartiality of the judges or of their technical fitness to pass upon the severe tests as prescribed. The Curtiss Tanager was the only machine to survive them, the British Handley Page entry dropping out when it failed to make the required minimum gliding speed of thirty-eight miles an hour. Moreover, there was "reasonable doubt" whether the British airplane had satisfied the tests for "general stability" and "recovery from violent disturbance." The aviators at the controls were experienced "test pilots" from the army, navy and the national advisory committee. It was perhaps a disappointment that no autogiros put in an appearance. The aeronautical world was interested in the Cierva invention. Two machines were built for the competition. To quote Aviation:

> At the last minute it was decided that the planes were not ready for the competition, and that further private tests and adjustments should be made before they might be displayed in open competition against the conventional plane equipped with such modifications as slots and flaps and wings with variable camber (convex curve).

It has been intimated that the autogiros could not attain the minimum speed required. Some engineers see a great future for the autogiro. Others doubt that it will ever be so practicable as the airplane of standard design. Surely it is a triumph for the latter that the Tanager, as shown by satisfied tests in the Guggenheim competition, made so close an approach to the "fool-proof" airplane. These are some of the things it accomplished: It came to a complete stop within 100 feet of the point where it first touched the ground after gliding for three minutes at a speed not exceeding thirty-eight miles an hour; it glided over an obstruction thirty-five feet high, coming to a stop within 300 feet of the base of the obstruction; it had previously taken off after not more than a 300-foot start along the ground and had cleared a 35-foot obstruction 500 feet from the starting point. By these performances it demonstrated immunity from common causes of accident.

Furthermore, the Tanager flew with the pilot's hands off the controls for five minutes at speeds of forty-five to 100 miles an hour, a test to show that it could right itself after "disturbances from wind gusts"; with stabilization by the slots and flaps it neutralized the hazard of the previously uncontrollable stall and nose dive. Particularly thorough were the tests to avoid crashes in restricted spaces with bad approaches. There can be no denying the promise of the safety designs in the Tanager. In the hands of a competent pilot it should be proof against most of the accidents that have happened to aviators.

A DANGEROUS CHARACTER.

Careful reading of the statement in which Senator GOULD of Maine accepts the punishment of his sin of last Summer shows him utterly impenitent. Gone is the blitheness of that fatal letter to a St. Louis experiment station for grape juice. The gas is worked off. The bung is out. The Senatorship is soon to follow the too large portion of the assisted grape juice that was "gone." Only the dissolute will hope that the Senator's cordial is still "in fine condition" and the grape juice "working fine." Horror swept through the State, except among the degenerate Northerners, who make wine out of grapes and elderberries, when the Senator added to his shame by avowing his belief in the license of light wines and beer.

He is still harping on the string most hated by true prohibitionists. He extols temperance, a vice of which a Dry is not capable. He makes the ancient flourish about the moderate drinker, a pest compared with whom the bootlegger seems almost a philanthropist to the Pures. He exhibits his "seven uncles, up Bangor way," all temperate, "but they took a drink when they wanted it." He has a brother 82 years old who > always has a bottle of good liquor on the kitchen shelf. We sometimes have a drink together. That bottle probably lasts a year.

These instances of individual volition exerting itself in defiance of the law; this implication that temperance conduces to old age or that the old ought to be permitted to coddle themselves with the cup are too painful. Caught in his iniquity, the malefactor tries to brazen it out. It is sad to reflect that only by accident has this man's essential unworthiness to represent Maine come to light. He would never have dared or had occasion to recommend temperance if he had not been found out.

For two generations Maine, one of the thirstiest of Commonwealths, had ample experience of and training in the blessings of the State prohibition law. It was fully prepared for the blessings of the Volstead act. It is not surprised, as some other communities have been, if the Federal law doesn't work as "fine" as Mr. GOULD'S specimen of St. Louis grape juice. It is well known that NEAL DOW took the law of nature by the neck and threw it out. Keep it or break it, prohibition is a law of nature to political Maine. The guilty Senator knows it. Paying the penalty, he continues to blaspheme.

TICKETS FOR THEATRES.

Even the New York public, made cynical by so many abortive or insincere promises to put within its reach theatre tickets at reasonable prices, will perceive that a real step forward was taken yesterday. While several important elements in the show business were absent from the meeting, and must be personally solicited by those who agreed on ARTHUR HOPKINS'S resolution, there were present powerful factors in the situation. Having bound themselves: to abolish the "buy," which is one of the admitted evils of the present system; always to keep "a substan-"tial number of desirable tickets on "sale at the box-office"; to deal only with brokers who limit their premium to 75 cents; and to organize a bureau to police the plan, they will have the support of the public in their effort to bring in the laggards and the dissidents. It is their intention, when the personal canvass has been completed, to publish the names of all who have agreed to cooperate. If the plan shall fail through the absence of certain names as endorsers, the public will know to whom to ascribe responsibility for the continuance of the theatre ticket nuisance.

Poor returns of the present theatrical season are due to several causes. But not the least of these is the disgust of patrons at the difficulty of seeing shows at all, or seeing them within a reasonable period of reservation at normal premiums. New Yorkers have learned that tickets advertised as being available at box-offices are never there when the performance is a popular one. They have found that reputable agencies with fixed premiums rarely have desirable tickets for "hits," even for a date weeks ahead. They have seen laws passed at Albany without effect; and inquiries which resulted only in assuring that the Federal Government would get its ascending share of exorbitant premiums charged. So the normal theatre-loving public has been staying away in droves, and those not ordinarily attracted to the theatre have felt no impulse to begin attendance. The result has been a bad season, and, necessity being the mother of invention, Messrs. HOPKINS, PEMBERTON and MILLER at last have found their associates willing to try to resuscitate the public goose which used to lay the golden egg.

For a long time the owners, producers and brokers confined their efforts to charging one another with responsibility. Recently the actors were asked to consent to Sunday performances for economic benefit. On that occasion spokesmen for Equity suggested that it was for the managers first to set their own affairs in order, and pointed to the outrageous situation in respect of tickets. The advance made yesterday was substantial, and it will lead to solid ground if the whole power of the managers is put into it.

"HOGMANAY."

The Paisley disaster on "hogmanay," which is Old Year's Day in Scotland, has brought the world in sympathy to the doors of the homes in that historic Scottish town, where JOHN WITHERSPOON preached before coming to America, where ALEXANDER WILSON, the American lover of birds, was born, and where the thread trade of the world had its capital. King and Queen and Prime Minister become as nearest neighbors in their sorrowing for the bereaved parents. It is a scene that harrows the hearts of the world, for pity and human sympathy pay no attention to national boundaries. They are felt as keenly by a reader of THE TIMES special wireless dispatch in some remote corner of America, or by some radio "listener in," as by those who have seen the tragedy with their own eyes and heard the cry of the doomed children.

In former times—for the custom probably no longer exists, at any rate with its original import—the people of this town or of the borough in which Paisley lies used to march around its borders once a year—"beating the bounds"—to keep in mind and teach the children the reach of the territory which it was their duty to defend. But they dwell no longer in fear of warlike attack. They have reached out to the ends of the earth in their commerce, and it is as if the thread which they put in the hands of so many leads back to the streets of this town where, as on the day of the disaster, it is still the custom of children to go about to friends' houses shouting the name which is given in Scotland to the last day of the Old Year—"hogmanay."

> The cottar weanies glad an' gay
> Sing at the doors for hogmanay.

It was, alas! for many of those happy children the last day. They did not live to see "Handsel Monday," when it is the custom to make children presents as we do at Christmas time. The tragedy seems all the blacker in the midst of the season of joy. There is nothing to relieve the darkness which has descended into the narrow streets of that mill-town except the light and warmth of the instant and sympathetic thought of millions which goes to it more swiftly even than the news of the disaster traveled from Paisley around the world.

Such events tell us how closely the human race is bound together in a kinship that forgets race, class and creed. Instead of "hogmanay" for which "the bairns who came out to play" were wont to ask their friends "to get up and gie them," the world gives that which is the surest proof that it is growing more tender and kindly with the years.

MORE RUBBER THAN EVER.

From British Malaya come reports that the production of rubber in that region will be greater by 40 per cent than ever before. As a result of this vast increase and of the enlarged output in the Dutch East Indies the present indications are for a continued low price for rubber. This is a reminder that efforts to thwart the laws of economics often are followed by disastrous reactions. While the present condition cannot be entirely blamed on the Stevenson restriction plan, by which the British planters in Malaya sought to maintain an artificially high price for rubber, there is no doubt that the unfortunate scheme did much to bring about the conditions which at present prevail.

Had all joined in, it might have worked. But the Dutch, producing about half of the rubber in this district, refused to cooperate, foreseeing greater profits in remaining aloof. This was the first—and worst—blow to the device. As the American consumers were those worst hit, they at once sought to cut down their purchases and devoted more time to the study of the reclamation of used rubber. Neither American consumers, nor Dutch producers, nor recalcitrant English planters caused the complete failure, but rather the natives. They had seen fortunes made by their fellows engaged in the production of so-called "native rubber"—produced by natives on their own small farms, usually in small amounts from a few trees.

The output of this native rubber has grown so fast—in the Dutch East Indies it formed about a third of the total rubber production in 1923 and nearly a half in 1928—that it is having a very material influence on the entire rubber market. To control it is practically impossible. Each year more trees on the natives' farms are coming into bearing. Although the natives are as a rule more careless about tapping, they appear to be learning rapidly and at the same time to be preparing the latex, as the sap is called, in a better manner.

The Stevenson restriction scheme officially came to an end a year ago. Its defenders still maintain that it served its purpose by holding up the price of rubber for a while and enabling the planters to regain some of their past losses. But as it placed a premium on the production of rubber outside of the restricted areas and, in particular, held up before the natives the lure of large prices for rubber for years to come, it did more than any other single factor to stimulate the planting of rubber throughout the world. It was indirectly responsible for the special attempts to develop rubber in the Philippines and for the new rubber plantations in Liberia and the efforts to establish plantations in Brazil. This new production is now beginning to be felt, and the planters in Malaya are paying for their past errors of economic judgment.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Why Do They Do It? The President, it was reported yesterday, was feeling as well as ever after shaking hands on New Year's Day with 6,000 citizens. The condition of the citizens was not reported, but doubtless each of them was happy at having touched the President's hand. It isn't a very important or intimate contact; the President rarely even hears the name of the person who moves up in line; and the technique of the hand-shaking provides that the line is to be disposed of in the shortest possible time with the least possible physical exertion.

Most people see very little sense or satisfaction in the process, so far as those in line are concerned. But any psychologist could explain the reasons without consulting a textbook. The key to it all is the remark of the old Irishman who said: "Let me grasp the hand that SULLIVAN grasped."

But if the majority of Americans are unwilling to stand in line for hours for the privilege of shaking hands with the President, there is a minority so large that Presidents have often nursed sore wrists for days afterward. It is an ordeal which even the most democratic of Oriental or savage princes need not endure. The East and the bush do not indulge in hand-shaking. They are content with a long look at the head of the State or tribe. On New Year's Day perhaps Mr. HOOVER envied the good fortune of those potentates.

Letters to Santa Claus. Postal officials report a marked decline in the crop of Santa Claus letters written by New York children. In 1928 these wavering scrawls to "Sandy Claws, North Pole," to "Santy Cluz, care Commander Byrd" or just to "Santa Claus—Quick," numbered 4,000. Last Christmas only 2,000 were received at the General Postoffice. Postmaster KIELY states that the figure was lower than at any time since 1925.

He does think the falling off due to the growing sophistication of tenement tots and Park Avenue 3-year-olds alike. The increase of organizations which foster the red-smocked, bewhiskered representations of Santa, and which trim trees and donate baskets for the poor, has caused many children to convey their holiday hopes by vocal petition rather than by mail.

Yet the letters were as ardent as ever. One youngster simply wrote: "Dear Santa Claus express wagon 'lectric train soldiers books ice pick bicycle automobile aeroplane Charles." The girls were more thoughtful than their brothers and asked for gifts for "Jimmy too," but "Jim" and "Pat" and "Harry" usually forgot to mention the doll that Mary would like. Among many strange scrawls one address has probably few duplicates in New York's dead letter office. It was evidently from a patriotic Irish youngster who directed his Christmas hopes to "Mr. Patrick Santa Claus."

Rebellious Maids of France. A new French revolution is brewing. The housemaids of the nation have issued an ultimatum to employers. The union of the femmes de menage of Paris demands a fixed wage, "not depending on the whim and humor of our employers," and a fixed tip, not depending on the amount of change in the employer's pocket. They balk at climbing ladders to wash windows and doing extra work for special dinners. They ask double pay for work on Sundays and holidays.

Since the ordinary wage of a Paris maid of all work is from twelve to sixteen dollars a month, their demands seem not unreasonable. Servants in small towns and in the country work harder and earn less—ten dollars a month or under.

Their success will probably depend on the strength of their union. It will be hard to "unionize" a great body of houseworkers working at widely distant points in the city, not often free to leave their work and never all getting a day off at the same time. Then there is the obvious threat that rebellious Parisian maids will be replaced by unenlightened sisters from the provinces, eager for city jobs and even a slightly higher wage.

American housewives would be glad to offer higher wages and shorter hours if only some of these dissatisfied French workers could be imported here. But if such a scheme could be worked out, Congress would probably spoil it by putting on a heavy head tax.

Attitudes and Resolutions. Less is heard about making New Year resolutions than used to be the case. Children were formerly brought up to believe that there was peculiar efficacy if the magic words to be lived by during the coming year were uttered precisely at midnight. They felt that they were beginning to grow up if allowed to linger with the older members of the family to see the old year out and to make a resolution. Nowadays they live by the book and go to bed at their usual hour even on New Year's Eve.

Probably modern experts in child training would frown on resolutions anyhow. They must agree with Dr. DARLINGTON, whose New Year's sermon emphasized the importance of a change in attitude rather than the making of a resolution. The latter, once broken, is lost forever. There follows at once an unworthy feeling. One may be relieved or humiliated or sunk in self-contempt. Breaking a resolution is not good for the morale. But slipping from a more general course is only to be expected. One aims at perfection but knows better than to expect to achieve it.

The definite quality of a resolution, however, gives it an advantage over an attitude. It gives a fixed measure for one item of conduct. If you resolve not to bite your nails, you know quite well whether you are keeping your resolution. But if you decide to adopt an attitude of tolerance, how are you to know when you stray from the path? Even your best friend will not tell you.

Liquor and Potato Bugs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The curative methods and suggestions offered by those who would make the Volstead law more effective in practice, and particularly recent pronouncements from some of our Senators, must remind some of us older ones of the early stages of the war against the Colorado beetle or common potato bug.

Our farmers were discouraged, as the little striped pest seemed to thrive upon all ordinary forms of poison. Finally, there appeared in several of our agricultural papers the following advertisement: "Sure death to potato bugs; $1,000 forfeit for any case of failure where directions are followed. Simple. Safe. Sure. Send $1 for full-size package."

In course of time the package arrived and contained two neatly made wood blocks, labeled No. 1 and No. 2. Directions: "Place bug upon Block No. 1 and press firmly with Block No. 2. Repeat as before." It never failed when used properly.

The Multiple Dwelling Law.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An article in THE TIMES today attributed to me the assertion that 1,000,000 people would be made homeless if one of the proposed amendments to the multiple dwelling law, fostered by a number of welfare organizations, were to be adopted.

This statement was made by another speaker. This particular amendment requires that after 1935 every tenement room not opening directly to the open air shall no longer be used for living purposes. Just how many people the adoption of such amendment would, after five years, compel to seek other and nonexistent quarters for their homes is unknown.

POINT-NO-POINT.

(A Hudson River Chantey.)

Hendrick Hudson, bold and free,
Cruised along the Tappan Zee
Under Nyack's mountain wall,
Bound for any point at all.

Up the stream the Half Moon bore,
Pointing high and close to shore,
Till the gusts of evenfall
Would not let her point at all.

"Reach yon point that frets the tide,
There we'll anchor!" Hudson cried.
"Point?" he heard the helmsman call,
"I don't see your point at all!"

Still we steered as Hendrick said,
Still the point lay just ahead;
Hudson grumbled, "By St. Paul!
We can't make that point at all!"

High upon a crag abaft
Perched a Witch, and loud she laughed:
"Round, the hill is, like a ball,
So the point's no point at all!"

Hudson thundered, "Witch, aroint!
By your headland, Point-No-Point,
Safe we'll moor in calm or squall—
Point-No-Point, no point at all!"

While we furled and stowed the sail,
Hendrick Hudson wrote this tale
For to chant with pull and haul,
Though it has no point at all!

DRYING UP AFGHANISTAN.

Dr. Cherrington Gives Undue Importance to Routine Action.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Dr. Cherrington in an article this morning says: "The anti-alcohol movement made marked progress in practically every country in the world during 1929."

Further along he reports "Afghanistan has become prohibition by an edict of Nadir Khan, the newly enthroned King."

Such an assertion as a prop for prohibition is absurd. There is nothing more misleading than half a truth, especially when it is distorted to point a moral.

Afghanistan has never been wet. It is a Mohammedan country. Even with a plentiful grape crop the natives do not make any wines. During Amanullah's reign a similar edict to that of Nadir Khan's was in force. The increased advent of foreigners had made a law necessary. Afghans were forbidden to import liquor, but a foreigner upon application and at considerable expense could get a permit for bringing in a limited number of bottles.

The educated Afghan likes wines and spirits, but is generally afraid to imbibe them in public when he is not sure his fellow countrymen have the same advanced ideas as his own.

Nadir Khan's edict was a routine formality—just as one in taking office renews an oath to uphold existing laws. Some chance publicity has given this particular angle undue importance.

My information on Afghanistan, unlike Dr. Cherrington's, is first hand. Let us wonder if his other facts boosting the progress of prohibition are based upon similar misinformation.

"The Night Before Christmas."

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In view of frequent references of late to Clement C. Moore's poem, "'Twas the Night Before Christmas," coupled with the statement that it was written in one of the recently demolished houses of London Terrace on the north side of Twenty-third Street, permit me to correct an oft-repeated error.

Quoting from a letter of Edwin H. Van Doorn, written in 1921, I submit the following paragraph: "I was born in old Chelsea Village and resided there nearly fifty years. In my youth Moore's Hill occupied the entire block from Twenty-second to Twenty-third Street, Ninth to Tenth Avenue. The residence of Bishop Moore was on the Twenty-third Street side of the hill, at an elevation of about fifteen feet and was reached by a stone stairway. * * * Clement C. Moore, author of 'The Night Before Christmas,' lived in the house for many years. The hill was demolished about 1852. * * * London Terrace was built about 1846 and was considered one of the show places of the village."

Blankets for Horses.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

During the past six weeks, while motoring through the city distributing blankets to poor horse owners who cannot afford to buy them, we saw several horses unblanketed, although there was a blanket on the seat of the wagon. When we spoke to these drivers they immediately placed the blanket on the horse. If every person who sees a horse unblanketed would speak to the driver, or, if this is impossible, send us the name and address which is on the wagon and the location where the horse was standing, we will take the matter up immediately. If there is no blanket, give the driver our address and tell him that if he is too poor to buy a blanket we will give him one. Our office is at 15 Central Park West.

We find that thoughtlessness is responsible for many acts of cruelty, but when the drivers realize that the public is interested in the welfare of horses they will be more careful.

The Waning Drama.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES imparts this illuminating bit of information: "Speaking of 'Wake Up and Dream,' those charming ticket people have purchased all the orchestra seats, save the final two rows, for the first sixteen weeks of the engagement."

What sort of justice to the public is it that such a proceeding should be allowed under municipal or any other kind of law?

The theatre managers cannot escape blame for this, their participation in such an arrangement indicating a contempt for the public.

Which goes to prove that the motion picture "talkies" are not alone to blame for the waning popularity of the so-called legitimate stage.

A New Yorker Ashamed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An old New Yorker who is proud of the growth of her city is ashamed of the dirty condition of its streets, particularly upper Broadway, which is beyond the power of the Street Cleaning Department.

I think signs should be put up saying that "any person throwing papers or litter in the streets or parks will be fined $1," which every policeman should collect on the spot and give a receipt. It is to be deplored that so few policemen are to be seen on duty. If the laws were enforced, our city would be as clean as all other large cities, particularly those in Europe, where persons are arrested and fined if they do not obey rules.

BUSINESS MEN ASK CUT IN PASSPORT FEE

Committee of Board of Trade Urges Reduction From $10 to Pre-War Rate of $2.

DECRIES "NUISANCE TAX"

$1,700,000 a Year Paid for Papers, While Cost to Government Is Tenth of This, Says Report.

A report favoring the reduction of the passport fee of $10 to the pre-war rate of $2 has been adopted by a committee of the New York Board of Trade which has been investigating the subject, and will be presented at the January meeting of that organization, it was made known yesterday.

In its report the committee declared that the fee had been raised to increase revenue and discourage travel in war time and had been maintained long after the need for it had ceased. It says that the increased fee falls within the group of "nuisance taxes which were borne cheerfully and willingly as long as a real need existed."

Pointing out that an American traveler to England must now pay $10 passport fee, $10 for British visa and $5 for steamship ticket tax, the committee observes that the total amounts to practically 10 per cent of the cost of a round-trip tourist cabin passage and is a distinct hardship on many classes of travelers.

Approximately $1,700,000 is paid annually to the government by citizens desiring passports, according to the committee, while the cost of issuing the documents is only about 10 per cent of that sum. The committee recommends that the government should perform this service at cost.

W. J. L. Banham, president of the board, in a statement issued on his return yesterday from a Southern cruise, said he agreed with the committee.

"It seems to take strenuous efforts to convince certain departments of our government that the World War has been over a long time," he said. "Although our military and naval branches of the government closed their part of the fight ten years ago the tax department is still functioning splendidly along the old lines in many cases. The increased passport fee was a considerable source of revenue at a time when a national emergency existed, but the need has long since been removed.

"A passport is simply a certificate of citizenship, which one must have to travel, and the issuance of such passport is a service which the government should render to its citizens at low cost. Most certainly the government should not expect to make 1,000 per cent profit out of the cost of administering the bureau."

CLEMENCEAU HONOR TODAY

Tablet to Be Unveiled at Sheridan Square Site Where He Once Lived.

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's Inc., and donor of the tablet to be unveiled this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Sheridan Theatre in honor of Georges Clemenceau, who once lived on the theatre's site, received yesterday a cablegram from André Tardieu, Premier of France, which read:

"My government congratulates and thanks you for your touching tribute to the memory of Georges Clemenceau. We are happy that the presence of our Consul General, together with the personalities of the French colony of New York, has given the proper character to this commemorative ceremony inspired by such generous sentiment of French and American friendship."

General Pershing will be one of the speakers. Others will include Maxime Mongendre, French Consul General; Louis Wiley, John Anderson, the Rev. Cranston Brenton, the Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass, John Donon, president of the French Veterans of the Great War, and Pierre de Malglaive, president of the French Chamber of Commerce. The cermony will be broadcast over Stations WABC, WHN and WPAP.

PRAISES POEM BY BRIDGES.

Edward Davison Calls "Testament of Beauty" Greatest in Lifetime.

The twenty most accepted poets of England and America in the last decade have written virtually no free verse, Edward Davison, English poet and lecturer, said yesterday at a luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore, arranged by Miss Emma Mills of the Poetry Society of America.

He termed "The Testament of Beauty," by Robert Bridges, poet laureate of England, "the greatest poem written in my lifetime." He said this poem by a man 85 years old achieved the long-talked-of union of science and poetry, and was written in a meter new to the English language.

Lorio de Bosis, head of the Casa Italiana at Columbia University, recited in Italian some poems of D'Annunzio. Poets who read from their own works were Witter Bynner, Lola Ridge, Leonora Speyer, Corinne Roosevelt Robinson and Harindranath Chattopadhyaya.

TIME UP ON SOLDIER BONUS

Many Apply for Adjusted Compensation on Final Day.

Yesterday was the last day World War veterans or their dependents and heirs could apply to the Veterans' Bureau for adjusted compensation, commonly known as the soldiers' bonus, and up to 2 P. M. applicants had called at the American Legion Welfare Committee headquarters in the Hall of Records. Scores of others inquired for information over the telehone.

Miss Margaret Head, executive secretary, and Henry Amy, chairman of the committee, were in charge of the group that aided the veterans. All applications had to be mailed by last midnight.

BRITISH WANT WAR BOOKS.

Libraries in East London Are Unable to Meet Demand.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—The libraries of Stepney, in East London, are unable to meet the great demand for war books. No fewer than 126 copies of one book were bought, a record for a single book, but there are still an exceedingly large number of people waiting for copies.

Although the libraries have done their best to meet the steadily increasing demand for war books, they have not been able to do so entirely.

CINCINNATI MOURNS CHARLES P. TAFT

Notables at Editor's Funeral—Chief Justice Taft Escorts Brother's Widow.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 2.—Charles P. Taft, owner and editor of The Cincinnati Times-Star, art collector and philanthropist, was buried today after services at which were present his brother, Chief Justice William H. Taft; city officials and leaders in many phases of civic life.

Private services at the residence preceded the public services, held at Christ Episcopal Church by the Rev. Frank Nelson, the rector.

The funeral cortège, led by motorcycle policemen, passed through lines of people between the house and church. Mr. Taft's widow and Chief Justice Taft headed the mourners as they entered the church. Next came Henry W. Taft of New York, another brother, and then the other relatives.

The honorary pallbearers were S. Ingalls and Dr. W. D. Semple, sons-in-law of the editor; David S. and Albert S. Ingalls Jr., grandsons; Hulbert Taft, Charles H. Taft 2d, Robert A. Taft and Walbridge S. Taft, nephews; Professor Louis T. More, a personal friend, and C. H. Rembold, business manager of The Times-Star.

Burial was in Spring Grove Cemetery.

CINCINNATI, Jan. 2 (AP).—It was estimated today that during his life Charles P. Taft made gifts to art, education, music and charity totaling more than $10,000,000. To the city he gave a collection of paintings and porcelains from his home, purchased for more than $5,000,000, and to the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra he gave $1,000,000. The art objects given to the city are now valued by experts at more than $18,000,000.

William G. Abbot.

William Gardner Abbot of 119 East Eighty-fourth Street died after a brief illness of two days in Detroit on Wednesday. Mr. Abbot devoted his early career to newspaper work, and was connected with the news staff of THE NEW YORK TIMES for about fifteen years. He resigned in 1920 to become assistant to President E. A. Clarke of the Consolidated Steel Corporation. He became special agent attached to the office of L. C. Probert, vice president of the Pere Marquette Railroad, in Detroit.

G. E. WOODBERRY, AUTHOR, DIES AT 74

Works on Edgar Allen Poe and Nathaniel Hawthorne Are Among His Books.

ONCE COLUMBIA PROFESSOR

Held Chair of Comparative Literature for Thirteen Years—Wrote Several Volumes of Poems.

Special to The New York Times.

BEVERLY, Mass., Jan. 2.—Professor George Edward Woodberry, internationally known in the field of letters, died tonight at the Beverly Hospital at the age of 74. In 1905 he received the degree of Litt. D. from Amherst, in 1911 the same degree from Harvard, and in 1907 the degree of LL. D. from Western Reserve University.

Mr. Woodberry was born at Beverly in 1885. The year of his graduation from Harvard, 1877, he was appointed Professor of English at the University of Nebraska. He came to New York the next year, however, and for an equally brief period was on the staff of The Nation, returning to Lincoln to resume his university post. Again he remained but a short time, leaving in 1882 to establish himself at Beverly, where he devoted himself to writing. He contributed to The Atlantic Monthly and for a time was literary editor of The Boston Post.

From 1891 to 1904 Professor Woodberry held the Chair of Comparative Literature at Columbia University. He was a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences, a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters, and an honorary fellow of the Royal Society of Literature.

MARY C. WELLES DEAD.

Secretary of Consumers League of Connecticut for 25 Years.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWINGTON, Conn., Jan. 2.—Miss Mary C. Welles, secretary of the Consumers' League of Connecticut for twenty-five years, died at her home here this morning. She was born here on Nov. 1, 1860, a daughter of the late Roger Welles and Mercy Delano (Aikin) Welles. She was valedictorian of her class in the Hartford High School in 1879 and graduated from Smith College in 1883, where she was a member of Phi Beta Kappa. Yale made her a Doctor of Philosophy in 1904 for work in social welfare.

Miss Welles taught for a while in Hartford High School and later in the Woman's College at Baltimore, at Smith College and the Danielson (Conn.) High School.

Many of the laws of this State for more favorable hours and working conditions for women and young people were due to her constant endeavors.

She is survived by four brothers, Martin Welles, vice president of the Connecticut River Banking Company and secretary-treasurer of the Travelers' Bank and Trust Company, Hartford; Rear Admiral Roger Welles, United States Navy, retired; Judge E. Stanley Welles of Newington and Lemuel A. Welles of New York, attorney for the American Can Company, and a sister, Mrs. H. Leonard Beadle of Newington.

THOMAS NELSON DEAD; REALTY DEVELOPER

Twice President of Peekskill Village—Founded National Music String Company.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Thomas Nelson, who was twice President of the village of Peekskill and had been prominent as a realty developer and in various civic activities, died early this morning at his home, 1,228 Constant Avenue, after a long illness. He left a wife, Cornelia Stevenson Lesley Nelson. Services will be held at the nouse at 3 P. M. on Saturday.

Mr. Nelson was born here in 1860, a son of Judge Thomas Nelson. He was educated at Williams College and the Columbia Law School. After four years at the bar, in order to protect large investments of his father in the musical string industry, he consolidated several firms into the National Music String Company, of which he was president until 1907. Then the death of Judge Nelson caused him to take charge of his father's large realty holdings here, and thereafter he lived in Peekskill. He also owned 4,000 acres at Melbourne, Fla., where he had a Winter residence.

Mr. Nelson organized and was president of the Forest Rangers, a young men's club, for which he built and maintained a rustic clubhouse in the woods on the outskirts of Peekskill. In succession to his father and grandfather, he was a director of the Westchester County National Bank. He was a trustee of the Peekskill Military Academy, and his clubs included the University and Williams of New York, and the Lions of Peekskill, of which he was president.

REV. DR. JOHN L. KISTLER.

Professor Emeritus in Greek of Hartwick Seminary Dies.

Special to The New York Times.

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Jan. 2.—The Rev. Dr. John Luther Kistler, 80 years old, professor emeritus of Hartwick Seminary, Hartwick, N. Y., where he taught Greek for forty-four years, from 1876 to 1920, was found dead in the home of his nieces, the Misses Myers, here today. Dr. E. A. Miller, coroner, said death was due to heart disease.

He was born at Ickesburg, Pa., on Sept. 25, 1849, and was graduated from Gettysburg College in 1872. Four years later he was graduated from the Lutheran Theological Seminary here and immediately began his teaching career. He received the degrees of Doctor of Science and Doctor of Divinity from Gettysburg. His wife, the former Miss Ella Grace Myers of Gettysburg, died on Aug. 21, 1879.

After brief funeral services here tomorrow, the body will be taken to Hartwick Seminary, where services will be held on Monday afternoon. Burial will be at Hartwick.

DR. ANNA J. CROUTHERS.

Pioneer Woman Physician Dies in Elizabeth at 77.

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Jan. 2.—Dr. Anna J. Crouthers, one of the first women physicians in this section of the country, died this morning at her home here. Dr. Crouthers, who had been in failing health for more than a year, was 77 years old. She was the widow of John P. Crouthers, who died many years ago.

She was born in Union Township on July 28, 1852, the daughter of the late Ira and Phoebe Woodruff Tucker. She devoted many years to historical study and research, compiling many articles on the early history of Elizabeth and Union County.

She studied at the New York Medical College and Hospital for Women. After her graduation in 1882 she remained for a time at the college as an instructor in anatomy.

She was a member of the D. A. R., having been historian of Boudinot Chapter for five years. She was a member of the Second Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Crouthers was one of the founders of the Union County Historical Society in 1919.

Surviving are a niece, Dr. Theodorea G. Peck; a sister-in-law, Mrs. Anna Tucker, both of this city, and two cousins.

MME. THERESE MALTEN.

Famous Wagnerian Opera Singer Dies at 74 in Dresden.

BERLIN, Jan. 2 (AP).—Therese Malten, famous Wagnerian opera singer and a member of the former Royal Saxon Opera House Company, died in Dresden today at the age of 74.

After her début in Dresden in 1873, Mme. Malten became principal soprano at the Court Opera there and remained with the company for thirty years. She also sang in London, Berlin, Vienna and other cities at intervals. She was appointed chamber singer to the King of Saxony in 1880 and was chosen by Wagner to play Isolde at Beyreuth in 1883, but the death of the composer caused abandonment of the performance.

In 1882 she sang Kundry in "Parsifal" with sensational success at Bayreuth. She retired in 1903.

LADY FORBES-LEITH DIES.

She Was Decorated and Mentioned in Dispatches in World War.

Word was received here last night of the death on Wednesday at Thame Park, Oxon, England, of Lady Forbes-Leith, wife of Colonel Sir Charles Rosdew Forbes-Leith, distinguished soldier who was a Member of Parliament from Devonshire from 1910 to 1923. Her husband, whose name originally was Burn, assumed that of Forbes-Leith of Fyvie in 1925 under the will of Baron Leith, his father-in-law.

During the four years of the World War Lady Forbes-Leith was commandant and matron of Stoodley Knowle Hospital for Officers at Torquay. She received the Victoria Medal and was twice mentioned in dispatches. She was officer of the Order of the British Empire and a Lady of Grace of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem. Her son, Robert Ian Algernon, is 27 years old.

TRADE GROUP ASKS POSTAL RATE RISE

State Chamber Committee in Report Asks Congress to Act to End Big Deficit.

STRESSES AIR MAIL LOSSES

Warns Against Increase Which Would Curtail Publications or Rural Deliveries.

In a preliminary report to the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York at its regular meeting yesterday the committee on internal trade and improvements of the chamber absolves the Postoffice Department of full responsibility for financial losses in operating the department and recommends action by Congress to correct "some of the existing glaring defects in the service which are important factors in causing annual deficits."

In general the report recommends a reclassification of rates which will insure that each class of mail shall pay a fair proportionate cost of the postal service. But while suggesting a rate adjustment it warns against excessive rates which would curtail the distribution of newspapers as second-class matter. The report was presented yesterday to allow an expression of views and criticism before the final draft. Action will be taken on the report at the meeting of the chamber on Feb. 6.

Mayor Walker was the principal speaker at the meeting, and, following a review of his administration during the past four years and his outline of a program before him, he announced that he would accept the $15,000 salary increase recently voted but that he would divide it among charitable organizations. His announcement brought a prolonged round of applause from the large gathering.

Would Buy West Point Land.

The chamber adopted a resolution urging Congress to appropriate $1,500,000 for the acquisition of about 17,000 acres of additional land adjacent to and in the vicinity of the government reservation at West Point. The resolution called attention to the trend of population northward from the cities of the metropolitan area, the encroachments of Summer camp settlements and other activities tending to hem in the reservation and restrict artillery practice and other manoeuvres.

The sacrifice of the present improvements and the acquisition and construction of a new establishment, the resolution said, would cost the nation $100,000,000, while the adaptation of the 17,000-acre tract to the needs of the academy could now be done at comparatively small expense and provide adequately for the academy's needs probably for the next hundred years. The acquirement of the land, the resolution said, would:

"Preserve the present water supply, keep it free from contamination and provide ample increase for future needs; provide necessary field artillery and small arms firing ranges; provide ground urgently needed for drilling, manoeuvring, camp sites and athletics; provide an aviation and landing field for West Point not now available; guarantee to the academy, the State and the nation a reservation which can be efficiently administered to insure the smooth and orderly functioning of the Military Academy, and provide for future expansion before the cost becomes prohibitive."

Backs East River Bill.

The chamber also adopted a resolution urging Congress to include in the appropriation for rivers and harbors for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1931, the recommendation for New York harbor made in the report of the chief of engineers. The recommendation designated $1,000,000 for the East River. The resolution also asked consideration of additional improvements set forth in its report adopted by the chamber Feb. 2, 1928.

The chamber also approved a list of thirty-seven new members and approved the nomination of J. Vipond Davies for member of the committee on public service in the metropolitan district to serve until May, 1931, in place of W. J. Turner Lynch, resigned. A committee to nominate officers, chairmen and members of standing committees for election at the annual meeting in May was approved.

In reply to a congratulatory message to Rear Admiral Byrd sent by Charles T. Gwynne, executive vice president, on the successful South Pole flight, the following radiogram, received by Mr. Gwynne, was read:

I wish to thank you, and through you the members of the Chamber of Commerce, for your message. The inhabitants of Little America send kindest regards to the members of the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

RICHARD BYRD.

Detailed Report Filed.

The preliminary postal report said:

The Deficits of the United States Postoffice Department.

To the Chamber of Commerce:

At the last meeting of the chamber a resolution was adopted requesting the committee on internal trade and improvements "to look into the matter of the steadily increasing deficit in postal revenues, and to report its conclusions and recommendations to the chamber as soon as may be practicable."

It should be recognized at the start that the responsibility for deficits in the Postoffice Department does not wholly lie with the administration. Salaries and wages are fixed by Congress. Postal rates are also fixed by that body. Accordingly, while the theory has always been that the postal department should be self-sustaining, when Congress fixes both wages and rates for service, making both ends meet may be difficult. A somewhat analagous situation exists in governmental fixing of railroad and public service rates and of governmental regulations in general.

A perusal of the postal service balance sheet will show at once how subsidies fixed by Congress materially increase postal expenses. For instance, since the year 1852 the practice has existed of free distribution of "free-in-county newspapers." This is computed to have caused a loss of $8,782,000 last year. The common estimate for this item has been around $10,000,000 annually, and what the expense would be were the distribution handled as a strictly commercial proposition.

There is also a serious loss due to the preferential rates on religious, scientific and similar publications, known as exempt publications, in that they are exempt from zone rates. It has been estimated that the Postoffice Department loses around $16,000,000 on this item alone.

Among other important items, according to the Postmaster General's 1929 report, that contribute to the annual deficit are $8,000,000, representing the excess of cost of airplane service over the postage revenue derived from air mail; $11,000,000, representing differentials favoring vessels of American registry; $637,000 for franked matter; $3,297,000 for penalty matter for various branches of the government. The Postmaster General's enumeration of these non-productive and extraordinary items equals $32,196,570.

The total deficit for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, was $87,985,841, comparing with a deficit of $33,361,149 in 1928. The increase this year, therefore, is 240 per cent. This occurred in spite of the fact that the gross revenue of $696,947,577 was only $3,000,000 above the preceding year. At the same time, in the budget report of the President, the postal deficit for 1930 is estimated at $84,000,000, and for 1931 at $78,500,000.

"The factors largely responsible for this increase in the deficit are additional pay to postal workers, approximating $7,470,000; allowances for fourth-class postmasters for rent, light, fuel and equipment, approximating $7,390,000; foreign air-mail contracts, approximating $750,000, all authorized and directed by Congress, and additional compensation to railroads, approximating $13,500,000, directed by the Interstate Commerce Commission."

These items aggregate $29,110,000.

Wages.

As a wholesale reduction in wages has often been considered a desirable method for reducing the costs of doing business, your committee wishes to state at the outset that it is not an advocate of low wages. When the salaries of postal employes were raised a few years ago, much was made of it as a factor in producing deficits. However, it is generally agreed that the postoffice employes are a very hard working body of men and women. They have generally been underpaid. Their salaries ought to be determined on grounds of general justice. Underpaid employes do not promote efficiency, either in private or governmental undertakings.

This chamber has maintained that remuneration by the government should be according to the standards for work in private employment involving equal exertion and equivalent responsibility. Experience has frequently shown that an underpaid force of minor officials and clerks can only result in lower efficiency and in deterioration of the character of employes, with the result that greater losses are caused than the saving in the payroll.

Postal Rates.

The postal rates to be levied for various services or classifications have always been a matter of contention and dispute. Even George Washington had something to say about this in his annual message to Congress in 1792, when he favored rates which would "facilitate the circulation of political intelligence and information."

As the handling of first class matter has generally brought a profit, while the second class business has been done at considerable loss, the main difficulties in adjusting rates have centred there.

Your committee feels that it would be a mistake to adopt the theory that every piece of mail should pay its way. Postal rates should be fixed with reference to the broad questions of public policy. An important function of the postoffice is that of furthering intersectional understanding and general intelligence through the speedy distribution of written and printed communications. To some extent the postoffice serves our population as does the public school. Therefore, rates on second class matter should not be so high as to seriously curtail the distribution of newspapers by mail. Also, it should not be overlooked that the four mail classifications create business for one another, and that second class mail is a large creator of business in the first class and other divisions.

It should not, furthermore, be forgotten the postal business, like railway transportation, shows that an increasing volume of mail matter does not add to costs in the same proportion as to revenues. Therefore, rates that are excessive are uneconomical.

Rural Free Delivery.

A substantial part of the loss in carrying second class mail comes from its delivery along rural free delivery routes. These routes, however, were never expected to pay their own way. They can hardly be other than a drain upon profitable postal departments. Their purpose is to give service to the farmers and others located in the rural districts, making life more livable in those lonely places. Their maintenance is a matter of public policy, for the service undoubtedly materially improves our citizenship.

While the rural service should not be curtailed, it no doubt could be made more efficient. The loss in this field, which has been estimated to run as high as $34,000,000 per annum, might be somewhat reduced.

Last year, as already mentioned, $9,000,000 was lost in the rural free delivery service in the item of handling and transportation of second class mail matter free-in-county. Free carriage originated when it generally involved only the work of placing free-in-county matter in mail boxes in the postoffice. Now this matter is carried direct to the homes of the addressees, a far more expensive method and greatly adding to the cost of rural delivery. This appears to be an injustice to newspapers of general circulation, and Congress could well give it consideration.

The parcel post, while originally established principally for the benefit of those living in the rural districts, has reached such a magnitude and is used so generally that it should certainly bear rates that will pay its way.

Recommendations.

1. Your committee on internal trade and improvements believes the postal officials should ask Congress to correct some of the existing glaring defects in the service which are important factors in causing annual deficits. The franking privilege could well be cut down. At the same time, by reclassification and restricting the service, the losses might be lessened in the distribution of free-in-county newspapers, and from preferential rates on religious, scientific and similar publications. Other services may have outlived their usefulness, or are imposing an unwarranted expense to the postal service.

2. The various postal tariffs should be carefully studied with a view to making recommendations for rates which will insure that each class of mail shall pay a fair proportionate cost of the postal service, consistent with general principles of public policy and the economics of transportation.

3. Your committee believes that the Post Office Department should be credited with the amounts of postage involved to cover the losses from handling and transporting matter from which no revenue is derived. This includes mail sent free of postage under the penalty privilege by the executive departments and establishments of the government, and by members of Congress and others under the franking privilege. The mail users should not be charged with the expenses incurred by other departments of the government in transacting their business.

4. While your committee accepts the principle that the postal service should not be run for profit, it firmly believes it should not be run at the enormous loss to the taxpayers of the country, as has been the case in recent years. Receipts and expenditures should be made approximately to balance, giving due consideration to the duties and obligation of our government to its citizens.

The following resolution is offered for your adoption:

Resolved, That the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York expresses its approval of the recommendations herein set forth; and directs that copies of this report be sent to the President, the Postmaster General and other government officials concerned.

Respectfully submitted,
H. HOBART PORTER, Chairman,
WALTER M. GLADDING,
EDWARD C. MILLER,
ROY E. TOMLINSON,
Of the Committee on Internal Trade and Improvements.

DR. R. P. CRANDALL PUT ON BOARD OF HEALTH

Member of Navy Medical Corps for 42 Years Named by Mayor to Complete Staff.

Mayor Walker completed yesterday the personnel of the membership of the Board of Health by naming as one of the two appointive members of that body Dr. Rand P. Crandall of 161 East Thirty-third Street.

Dr. Crandall has been in the medical corps of the United States Navy for forty-two years. For the last five years he has been medical aide to the commandant of the Third Naval District and District Medical Officer. He was graduated from the University of Pennsylvania in 1887.

During his career in the navy, Dr. Crandall saw service in all parts of the world. When President Roosevelt sent the battleship fleet around the world in 1908, 1909 and 1910, visiting all the principal ports, Dr. Crandall was a senior medical officer aboard the battleship Georgia.

During the World War he was in command of the Naval Medical Supply Depot in Brooklyn, keeping all ships, stations and hospitals supplied with medical and surgical equipment. For his work in this depot during the World War Dr. Crandall received the Distinguished Service Medal.

The Board of Health, as now constituted, consists of Dr. Shirley W. Wynne, Health Commissioner, president; Dr. William Schroeder Jr., Commissioner of Sanitation; Dr. J. G. William Greeff, Commissioner of the Department of Hospitals, and two appointed members named by the Mayor, Dr. Harry P. Swift and Dr. Crandall. The appointed members receive $50 for each meeting attended, not to exceed $2,500 in any calendar year.

GANGSTERS SHOOT DETROIT INSPECTOR

Fail in Assassination, but Seriously Wound School Girl in Range of Fire.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Jan. 2.—Inspector Henry J. Garvin, head of the Detroit police bomb and crime squad, escaped death by a fraction today when he was waylaid by gunmen in an automobile, shot several times and seriously wounded. The gunmen's bullets also seriously wounded Lois Bartlett, an 11-year-old girl, as she was on her way to school.

For two months the police have known that a plot was on foot to kill Garvin, through underworld rumor. He has received a number of threats by mail since his squad was organized two years ago.

The assassination was attempted about 7:30 o'clock this morning as he left his home. Inspector Garvin heard another car behind him sound its horn several times. He had noticed in his mirror, he said later, that the car was a large black sedan and that there were several men in it. The car swung around to the right of Garvin's machine, crowding it to the left side of the street.

As the sedan came abreast of Garvin's car, its occupants opened fire. He was struck first in the head, near the base of the skull, and at once crouched beneath the wheel. The firing was continued. Bullets smashed his left arm and pierced his right sleeve.

During the firing the inspector's car jumped the curb and came to a stop on the sidewalk. His assailants, evidently thinking they had killed him, sped away.

SEEKS AGAIN TO BUY CUMBERLAND FALLS

T. Coleman du Pont Renews His Offer to Preserve Beauty Spot for Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 2 (AP).—The Cumberland Falls Preservation Association announced today that T. Coleman du Pont, former Senator from Delaware and a native Kentuckian, has renewed his offer to buy Cumberland Falls at a cost of $400,000 and present it to the State.

Cumberland Falls, a beauty spot in an isolated section of the Eastern Kentucky Mountains, has been purchased by the Cumberland Hydro-Electric Power Company for conversion into a power plant. Application for a permit from the Federal Power Commission to develop the water-power is still pending. The Cumberland Company, an Insull interest, owns the falls site proper, a tract of 200 acres.

Mr. du Pont's offer includes not only the falls site but 2,000 acres surrounding it. Two years ago he had options on both tracts, but when the Legislature failed to accept the offer he allowed the options to expire.

$50 DINNER FOR HOSPITAL

Proceeds to Be Applied to $40,000 Beth David Deficit.

Eight hundred persons, paying $50 a cover, will attend the annual dinner of the Beth David Hospital at the Hotel Astor Sunday night, at which plans to construct a new building will be the chief topic of discussion. The proceeds of the dinner will be used to meet a $40,000 deficit in the past year's operation. Mayor Walker, Lieut. Gov. Lehman and United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle are listed as speakers.

The hospital, now located at Lexington Avenue and 113th Street, has outgrown its present quarters, it was said yesterday. It has 142 beds. In the new building it is planned to double that number and also provide adequate housing for a nurses' training school and for a dispensary. The present dispensary cares for 30,000 out-patients annually.

The hospital's annual report, which will be presented by the institution's president, Harris H. Uris, shows expenditures of approximately $200,000 for 1929. Out of 30,000 hospital days for the year, 12,500 were for patients unable to pay.

PROTEST LOCATING WABC AT NEW SITE

Brooklyn and Queens Radio Dealers Oppose High-Power Station at Jamaica Bay.

MOVE MAY BE ABANDONED

Columbia Company Intimates to Federal Board That It Will Seek Another Site.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—Radio dealers in Brooklyn and the Borough of Queens have protested to the Radio Commission against the proposed location of the new 50,000-watt transmitter of broadcasting Station WABC at Cross Bay Boulevard, between Goose Creek and the Raunt, Jamaica Bay, Long Island. John V. L. Hogan, a New York City radio engineer, has filed a similar protest. The commission made none of the communications public.

The Columbia Broadcasting Company, owner of the station, has asked the commission not to take action on the application filed a few days ago for locating the new transmitter at Jamaica Bay, the intimation being that the location may again be changed.

The commission's engineering division, it was stated today, does not believe WABC will be able to "step up" its transmitter to 50,000 watts power because it would probably blanket the whole neighborhood. They believe the maximum power that could be developed without serious interference would be 15,000 watts.

The Columbia Broadcasting Company has had considerable difficulty in finding a satisfactory site for its proposed high-power transmitter. The company originally decided to locate it at Columbia Bridge, N. J., but this developed such a storm of protest from the people of New Jersey that the company voluntarily withdrew its application for the location and last week the Cross Bay Boulevard site was selected.

RADIO NETWORK TO AID DASH OF ARMY PLANES

Craft Equipped for Sending Messages to Accompany Selfridge Field-Seattle Flight.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—A protective short-wave radio network will follow the Winter flight, starting next Monday, of the first pursuit group during its dash from Selfridge Field, Michigan, to Seattle, Wash., and return, the War Department announced today.

The eighteen fighting planes will be accompanied by a transport craft equipped to send and receive radio messages.

The flight not only will be followed by the radio network comprising members of the American Radio Relay League but the powerful short wave experimental station of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N. Y., also will be utilized to listen in for signals of the plane accompanying the flight and the first ten minutes of each hour the flight is in progress.

The Schenectady station will be in position, in case of emergency, to hear S O S calls from the radio plane accompanying the flight and to communicate with broadcasting stations in the vicinity where the flight is progressing and thus arrange for calls for help.

Negro Group to Meet Sunday.

The annual mass meeting of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People will be held at 3:30 P. M. Sunday in St. Mark's Methodist Episcopal Church, St. Nicholas Avenue and 138th Street, it was announced yesterday. The annual business meeting will be held at the association's office, 69 Fifth Avenue, at 2 P. M. next day. Speakers for Sunday were announced as Dr. W. E. B. Du Bois, editor of The Crisis, and Bishop Francis J. McConnell of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Safety in Distribution

It is safer to purchase 10 shares of stock in 10 leading diversified industries than to purchase 100 shares in just one issue.

Unfavorable developments are unlikely to affect all ten at the same time. If safety is desired, then distribution is needed.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Decline Sharply After Early Brief Advance—Money at Year-End Rates.

If the stock market's action on the first business day of the new year were supposed to foreshadow the subsequent financial trend, the year did not begin auspiciously yesterday. During the earliest hour or two on the Stock Exchange, prices of a good many stocks rose a point or two and a few advanced 5 or 6. But the market turned quickly down again; before the day was over, declines of 6 to 8 points from the forenoon's high levels had occurred and the list had an almost unbroken array of minus signs at the last.

Fortunately perhaps for Wall Street's peace of mind, the initial day on a new year's stock market does not often indicate anything but momentary influences. Several of such influences evidently operated yesterday—an apparently very moderate "reinvestment demand" for stocks; repurchases of stocks sold last month to "establish losses"; realizing sales by surface speculators who had bought a week ago for a "quick turn" on the basis of such buying, and accompanying speculative sales for the decline. If the day's market reflected anything in the way of larger underlying influences, it was suspended opinion regarding the immediate trend of finance and industry.

The money market did not change; it rarely does on the first day of January. A year ago it started the month with 12 per cent call-loan rates and 8½ per cent time money, but was down to 6 and 7½ per cent respectively by the week-end. Yesterday's rates on call were 6 per cent, on time 4¾ to 5; both should go lower normally tomorrow. The bond market as a rule was strong, but with United States bonds wavering curiously. Foreign exchange was lower. Brokers' loans, by the Reserve Bank compilation, showed increase of $96,000,000 for the week; the largest weekly increase since the end of September, but not at all unusual for New Year's week. In this week of 1929 they increased $239,000,000, in 1928 $92,000,000 and in 1927 $31,000,000.

In its statement for the year-end week, the Bank of England showed that something like $2,500,000 imported gold taken in by it in the period had nearly all been swallowed up in withdrawals by Paris. The London bank's gold holdings increased only $425,000 for the week. Completion of the annual settlements at Paris may bring a change, enabling the London institution both to get from New York a share in the gold shipments which have lately gone exclusively to Paris, and to keep it when it has arrived at London. Yesterday the Bank of France itself reported for the week a further gain of $10,800,000 gold, making increase in its gold reserve since our October panic week $70,000,000; in the whole of 1929, $374,000,000. Gold in the Bank of France now amounts in American values to $1,625,052,000, comparing with $1,089,000,000 in the German Reichsbank and with only $711,000,000 in the Bank of England.

It will possibly surprise some readers to learn that the relative position of the three European banks is still almost exactly what it was when the war began. At the end of 1914 the Bank of France held $802,000,000 gold, the Reichsbank $493,000,000 and the Bank of England $338,000,000. All of them now hold much more actual gold than in 1914—the above figures, in American values, not being in any case affected by revaluation of a European currency—but all have increased proportionately. The two great changes that have occurred in relative position during the fifteen-year interval are — America and Russia. At the end of 1914, the Imperial Bank of Russia held $621,000,000 gold, our Federal Reserve $92,000,000. In the last month of 1929, the Soviet's State bank reported gold holdings of $110,000,000, but the Federal Reserve had risen to $2,821,640,000.

THREE CONCERNS JOIN MANHATTAN COMPANY

New York Title and Mortgage and Two Subsidiaries Are Taken Over.

The necessary 75 per cent of the stock of the New York Title and Mortgage Company has been deposited in approval of the plan for the consolidation of this company with the Manhattan Company, and the plan has been declared operative, it was announced yesterday.

Under the plan, stockholders of the New York Title and Mortgage Company receive seven-twentieths of a share of Manhattan Company stock for each share of their stock. The Manhattan Company has extended the final date of deposit to Jan. 16 to allow remaining title stockholders to deposit their stock without penalty.

The New York Title and Mortgage Company has assets of approximately $63,000,000. Its subsidiaries, the American Trust Company with resources of about $70,000,000, and the County Trust Company of White Plains with resources of about $15,000,000, are also brought into the companies controlled by the Manhattan Company.

There will be no change in the management of the New York Title and Mortgage Company. Harry A. Kahler will continue as president.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and In the Financial Markets.

After a burst of strength at the opening yesterday, stocks turned irregular, taking a nose-dive in the last hour and then rallying sharply just before the close. It was a day of bewildering price movements on the Stock Exchange. Wall Street did not consider that the market made an auspicious beginning in the new year. The unsettlement between 2 and 3 o'clock was attributed to a hint of a receivership move by a committee reputed to be acting for certain Class A stockholders of Fox Film. Aggressive selling by professional traders centred in Fox and other issues with the result that prices were driven down sharply. Many issues which figured in the reaction ran up briskly in the last fifteen minutes of trading, so that final quotations did not disclose any wide losses in the active groups. Transactions on the Stock Exchange aggregated 2,932,720 shares.

Bill Rates Lowered.

The reduction of one-eighth of 1 per cent in the yield rates on bankers' acceptances up to 90 days maturity places the selling rate of bill dealers once more below the buying rate of the Federal Reserve Bank. Unless the bank of issue reduces its buying rate, it appears unlikely that many bills will be offered to it at the new rates. During recent weeks bill holdings of the bank have been rising sharply. The past week saw an advance of $17,920,000 in this item. The expansion of portfolio has contributed materially to the ease with which the year-end money strain was passed and to the improvement of conditions in the bill market.

Now for January Reinvestment.

The idea has gained considerable ground in investment banking circles that if the stock market makes any considerable headway during the next few days, the bond market cannot but feel it adversely. In other words, there is still some doubt as to the immediate future of the bond market if stocks tempt the investor. However, a check-up in several bond houses yesterday revealed that sales were reasonably large, some houses doing better business than had been looked for. Sales of municipal bonds, especially, were fairly heavy, a logical cirmustance inasmuch as the majority of the new bond offerings in the last fortnight have been municipals.

Night Work Again.

Some of the large financial corporations, especially the investment trusts, plan to rush their annual reports to stockholders as soon as possible this year, but for their statistical data on securities they could not start the work until after 3 P. M. on Tuesday, the close of the market for 1929. Many of the staffs worked all Tuesday night and most of the New Year's Day in calculating the losses or gains as reflected in the differences between purchase prices and the final quotations of the year. It is expected that generally these annual reports will be ready earlier this year than in recent years, although in some of the outlaying plants of the larger corporations inventories have not yet been completed and the reports will necessarily await these figures. In view of the fact that for 1929 most corporations will report good profits from operations, the urge to make an early showing appears in Wall Street to be quite natural.

Who Will Put Stocks Up?

One of the questions asked most frequently in Wall Street these days, even by persons who would like to buy the market and are still sitting on the side lines, is: "Who is to furnish the buying power if we are to have an advance in the market?" The answer is usually that it will necessarily have to be the professionals who will give the market its 1930 start, because of the fact that public participation is so very greatly restricted at the moment. There was a little splashing about by these professionals yesterday, especially in such stocks as American and Foreign Power, Baldwin, Radio and other purely speculative issues, but in most cases they backed away quickly from their own bargains when pressure began to make itself felt. It is quite generally admitted about Wall Street that a good sized recovery, sustained over a period of a fortnight or so, would work a considerable change in public psychology and in the attitude of the public toward the market. The difficulty is in finding a group willing to go in and furnish aid, even for their own stocks. Few medals are worn on Wall Street chests for financial bravery when the market's immediate outlook is uncertain.

Opinion.

Some interesting answers were obtained from investment bankers and security dealers in response to a questionnaire sent to more than 2,000 of those in the United States by Lawrence Stern & Co., and possibly the answers furnish a good clue to the professional opinion throughout the country. Ninety-seven per cent look for improved conditions, the majority believing that high-grade domestic and foreign bonds will be most active in 1930; 75 per cent expressed the belief that most investors are inclined to await definite proof of a good bond market rather than to invest now, 52 per cent expressed the belief that the bond market will be good this year, 34 per cent considered such prospects fair, 11 per cent expressed the belief that the bond market will be excellent, while 3 per cent reported a pessimistic attitude and looked for a poor market for bonds.

Railroad Earnings.

Figures showing the decrease in net operating income for November of the first seventy-five railroads to report for that month indicated how traffic contracted in the final quarter of last year. The decrease in net was 22 per cent from November, 1928, and the decrease in gross was 7.8 per cent. The extent of the increase in the preceding period of the year indicated that despite the decline in the final period a record net return for the entire year was predicted authoritatively.

MONEY.

Thursday, Jan. 2, 1930.

Easier conditions prevailed at the opening of the new money year. On the Stock Exchange 6 per cent ruled all day, but Street funds went at 5½. Supply was good, but demand light. Time money also showed a softer tone, 30-90 day money going in fair volume at 4¾ per cent. Yields on acceptances, 30-60-90 days were cut ⅛ to 4@3¾ per cent. Commercial paper was dull and unchanged.

SAFETY or PROFITS

Why choose? You can have both!

When you invest under The FRENCH PLAN you do not have to make a laborious decision between safety and profits. No more compromising between risk and income! The FRENCH PLAN offers you a safe 6% income, ample security in the shape of valuable property, and the profits that flow from ownership of income-producing buildings.

Your investment is repaid to you out of all of the distributed earnings of the property.

As long as you have a single dollar invested you receive cumulative 6% on it.

When your money is all repaid you continue to own your proportionate share of 50% of the common stock and to receive profits paid out as dividends.

More than 30,000 investors have found in The FRENCH PLAN a satisfactory method of combining safety and profits in their investments. Funds supplied by these investors have erected some of New York's outstanding buildings, including the great Tudor City group on 42nd St. and the East River. The Fred F. French companies buy the sites, plan, erect and manage the buildings—control all operations from start to finish for the benefit of French investors. The FRENCH PLAN is a demonstrated Success.

Business is Fine with United Thrift Plan, Inc

In spite of the market break and the interruptions of the holidays, United Thrift Plan, Inc. sold $1,622,400 of new life insurance in December 1929 compared with $477,030 in December 1928, an increase of 240%.

This was the largest month's business in the Company's history.

The total business in 1929 was $14,658,200 compared with $9,595,100 in 1928, an increase of 53%.

When you consider how business sentiment was affected by the break in stock prices, you will agree that this is a remarkable showing.

It indicates a fundamental change in trend of thought from Speculation to Thrift.

You can profit by this trend by buying Class "A" Stock of United Thrift Plan, Inc. After giving effect to financing this stock shows a book value of $22.22 a share, and has a liquidating value of $20.00 a share against a cost of $16.00 a share. An initial quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share was paid December 31, 1929.

On the present dividend basis the stock pays 6¼ percent.

A. T. & T. STARTS BOND CONVERSION

Company Receives $11,500,000 for Exchange Into Stock on First Day of Plan.

5% OF ISSUE DEPOSITED

Holders Will Get 115,000 Shares of Stocks at Once—Securities Decline on Exchange.

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company received yesterday approximately $11,500,000 principal amount of 4½ per cent convertible gold debenture bonds for conversion into capital stock, together with about $9,200,000 in cash, against which about 115,000 shares of stock will be immediately issued.

As yesterday was the first day upon which the bonds were convertible, it is indicated that holders of more than 5 per cent of the total issue, convertible into stock for the next eight years, took advantage of the conversion plan at the earliest opportunity. As the bonds yield 4½ per cent and the stock 9 per cent on the par value, the additional $80 in cash required with $100 face value of bonds to acquire one share of stock will earn 5⅝ per cent.

It is understood that numbers of small bondholders and a few large Wall Street holders of the bonds were among those to deposit their bonds for conversion yesterday, the bulk of the deposits taking place at New York and Boston. As the year-end money stringency passes, it is anticipated that a good deal of reinvestment funds will be used in converting the 4½ per cent bonds into stock.

There are $219,112,700 in bonds, sold last Summer, and if all are converted on the basis of $100 in bonds and $80 in cash for each share of stock it will provide the company with $175,290,160 additional cash.

The bonds closed at 138¾ yesterday, a decline of 3¼ points, while American Telephone and Telegraph stock ended at 220, off 2½ points.

General Baking Sales Up 7 Per Cent.

The General Baking Corporation reports that during the past ten weeks its sales have increased at an average rate of 200,000 loaves of bread a week, bringing the total sales for the year to more than 500,000,000 loaves and the annual sales to more than $50,000,000, or more than 7 per cent higher than in 1928.

Investment Planning

A PROPER combination of bonds, preferred stocks and common stocks provides the ideal investment program. The proportions in which such types of securities should be held, however, depend on the situation and requirements of the investor in question.

We shall be glad to confer with any investor in the establishment of a definite, continuing investment program that will best meet his particular needs.

AMERICAN CIGAR CO. OMITS ITS DIVIDEND

President Reports Necessity for Capital Expenditures Amounting to About $12,000,000.

WRITES TO STOCKHOLDERS

Will Sell Preferred Shares to American Tobacco Company and Borrow From It.

The directors of the American Cigar Company decided yesterday to omit the dividend due on the common stock at this time. Their decision was explained in a letter written the stockholders by George W. Hill, president of the company. Mr. Hill wrote:

"The management has found that upward of $12,000,000 capital expenditure, exclusive of common dividend requirements, will be necessary to provide for: Procuring and maintaining adequate supplies of leaf tobacco to properly protect, at all times, the quality of cigars and increase their output; modernizing and extending factories, machinery and equipment to take care of increasing sales and to meet the severe competition now existing in the field; bringing up to date selling and other facilities so as to be comparable with those used by the American Tobacco Company, the holder of a large majority of common and preferred stock of the company.

"Part of the additional funds will be obtained from the sale at $111.50 a share to the American Tobacco Company of 27,000 shares of American Cigar Company preferred stock heretofore purchased from the American Tobacco Company and now held in the treasury, and the balance will be borrowed, when and as required, on a 6 per cent basis from the American Tobacco Company.

"Regardless of earnings, which for the time being probably will not be as large as heretofore, until the above-mentioned needs have been satisfied or reasonably provided for, the management is convinced that it is to the best interest of stockholders to omit the payment of common dividends and to apply earnings, so far as available, to the foregoing purposes and thereby to minimize as far as possible the expense incident to the borrowing of money."

OTHER DIVIDENDS OMITTED.

Century Tire and Rubber and Other Companies Pass Payments.

The directors of the Century Tire and Rubber Company voted yesterday to pass the dividend due on the company's 7 per cent preferred stock at this time.

The Industries Development Corporation passed its quarterly dividend on preferred stock.

The Marks Stores, Inc., also passed the preferred dividend due at this time.

The Continental Motors Corporation of Detroit has omitted declaration of the quarterly dividend of 20 cents a common share due at this time.

INSULL BOND OFFER IS AT YIELD OF 6.07%

The first large security offering of 1930 is announced for today: an issue of $60,000,000 Insull Utility Investments, Inc., ten-year 6 per cent debentures, Series B, which will be marketed at 99½, to yield 6.07 per cent. The offering group will be headed by Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., and will include the Continental Illinois Company, Inc., the Harris Trust and Savings Bank, the Central Illinois Company, the First Union Trust and Savings Bank, Field, Glore & Co., the Foreman-State Corporation, the National Republic Company, Insull, Son & Co., and Insull, Son & Co., Ltd.

The issue, which will carry conversion and stock purchase warrants, will be convertible into common stock as follows: at $65 a share in 1930, at $72.50 in 1931, at $87.50 in 1932, at $105 in 1933 and at $125 in 1934.

Each warrant will provide also that in case the debenture to which it is attached is so surrendered in exchange for common stock during 1931, the holder may simultaneously purchase ten additional shares at $77.50 a share. If surrendered in 1932 the price will be $95, and in 1934 it will be $115. In addition, each $1,000 debenture will carry a non-detachable warrant giving the holder the unconditional right to purchase ten shares of common stock during 1930 at $65 a share.

Consolidated net earnings of the company for 1929 are estimated at $12,227,232, compared with $3,723,450 annual interest charges on all of the debentures to be outstanding. The earnings figures include proceeds from the sale of stock rights last year. Net earnings for 1930 are estimated at $13,450,000.

BOND FLOTATION.

Newton Steel Company.

Offering of the issue of $3,000,000 Newton Steel Company 6 per cent convertible notes, due in two years, will be made today by a group of Cleveland banks headed by the Midland Corporation and the Union Cleveland Corporation. The notes will be convertible into common stock on the basis of $83.33 a share. Proceeds of this financing will be used to supplement funds already raised by the sale of common stock for the cost of the company's new $7,000,000 plant at Monroe, Mich.

E. F. Clark, president, reported that the company earned approximately $2,300,000 in 1929, equivalent to about $7.20 a share on the 264,000 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with earnings of $1,526,346 in 1926. The net for the first eleven months of 1929 approximated 12.7 times the annual interest requirements on this issue of notes.

LISTINGS APPROVED BY STOCK EXCHANGE

Standard Gas and Electric to Use 600,000 Additional Shares in Acquiring Standard Power.

CAPITAL CHANGES PLANNED

Permission for Trading Also Follows Dividend Actions—Other Applications Pending.

The governing committee of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday approved the listing of 600,000 additional shares of common stock of the Standard Gas and Electric Company, which will be used as part consideration to acquire all the property of the Standard Power and Light Corporation as an entirety, the principal asset consisting of 903,737 shares of common stock of the Philadelphia company.

The application of Standard Gas and Electric says that "the plan of acquisition (of Standard Power and Light assets) which has not yet been fully consummated, contemplates the further payment by the company of 220,000 shares of its $7 cumulative prior preference stock; the assumption of the payment of principal and interest on $24,000,000 face-value debentures of the acquired company, and the surrender to Standard Power and Light for cancellation of 2,927,014 shares of participating preferred stock which has constituted the voting control by the parent company; with cash adjustments of current accounts."

The transaction is part of the plan whereby the Standard Power and Light Company will become a holding company whose principal asset will be control of the Standard Gas and Electric Company, upon which stockholders of both companies will act next Tuesday.

Stock dividends and capital changes caused most of the listings which were approved yesterday by the Board of Governors of the New York Stock Exchange. The National Dairy Products Corporation received permission to list, upon notice of issuance, 3,700 additional shares, 3,501 of which will be used for the purchase of the Westphal and Sons Milk Products Company at Hartford, Wis. In addition the corporation will pay $75,000 and assume the disclosed liabilities of the acquired company. The remainder of the listing was to cover a 1 per cent stock dividend on stock given in the purchase of the Frechtling Dairy Company and the Hiland Dairy Company.

Other listings approved yesterday, on notice of issuance, were:

PARK & TILFORD, INC.—2,121 additional shares of capital stock without par value.
DUNHILL INTERNATIONAL, INC.—1,413 additional shares of common capital stock without par value.
CUTLER-HAMMER, INC.—55,000 additional shares of common stock without par value.
SCOTT PAPER COMPANY—3,080 additional shares of common stock without par value.
NASHVILLE, CHATTANOOGA & ST. LOUIS RAILWAY—96,000 additional shares of common capital stock, $100 par value.
CONTAINER CORPORATION OF AMERICA—117,514 additional shares of Class A common stock, $20 par value.
PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD COMPANY—1,436,721 additional shares of capital stock, $50 par value.
UNION TANK CAR COMPANY—1,265,872 shares of capital stock without par value.
NATIONAL DAIRY PRODUCTS CORPORATION—3,700 additional shares of common stock without par value.
GULF, MOBILE & NORTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY—27,273 additional shares of common stock, $100 par value.
STANDARD GAS AND ELECTRIC COMPANY—600,000 additional shares of common stock without par value.
SEARS, ROEBUCK & CO.—100,000 additional shares of capital stock without par value.
ADAMS EXPRESS COMPANY—642,010.4 additional shares of (new) common stock without par value.

Applications to list the following securities are pending before the committee on stock list and may be acted upon at its next meeting:

PUNTA ALEGRE SUGAR COMPANY—Certificates of deposit for $4,132,500 fifteen-year 7 per cent sinking fund convertible debentures, due July 1, 1937.
REPUBLIC IRON AND STEEL COMPANY—40,000 additional shares of common stock without par value.
ABITIBI POWER AND PAPER COMPANY, LTD.—100,000 additional shares of common stock without par value.
BORDEN COMPANY—122,016 additional shares of capital stock, $25 par value.
GENERAL ELECTRIC COMPANY—21,634,452 additional shares of common stock without par value.

RAILS LEAD UPTURNS IN DOMESTIC BONDS

Rise in Botany Mills 6½s Stands Out in List of Industrial Recoveries.

LOCAL TRACTIONS STRONG

Government Issues Irregular in Active Trading—Most Foreign Loans Are Lower.

The initial day's trading of the new year in the bond market resulted in some improvement in domestic bonds, particularly railroad issues, although exceptions were numerous. Foreign loans remained about unchanged on the average. United States Government issues closed irregular.

Several industrial issues made important recoveries, notably Botany Mills 6½s, up 8¾; Cuba Cane Sugar 8s, stamped, up 3½, and the 7s, certificates, up 15 points. Pressed Steel Car 5s jumped 4 points and Lorillard 5½s, 2¾ points.

Yesterday was the first day for the conversion of American Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s, which closed off 3¼ points in sympathy with a decline in the stock. International Telephone and Telegraph convertible 4½s finished a point net lower for the day. Alleghany Corporation 5s finished unchanged and Commercial Investment Trust convertible debenture 5½s were off a point.

New York traction issues proved a strong spot in the public utility list. Interborough 7s shot up 6½ points, the 6s 3 points and the 5s a half point. Third Avenue refunding 4s moved up fractionally, as did B. M. T. 6s and Broadway-Seventh Avenue 5s. New York Railways 6½s were up 3¾ points and the 4½s, 2¼ points. Public Service Corporation of New Jersey convertible 4½s recovered 6 more points.

Although a few of the more active foreign loans turned in gains of several points, quite a section of the list closed fractionally lower, with Leipzig 7s touching a new low at 94⅞ and Rio Grande do Sul 8s at 90. Minas Geraes 6½s of 1958 reached a fresh bottom at 65 but finished strong, reaching 74¾, up 2¾ points.

Trading in United States Government bonds was more active than usual. Final prices ranged from a rise of 8-32 to a decline of 6-32.

TEN NEW MEMBERS IN STOCK EXCHANGE

Transfers of Memberships Are Announced—Three Additions to Roster Proposed.

Ten new members of the New York Stock Exchange have been elected, nine by transfers of seats ex rights, and three transfers of membership have been proposed, it was announced yesterday.

The transfer of the membership of G. Herman Kinnicutt to James C. Fuller has been proposed. Mr. Fuller is employed by Kissel, Kinnicutt. The transfer price was nominal. Another proposed transfer of membership ex rights is that of James L. Cooke to Herman Schwartz for $405,000. Mr. Schwartz is with Emil Mossbacher, a member of the New York Curb Exchange since 1915. The third proposed transfer of a membership ex rights is that of Edgar B. Bernhard to William J. Tillier for $405,000. Mr. Tillier is manager of the bond department of Colvin & Co. and if elected will become a partner in that firm.

The membership of Richard Wharton has been transferred to Herbert H. Childs of Clark, Childs & Co. Memberships ex rights transferred are as follows:

Dean Witter to John Witter of Dean Witter & Co., San Francisco, Cal.
Frank W. Thomas to James N. Rawleigh of A. O. Slaughter & Co., Chicago.
Reuben Grigby Chandler to William J. Fitzsimmons of Hulburd, Warren & Chandler, Chicago.
George S. Mumford Jr. to Mortimer Cobb of William Schall & Co.
W. Wilson Hewitt to Russell L. Gilbert of Henry Clews & Co.
Harry D. Lewis, deceased, to Leonard Wagner of Wagner, Stott & Co.
Jacob M. Kaplan to William H. Combs of Belden & Co.
Alfred Willstater to Pierrepont D. Schreiber of Carlisle, Mellick & Co.
W. G. Pollak to John Dyer of Auerbach, Pollak & Richardson.

GIANNINI AIDES FORM FIRM.

L. V. Belden and W. H. Combs in Stock Exchange Partnership.

Leo V. Belden, formerly president of the Bancamerica Corporation and a director of the Bank of America and the Petroleum Corporation of America, has joined William H. Combs, also associated with the Giannini interests, in the formation of the Stock Exchange partnership of Belden & Co. The new firm will specialize in institutional business and syndicate operations and will have its offices at 44 Wall Street.

Mr. Belden and Mr. Combs came to New York from California in 1926, after having been associated with the Bank of Italy interests on the Pacific Coast for several years. Since the merger of the Bancamerica Corporation and Blair & Co., into the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation both have been actively connected with the new company.

Reports of Monetary Entente in Europe Aid Market—Upswing on the Berlin Boerse.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Jan. 2.—While business on the Stock Exchange at the reopening today showed no expansion, the tone generally was better. In the gilt-edges the 5 per cent war loan was better at £100¼ and the 3½ per cent conversion loan was steady at £74¼.

International industrials were marked up. Brazil Traction rose to 40, Hydroelectric to 40, International Holdings to 5⅝ and International Nickel to 33⅜. The record group showed some improvement, Columbia Graphophone being 6 and His Master's Voice Gramophone £4 9-16. The margarines attracted small buyers, Union being better at £3¼ and Unie at £3 9-32.

There was little further change in shipping issues, but in the aviation section De Haviland rose further to 28s 9d on the full report. Handley-Page preference was not affected by the company's close running against the Curtiss Company in the international safety aircraft competition.

Rubber declined to 7 15-16d a pound, but the shares were steady. Oils were firm on further reduction of the crude output in America, but trading was quiet. More interest was taken in the South African gold section. Tins remained unsettled.

Again there was an abundance of credit seeking employment in Lombard Street today. Old overnight loans were 3 per cent and fresh advances were offered down to 2½ per cent. Bill rates were still weak in sympathy with money. Sterling on New York improved to $4.88 1-32-$4.88 1-16.

General Advance in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Jan. 2.—The first session of the Bourse this year gave indications of impending important developments in the monetary situation which may decidedly affect the future of the French market.

The marked ease which the annual liquidation of stocks was effected was followed today by the fixing of the discount rate at 3½ per cent. At the same time Belgium and Switzerland adopted the same rate. Although a similar measure was not adopted by the Bank of England, there were well-supported reports indicating a general understanding among Western European central banks upon a uniform discount rate which will afford protection against exchange fluctuations.

The French market has hopes, through a decrease of the tax upon foreign securities, of becoming the centre for the redistribution of capital throughout the world, instead, as it has been recently, a drain upon other markets. In any event there is evidence of a general European monetary entente, which in some quarters is appraised as a preliminary precaution in establishing the International bank.

Under the optimistic influence of those factors the first session of the Bourse in 1930 witnessed a brisk resumption of activity during which almost every stock was quoted sharply advanced. Trading was sustained throughout, with results particularly brilliant for French rentes.

The weekly statement of the Bank of France showed a rise in circulation of 1,421,000,000 francs to a total of 68,500,000,000. There was also an increase in commercial discounts which rose 1,372,000,000, with the total, however, of 2,000,000,000 less than at the end of November. The total now stands at 8,611,000,000 francs.

Gold reserves piled higher by 280,000,000 francs brought in during the week, maintaining a proportion to obligations of 47.26 per cent, with obligations 88,158,000,000 francs.

Final quotations on rentes were: The 3 per cents, 85.10; 1918 4s, 98.50; 1920 amortizable 5s, 132.35; 1928 5s, 105.65; 1920 6s, 105; 1927 amortizable 6s, 111.20.

Prices Improve in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Jan. 2.—The pessimism with which the Boerse closed the old year began the new year was soon overcome and many issues improved several points, owing to more favorable prospects in the international money market. The reduction of the private discount rate by one-eighth of 1 per cent further stimulated the market.

Reichsbank shares, the mining group and shipping stocks were firm from the outset, while artificial silks, dye trust shares, department stores and electricals, primarily Siemens and Gesfuerel, which opened slightly weaker, improved during the course of the session.

The closing was firm. The money market was easier, with call loans at 8 to 10 per cent.

A statement issued by the Dresden banking house of Arnhold says German shares dropped from $4,363,000,000 to $3,277,000,000 during 1929, which is a total loss of $1,086,000,000, or nearly one quarter of the previous value.

LONDON BANK'S GOLD RISES ONLY SLIGHTLY

Week's Increase £88,000—Reserve Ratio Almost Down to August Figure.

LONDON, Jan 2 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of England shows the following changes, in pounds sterling:

Gold coin and bullion	increased	£88,000
Reserve in banking dept., gold and notes	increased	9,879,000
Notes in circulation	decreased	9,791,000
Notes in reserve	increased	9,903,000
Loans on govt. securities	increased	14,535,000
Loans on other securities	increased	20,149,000
Public deposits	increased	3,521,000
Other deposits	increased	40,983,000

The proportion of the Bank's reserve to liabilities is 22.68 per cent.

Last week the Bank's ratio was 22.87 per cent; two weeks ago, 27.02. The percentage of June 13, 57.97, was the highest of 1929 and the highest reported in any week since Sept. 21, 1913. The percentage of Aug. 8, 22.41, was the lowest of 1929.

The statement, compared with the corresponding week one and two years ago, is as follows:

Reserve in banking dept., gold and notes	36,333,330	35,035,050	34,324,877

The gold holdings of Oct. 3, 1929, £130,343,588, were the smallest since gold payments were resumed in 1925. The largest in 1929 were £164,211,400, on June 13, and those of Sept. 12, 1928, £176,584,362, were the largest in the history of the Bank. At the close of April, 1925, when free gold payments were resumed by the Bank of England, they stood at £155,742,064.

The Bank of England's official discount rate remains at 5 per cent, to which it was reduced from 5½ per cent Dec. 5, 1929, at which rate it had remained since Nov. 21, 1929, when it was reduced from 6 per cent.

GUARANTY TRUST CO $2,000,000,000 BANK

SABIN AGAIN HEADS BOARD

Resumes Post Relinquished to Alexander on Merger—Other Banks Issue Statements.

The Guaranty Trust Company has entered the $2,000,000,000 bank class in reporting total resources as of Dec. 31, 1929, at $2,017,119,331, a position heretofore occupied only by the National City Bank, which, with its affiliate, the City Bank Farmer Trust Company showed total resources of $2,050,350,533 as of Oct. 4, 1929, the date of its last statement of condition. The increase in resources for the Guaranty since its last statement, as of Sept. 27, 1929, is $158,462,786.

The Guaranty has deposits, including outstanding checks, of $1,309,289,553, an increase of $33,256,669 since the last statement. The bank reports capital of $90,000,000, surplus of $170,000,000 and undivided profits of $32,636,023, the latter showing a gain of $3,827,030.

Sabin Again Chairman.

Charles H. Sabin, who last February gave up his position as chairman of the board of the Guaranty Trust to make way for James S. Alexander, chairman of the National Bank of Commerce, on the occasion of the merger of the two institutions, was elected yesterday to his former office by the directors of the Guaranty. Mr. Alexander announced his resignation on Dec. 18 last, saying that he had completed fifty years of business activity and wished to retire. At that time no announcement was made as to Mr. Alexander's probable successor.

Mr. Sabin, in relinquishing his chairmanship to Mr. Alexander, assumed the office of vice chairman of the bank. He had occupied the position of chairman prior to that time since October, 1921, having been president of the Guaranty before that. He was born in Williamstown, Mass. He began his career as a banker in 1899 with the National Commercial Bank of Albany. His return to the chairmanship of the Guaranty Trust Company means that no official of the National Bank of Commerce now occupies a major office in the Guaranty. William C. Potter, president of Guaranty Trust, has occupied that position since October, 1921.

Other Large Banks.

The Bank of Italy National Trust and Savings Association of San Francisco has moved into the billion-dollar bank class by reporting total resources as of Dec. 31 of $1,055,113,373, a gain of more than $207,589,000 for 1929 and an increase of more than $400,000,000 since March 23, 1927. In addition to the National City Bank and the Guaranty Trust the only other institutions reporting to date that are in the billion-dollar class are the Chase National Bank and the Continental Illinois Bank and Trust Company of Chicago. The last statement of the Equitable Trust Company, however, showed that institution with total resources of $932,357,400 as of Sept. 27, 1929.

Total deposits of the Bank of Italy are reported as $893,892,733, an increase of $195,843,921 for the year. The bank ranks first among the great banks of the world in number of depositors, the number of accounts being in excess of 1,500,000.

The Bankers Trust Company in its statement of condition, as of Dec. 31, shows total resources of $817,976,833, compared with $685,941,863 as of Sept. 27, the date of the last statement. Total deposits, including outstanding certified checks, aggregated $6[illegible]8,217,091, against $529,280,345 in September.

The Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company reports total assets of $769,258,940 as of Dec. 31, a gain of more than $165,000,000 over the aggregate as of June 29. Deposits now amount to $598,326,397 compared with $463,586,558 in June. Capital and surplus remain unchanged at $21,000,000 and $60,000,000 respectively, but undivided profits are now $2[illegible],117,707 against $19,153,269 in June.

Figures of Other Banks.

The Chemical Bank and Trust Company reports total assets, as of Dec. 31, of $423,172,081, compared with $333,165,621 in its previous report of condition. Capital is reported as $15,000,000, surplus a like amount, and undivided profits $7,017,677. Yesterday the directors of the bank added $5,000,000 to surplus from accumulated earnings.

The New York Trust Company yesterday reported its condition as of Dec. 31, showing total resources of $4[illegible]1,665,039, against $348,969,088 reported in its previous statement. Of this amount, deposits, including checks outstanding, total $305,103,001.

The Marine Trust Company of Buffalo reports total resources of $305,7[illegible],008, with deposits of $249,532,824. Capital is reported as $10,000,000, surplus a like amount and undivided profits $10,253,051 as of Dec. 31.

The statement of the Empire Trust Company as of Dec. 31 shows for the first time total resources in excess of $100,000,000. The total is $105,581,682, an increase of $10,915,6[illegible] since its last report three months ago. Deposits during that period increased from $78,525,789 to $90,0[illegible],605.

The Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust Company reports total assets of $33,123,987 as of Dec. 31, of which deposits, including checks outstanding, amount to $25,240,881. Capital funds total $2,341,025. The Bancomit Corporation, controlled by the Banca Commerciale Italiana Trust, reports total resources as of Dec. 31 of $[illegible],149,055.

Trading in the National Raw Silk Exchange totaled 222,675 bales of raw silk in 1929, it was announced yesterday. The approximate value, $133,605,000, exceeded the volume over the Yokohama Bourse, the oldest silk exchange, by 38,695 bales, or about 21 per cent.

The heaviest month here was October, when 31,615 bales were traded; the heaviest week was the one ended Nov. 2, when 11,305 bales changed hands, and the heaviest day was Oct. 2[illegible], when 4,480 bales, a record, were traded.

November Income Off 22 P.C. To $80,633,000 for 75 Roads

The first seventy-five railroads to report November earnings had net operating incomes totaling $80,633,000, against $103,309,000 in November, 1928, a decrease of 22 per cent. Their November gross revenues were $452,358,000, against $490,552,000 in November, 1928, a decrease of 7.8 per cent.

Returns to date indicate net operating income of all Class 1 railroads in November will approximate $88,000,000, against an actual net of $113,694,000 in November, 1928, and $86,424,000 in November, 1927.

LARGE GAINS IN SALES BY MAIL ORDER HOUSES

Sears Roebuck Is 27.8% Above 1928—Montgomery Ward Up 25.47 Per Cent.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Sears, Roebuck & Co. announced today that their sales for 1929 totaled $443,452,640, a new high record, comparing with sales of $346,973,915 in 1928, a gain of $96,478,725, or 27.8 per cent. In December sales were $54,219,540, against $42,434,173 a year before, an increase of $11,785,367, or 27.8 per cent.

This was the first day of the new "thirteen-month" year of the company, with thirteen twenty-eight-day periods. R. E. Wood, president, said it was chiefly for accounting and statistical purposes and to facilitate business comparisons because of the equal lengths of the periods. The regular calendar will be used for outside business contacts and holidays.

Sales of Montgomery Ward & Co. in December were $35,799,316, the largest sales in that month in the company's history and an increase of $3,847,496, or 12.04 per cent, over the corresponding month in 1928. It was the twentieth month for which the company had shown a gain from the corresponding month of the previous year. For 1929 sales were $291,530,621, against $232,354,738 for 1928, an increase of $59,175,883, or 25.47 per cent.

REPAIRS ONE OF 12 CABLES.

Commercial Cable Company at Work on Lines Broken by Earthquake.

The Commercial Cable Company announced yesterday the completion of repairs and restoration to service of the first of twelve cables of all companies which were broken in the north Atlantic Ocean by the earthquake of Nov. 18. The cable which has been repaired was broken in two places. In all, the twelve cables contained twenty-one breaks. The Commercial also announced that it expected to have another cable repaired today.

The Postal Cable Company said last night that it was making progress in restoring its lines. The work has been hampered greatly by the unusually bad weather.

JUNIOR ISSUES TOP TRUSTS' HOLDINGS

National Investors Corporation Group Has Also $506,507 of Foreign Bonds.

ONLY 1,000 OF RAIL SHARES

The National Investors Corporation and its affiliated investment companies made public yesterday their reports for the year ended on Dec. 31, showing that the affiliated companies—the Second, Third and Fourth National Investors Corporations—had net assets of $42,761,366 at the end of the year, compared with an aggregate initial paid-in capital of $48,000,000, while the National Investors Corporation, which manages the group, had net assets of $5,909,145. The reports, mailed to stockholders on Jan. 1, were the first to be released this year by an investment trust showing complete portfolios as of Dec. 31.

The statements showed that the National Investors group has limited its investments to common stocks in the electrical equipment, chemical, utility, food, office equipment and specialty groups, aside from an investment by Second National Investors of $506,507 in foreign bonds. The portfolio included motor, mining, or raw material stocks and only 1,000 shares of rail stocks. Cash and call loans of the four National Investors companies on Dec. 31 totaled $12,961,816. The portfolios of Second, Third and Fourth National Investors were nearly identical.

Asset Value Above Quotations.

The net asset value of Second, Third and Fourth National Investors, as of Dec. 31, was between 23 and 32 per cent greater than the market quotations of their shares on the same day. Second National Investors had total net assets as of Dec. 31 market prices of $10,279,910, compared with $10,589,794, as of Dec. 31, 1928. Net assets at the end of 1929 were equivalent to $102.80 a share on the $5 convertible preferred stock of the company, compared with $105.90 a share on Dec. 31, 1928.

Third National Investors, the financing of which was completed on July 30, 1929, showed total net assets, as of Dec. 31, of $9,079,407, equivalent to $41.27 a share on the common stock, compared with net paid-in capital of $10,359,317, or $47.09 a share.

Fourth National Investors, the financing of which was completed on Sept. 16, 1929, reported total net assets of $23,401,949, as of Dec. 31, 1929, equivalent to $46.80 a share on the common stock, compared with net paid in capital of $29,926,000, or $53.85 a share on the common stock.

Assets of National Investors Corporation, as of Dec. 31, 1929, it was announced, consisted solely of cash and call loans and investments in the common stock and purchase warrants for the stock of the three affiliated companies. Total assets of National Investors on Dec. 31 were $6,045,158.

The common stocks in the portfolios of Second, Third and Fourth National Investors on Dec. 31 were:

Profits Offset Depreciation.

Total cost of securities owned by Second National Investors was $8,965,037, compared with market value on Dec. 31 of $7,788,320, indicating a depreciation of $1,176,717. This, however, was offset by net realized profits during the year of $1,366,833.

Total cost of securities owned by Third National Investors was $9,491,355, compared with a market value on Dec. 31 of $7,879,300, indicating depreciation of $1,612,055. This was partly offset by net realized profits of $552,145 during the year.

Total cost of securities owned by Fourth National Investors was $18,076,559, compared with a market value on Dec. 31 of $15,467,800, indicating depreciation of $2,608,759. This loss was increased by net realized losses of $914,290 from the commencement of operations until Dec. 31.

The cash positions of the four companies on Dec. 31, 1929, were: National Investors, $1,173,721; Second National, $2,638,285; Third National, $1,248,691; Fourth National, $7,901,119.

RETICENT ON HOLDINGS.

Lehman Corporation Withholds List of Its Securities.

The Lehman Corporation, the investment trust sponsored by Lehman Brothers, which reported yesterday that its net assets at the end of 1929 amounted to $91,344,917, equivalent to $91.54 a share on its stock, will adhere to its policy of not disclosing the securities which it is holding for investment, an officer of the company declared.

Owing to the youth of the company which began business Sept. 24 and the fact that it had not completely established its investment position in the stocks in which it was interested, the spokesman for the company said it had been deemed inadvisable to announce the composition of its portfolio as of Dec. 31.

Such an announcement, he added, might make it more difficult for the corporation to carry out its investment policy, since it might increase the number of bidders for the stocks which it was acquiring. If conditions changed, he said, the corporation might consider adopting a policy of more publicity concerning its investment holdings.

CURB STOCKS CLOSE IN GENERAL DECLINE

Early Trading Irregular, With Mid-Session Gains for Several Leaders.

UTILITIES DROP AFTER RISE

Oils Firm and Some Aircraft Issues Retain Advances—Losses in Industrials and Trusts.

The Curb Exchange began the year with an irregular price movement and closed the day in general below the final 1929 levels, after midsession spurts in a number of the leading stocks. A few active stocks, including several aircraft issues, retained their gains in part, and the oils were fairly firm.

In the active utility group early gains were nearly all superceded by losses, Allied Power and Light, American and Foreign Power warrants, American Gas and Electric, American Superpower, Middle West Utilities and Northern States Power A declining briskly to end with losses. Standard Power and Light has disappeared from trading, apparently being held because of the forthcoming recapitalization. Baltimore Gas, Associated Gas and United Light and Power A gained moderately.

American Cigar and Fox Theatre A sagged below their low record of 1929, while declines also appeared in some other industrials. Aviation Corporation of America, Fokker Aircraft and Newmont Mining advanced. In the trust group Electric Power Associates, Goldman Sachs and National Investors declined.

REPUBLIC STEEL WINS PATENT LITIGATION

Federal Judge Renders Decision in Suit Involving Electric Welding Process.

The new $350,000,000 merger of independent steel companies, of which the Republic Iron and Steel Company is the nucleus, will have full control of the Johnston process for electric welding of steel tubing as a result of a decision by Judge C. G. Galston in the United States District Court in Brooklyn, it was announced yesterday.

The decision was rendered in a patent suit brought by Steel & Tubes, Inc., of Cleveland, a subsidiary of the Republic Iron and Steel Company, against the Greenpoint Metallic Bed Company of Brooklyn. The court held that the patents were valid and had been infringed.

Republic, which is using the process, is building a $10,000,000 electric welding tube plant at Youngstown. The process was invented by Gustav V. Johnston of the American Metal Holding Company of Chicago.

CORPORATION REPORTS.

Results of Operations Announced by Industrial and Other Organizations.

United Fruit Company.

For the year ended on Dec. 31 the United Fruit Company reports approximate net income of $17,600,000 after charges and taxes, against $20,606,393 in 1928. For the quarter ended on Dec. 31 the approximate net income is $5,700,000, compared with $6,300,000 in the same quarter of 1928.

BOX PLANTS TO MERGE.

Container Corporation Will Buy Sefton and Dixon Companies.

The Container Corporation of America is to buy the Sefton Manufacturing Corporation and the Dixon Board Mills, Inc., subject to liabilities, according to an application for the listing of stock made by the former company to the Stock Exchange and announced yesterday. Sefton, Inc., have controlled the properties about to change hands.

The Container Corporation issued 117,514 shares of $20 par class A common stock to pay for the properties acquired. These shares were approved for listing, bringing the total of shares listed to 474,314 shares. The acquired properties are in Brooklyn, Chicago, Anderson, Ind., and Carthage, Ind. The Sefton plants made corrugated containers, folding boxes and pails and the Dixon plant makes paper board and straw board.

MOTORS DIVIDENDS $166,000,000 IN YEAR

Corporation Distributing Extra of 30 Cents a Share on Common Stock.

SLOAN VOICES OPTIMISM

Predicts Stabilization of the Industry at 5,500,000 Vehicles as Annual Output.

With the $13,000,000 now being distributed in the form of an extra dividend of 30 cents a share on common stock, the total disbursement to stockholders of the General Motors Corporation applicable to 1929 earnings is increased to about $166,000,000, according to a statement yesterday by President Alfred P. Sloan Jr. Pointing out that $174,704,759 was paid to stockholders out of 1928 earnings, Mr. Sloan tells stockholders that he hopes they will consider the 1929 showing satisfactory, "especially in view of the unsettled conditions which have affected business activity during the recent past.

"It is exceedingly pleasing to me to be able to state that the total number of General Motors stockholders has increased during the past year from 71,000 to about 200,000," he says, adding that the increase "has been especially marked during the last sixty days."

Mr. Sloan states that during the last few months the scope of General Motors' activities has been widened greatly. "We have made certain investments for the purpose of strengthening our position in the automotive field," he continues. "We are now identified with the airplane industry through interests in the Bendix Aviation Corporation and the Fokker Aircraft Corporation. We have entered the field of radio by association with the Radio Corporation of America.

Calls Auto Industry Sound.

"These acquisitions, together with the important developments that have taken place through the Frigidaire Corporation have resulted and will still further result, through natural evolution, in an increasing diversity of General Motors activities and should accomplish a more effective capitalization of our manufacturing plants and equipment, our organization and our extensive distributing system throughout the world.

"It must, however, be fully recognized that General Motors is engaged primarily in the automotive business and its affiliated industries. Its success is importantly linked with that of the manufacture and sale of motor cars. The automotive industry rests upon the most solid of foundations—that of transportation."

Mr. Sloan says that the automobile replacement market, "negligible up until the last few years, has injected into the industry a stabilizing influence of prime importance."

"With an increase in the world use of motor vehicles to over 30,000,000 and an upward trend in the number of new owners in the newer markets of the world, our studies," he says, "indicate a stabilization of the American industry at around 5,500,000 vehicles a year, to be reached within the next few years. In addition to this it is reasonable to expect increases from year to year through the natural growth of population and wealth.

Sales Holding Up Well.

"The production of motor cars during the last quarter of 1929 was on a reduced scale as compared to the previous periods of the year and somewhat less than the corresponding period of 1928.

"This does not in any sense indicate a change in the trend of retail sales. The movement of cars at retail is, after all, the only real index as to the position of the industry. The last quarter of the year is always low from a production standpoint because of the custom of readjusting plants and equipment incident to the revision of models for the new year. The trend is toward more and more of such changes taking place at the end of the year.

"General Motors retail sales during the last quarter of 1929, so far as can be estimated at this writing, somewhat exceeded the corresponding quarter of 1928. Furthermore, although complete figures are not available at this writing, our total retail sales for 1929 were practically the same as our record performance of 1928."

CHRYSLER SEES GOOD YEAR.

Predicts Closer Connection Between Production and Merchandising.

Anticipation of a return to normal production early this year was expressed yesterday by Walter P. Chrysler, president and chairman of the board of the Chrysler Corporation. He said he also expected a continuation of good business for 1930 because ample opportunity to observe the reaction to the stock market decline had indicated that only a relatively small percentage of the buying power of the country had been affected by it.

"Meanwhile business generally," he continued, "especially automobile manufacture, has been cleaning house. Overloaded distribution facilities are being relieved of pressure of stocks on hand and inventories will be greatly lowered by April 1. Production and merchandising of automobiles this year promise to be on a more profitable basis for dealers and distributers as well as manufacturers. More than ever before Chrysler Corporation's production this year will be based on retail sales to the public. Moreover both dealers and manufacturers will be better equipped to handle the used car situation."

HOTEL NEW YORKER OPEN.

200 Register in First Day and the Lobby Is Thronged.

The New Yorker, largest hotel in the city, at Thirty-fourth Street and Eighth Avenue, was set into operation yesterday as a staff of 2,100 employes busied themselves in caring for almost 1,000 registered guests and hundreds of others who visited the forty-three story structure to promenade through its modernistic lobby or dine and dance in its restaurants.

Ralph Hitz, managing director of the hotel, supervised the operation of the building's huge machinery and personnel, which is calculated to serve 2,503 guests. At 8 P. M. last night 800 guests had registered and there were reservations for 200 more.

Nathan S. Jonas of the Manufacturers Trust Company, which occupies space in the building, was one of the first to formally register at the hotel.

Does the Automotive Industry Hold the Key to Our Future Business Prosperity?

In years of full production, the automotive industries consume around 18 per cent of the country's total output of rolled steel, 85 per cent of our rubber imports, 75 per cent of our plate glass output, 20 per cent of hard wood lumber output, 25 per cent or more of our aluminum output, 15 per cent of our copper output, 25 per cent of our lead output, almost 30 per cent of our nickel output, and 80 per cent of our gasoline output.

Superlative adjectives are wholly warranted. The automotive industries have become a tremendous factor in our economic structure. What, then, of the outlook for this great industry during the next six months, the next year, next five years?

The conclusions reached by the Standard Statistics Company, Inc., are based on the most exhaustive survey of a key industry ever undertaken by this, the largest statistical organization in the world. They are presented to the newspaper reading public in this skeletonized form because we assume that, at this particular time, they may constitute a matter of general public interest. This survey is one of a series that the Standard Statistics Company is making of America's greatest industries.

A Five-year Forecast of the American Automobile Industry

"AT THE wheel of the automobile rides America's industrial destiny." It is estimated that, directly and indirectly, the automobile industry and its related lines furnish employment for nearly one-tenth of the bread-winners in this country. This group has become vastly more important than any other single group of industries in our economic structure.

The tempo of general industrial activity throughout the country at any given time, therefore, bears an intimate and basic relationship to activity in the motor trades. Significant changes in the volumes of production and sales in these trades are closely related to significant changes in the general business situation.

Because of its outstanding importance, the automobile industry has been selected by the Standard Statistics Company as the starting point in a special study probing into the long term outlook for a number of leading American industries. The results of this study will be reported to our clients in a series of detailed analyses under the head, "THE NEXT FIVE YEARS IN AMERICAN BUSINESS PROFITS."

This is an ambitious title—and an ambitious program. But it is not a guessing expedition, and not one which requires the assumption of any magic powers of prophecy.

All Business Men Strive to Forecast

Every competent business executive and every careful security owner must be constantly laying his plans ahead—often years ahead. To do this intelligently, he must continuously strive to estimate future probabilities. His success in achieving a reasonable, workable estimate of TOMORROW depends both upon his judgment and upon the facilities for research which he has at his disposal.

In its "Next Five Years" studies, the Standard Statistics Company has attempted exactly what the average business leader or the average large scale investor is constantly seeking. It is the work-a-day business of our extensive staff of economists, statisticians and field analysts to be regularly dealing with problems of this type.

The "Next Five Years" analyses are "special" only because they attempt to estimate reasonable probabilities farther ahead than is customary. Our investigation has been more far-reaching and more detailed than is ordinarily feasible. We have also had the privilege of consulting, and checking our judgment against a much greater number of industrial executives than it is usually possible to confer with.

The Largest Statistical Organization in the World

The Standard Statistics Company is the largest statistical and advisory organization in the world. For almost a quarter of a century it has been furnishing bankers, investment houses, business executives and individual investors with the most exhaustive, thorough-going type of general business and investment information and counsel available.

"Standard" employs over 800 people, including representatives in every important city in the United States and Canada, who are constantly engaged in collecting, analyzing and interpreting significant facts regarding thousands of corporations in scores of industries.

Among its clients, "Standard" numbers not only a multitude of the country's leading business men, but also all of the largest banks and financial houses in North America.

It has won the confidence of its many subscribers because its findings have proved reliable, because its counsel is unbiased, because the information it supplies is complete and right up to the minute.

Through the Services published by the Standard Statistics Company, you, too may secure, at small cost, the exact type of information and advice you need to meet your specific problems.

Simply write us on your business letterhead, and we will gladly tell you, without any obligation whatever, about the sort of results we believe Standard Services could accomplish for you.

Automobile Production

The conclusions we have reached, following our special investigation of the long term outlook for the automobile industry are summarized (very briefly) below:

On the basis of facts now knowable, we tentatively estimate that total production of passenger cars and trucks in the United States and Canada during the next five years should amount to somewhere around 26 million vehicles.

Such a volume of production during the next five years would mean an increase of 14 per cent as compared with the out-turn of the past five years (1925-1929).

This schedule would call for an average "normal" production of around 5.2 million passenger cars and trucks per year. Normal expectancy for each of the next five years, therefore, is greater than actual production in any past year except 1929. And, of course, over the next five years, actual production will tend to fluctuate above and below the trend of normal expectancy.

It is our judgement that in 1929, when almost 5.7 million motor vehicles were produced, there occured over-production, over-selling and perhaps temporary over-consumption of automobiles.

The penalties for these excesses now seem likely to assert themselves in 1930—especially in the first half of the year. Production and sales for the current year as a whole will, we believe, be less than normal expectancy.

Producer-Dealer Relationships

The year 1929 was not a prosperous one for the majority of the 53,000 automobile dealers in the United States and Canada. They were obliged to take too many cars. The pressure upon them to do so resulted in the accumulation of unduly large stocks of both new and used cars, and therewith in trade-in allowances which too frequently were not on a sound business basis. A prosperous automobile industry implies a prosperous dealer organization.

Thus it is our opinion that if the automobile industry as a whole is to measure up to its normal expectancy over a period of years, further improvement in producer-dealer relationships must occur. All important producers must, we believe, follow the same constructive steps that certain leading manufacturers have already taken in the direction of stabilizing and improving the dealer situation.

Obsolescence

Attainment of the industry's full possibilities over a period of time depends also upon another vital factor.

"It depends," our analysis asserts, "upon the disposition of American automobile users, in the future as through the past, to continue to be the most 'wasteful' class of human beings that has ever inhabited this planet.

"This observation is not made disparagingly or cynically. Indeed, there are some grounds for the assumption that the future of America's prosperity depends not upon saving, but upon a corresponding disposition to waste." . . . to scrap old things before they are entirely worn out, and purchase newer and better ones.

In the automobile industry, this means a continuance of the practice of discarding cars which still have many miles of useful transportation in them, and buying the newer and better cars which each year become available.

"The future of the automobile industry will be solved on the drafting board," Mr. Henry Ford is said to have recently remarked. So many further engineering improvements in the automobile are possible—indeed are now being worked on—that there is scant room for doubt but that the new conception of obsolescence in the automobile industry can be carried through the future as through the past.

Profits and Security Values

With a reasonable expectancy of producing somewhere around 26 million new cars during the next five years, the automobile industry needs nobody's tears and nobody's sympathy. If reasonable expectancy proves to be the actuality, the industry's long term future should be mainly a prosperous future—subject, of course, to temporary sinking spells following periods of abnormal production and consumption.

The peak in aggregate automobile producers' profits has probably not already been reached and passed; it more likely lies in the future.

On the average, the common stocks of leading automobile producing concerns have been drastically deflated during recent months. In our special analysis we name seven issues which we believe will justify higher prices, over a period of time, and after the industry has worked off the effects of last year's excesses.

May We Send You a Complete Copy of Our Analysis?

Unfortunately, space limitations enable us to give only a very brief summary of our complete report. The entire analysis, however—of far-reaching importance to every business man and security holder—is available to those who desire a detailed statement of the facts upon which the foregoing limited summary is based. We shall be glad to send you a copy of this complete report, with our compliments. Simply fill in the coupon below, and pin it to your business letterhead.

URGE UNIFORM BASE FOR UTILITY RATES

Witnesses Favor Change When Questioned on Prendergast and Bauer Plans.

GIVE NO OPINION ON THEM

Alfred Farstall Tells Legislative Commission Prohibition on Service Charge Should Be Lifted.

That a uniform method of establishing the basis for determining rates to public utilities consumers would be of the greatest benefit to the complicated business of regulation, but that no such method has been evolved as yet, was the unanimous conclusion of witnesses before the legislative commission on revision of the public service law at the Bar Association yesterday.

Much of the questioning at the long session was based on the plans for such a base proposed by Chairman William Prendergast of the Public Service Commission and Dr. John Bauer, utility expert. None of the three witnesses, Alfred Forstall, consulting engineer; Public Service Commissioner Neal Brewster, and Professor Henry Riggs of the University of Michigan, expressed the opinion that either plan would work successfully.

Mr. Forstall, when asked for specific recommendations for changes in the law, suggested that the prohibition of a fixed, or service, charge for electric and gas companies should be eliminated. Such a charge, he maintained, provided a far more equitable basis both with regard to the cost to the company and the benefits to the consumer.

In general, Mr. Forstall took the position that rates should be regulated only within broad limits, the cost to the company, plus reasonable profit, forming the minimum rate allowed, and the value to the customer forming the maximum rate. Taking the city subways as an example, he said that the great use made of the subways indicated that they were worth several times the present fare to the customer.

Commissioner Brewster expressed himself as opposed to the idea of a special people's counsel to serve communities throughout the State in rate revision cases. He said the corporation counsel of each community was the best official for the purpose, and suggested that technical assistance might be rendered to him either by a member of the commission's legal staff, or a Deputy Attorney General of the State.

Professor Riggs testified principally on methods of valuation and of figuring depreciation. He said that original cost was the best basis for figuring valuation after a period of declining prices, whereas he preferred reproduction cost as a basis when prices have increased since the installation was made. Investments could be protected only through such a dual system, he maintained. The sessions will be continued today.

BROOKLYN GAS CASE WAITS.

Adjourned as Witnesses May Be Called by Legislative Inquiry.

The Public Service Commission's rehearing of the Brooklyn Union Gas Company's application for a change in its rate schedule was adjourned indefinitely yesterday when it was learned that the Legislative Commission on Revision of the Public Service Law, now meeting at the Bar Association Building, was likely to summon members of the Public Service Commission and other principals at the rehearing. Counsel for the city and for the company agreed to the postponement.

The hearing will be reopened, it was indicated by Commissioners William A. Prendergast and George R. Lunn, who presided, when the legislative investigators finish the taking of testimony into matters requiring the presence of the Public Service Commission. This may be in the latter part of this month, it was said.

Maurice Hotchner, special counsel for the city in the case, and Dr. John Bauer, technical expert, were prepared to cross-examine E. J. Cheney, Brooklyn Union Gas Company's expert, on statistics in connection with its application to readjust its rates from the present $1.15 per 1,000 cubic feet of gas to 95 cents for the first 200 cubic feet of gas and 9 cents per 100 cubic feet thereafter.

STRUCTURAL STEEL OFF.

Both Contracts and Inquiries Decline in Past Week.

Structural steel awards fell to 41,000 tons during the past week from 90,000 in the preceding week. Inquiries for the week also declined from 50,000 tons two weeks ago to 32,000 tons last week.

The outstanding awards included 18,700 tons for subway in Brooklyn to the American Bridge Company; 3,500 tons for the Walton High School, in the Bronx, to the Bethlehem Fabricators, Inc.; 1,600 tons for a New York apartment to the Taylor-Fichter Steel Construction Company; 3,500 tons for Wabash Avenue bridge, Chicago, to an unnamed bidder; 3,675 tons for the Southwestern Bell Telephone Company building, San Antonio, to the McClintic-Marshall Company.

Important inquiries included 1,900 tons for the Central Hanover Bank and Trust Company building here and 2,000 tons for a Brooklyn airport for the Department of Docks.

STOCKS FLUCTUATE IN COUNTER MARKET

Trend Upward Early in Day, but Prices Weaken in Later Trading.

After a day of fluctuations the over-the-counter market finally closed with very slight price changes yesterday. There was a distinct upward trend early in the day, but the market softened later and prices eased back practically to their opening levels.

Bank stocks went back even below their openings in many instances, notably County Trust, Brooklyn Trust, New York Trust, Manufacturers, Guaranty, City, Bankers, Bank of America and Bank of United States, all of which lost several points.

There was also a downward trend in the insurance issues, although Aetna Fire, Hartford Fire and Providence-Washington closed higher. Among the issues which lost ground were Baltimore American new, Consolidated Indemnity, Great American, Home, National Liberty and Peoples Fire.

Industrials were irregular. Wheeling Steel preferred B, Remington first preferred, and Amalgamated Laundries were lower, while Crowell Publishing common and Scovill Manufacturing were slightly higher. Chain stores were quiet, as were utilities.

RECORDS IN WIRE INDUSTRY.

Telephone and Telegraph Receipts Reached Peak in 1929.

The telephone network of the United States, with a plant investment of $4,200,000,000, built up gross revenues in 1929 estimated at $1,200,000,000, a new record. Telegraph companies likewise did a peak business, with gross revenues estimated at $170,000,000, making $1,370,000,000 the commercial value of wire communications originating in the United States.

Cable and radio business is not included in the compilation.

COURT IS ANGERED AT NEON HEARING

Tells Hollingsworth's Counsel He Will Entertain No More General Objections.

SKIFF TAKES THE STAND

Testifies Value of Outdoor Electrical Advertising in This Country Exceeds $30,000,000.

Repeated objections by counsel for the defense prompted Magistrate George W. Simpson, presiding in Municipal Court term yesterday in the case of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., to exclaim that there was a limit to patience and that he would listen to no further objections of a general nature. The hearing is that of W. T. P. Hollingsworth and Robert L. Kester, president and vice president, respectively, of the Claude Neon Lights, Inc., who are charged with causing the insertion of a fraudulent advertisement, which, it is contended, resulted in the frustration of a stock issue.

Magistrate Simpson had ordered that the prosecution complete evidence to support the complaint, and Walter Skiff, sales manager for the National Neon Agency, was the only witness heard at the afternoon session.

The witness said the value of outdoor electrical advertising in the United States exceeds $30,000,000; of this, the Claude Neon products covered $16,000,000 and the Rainbow Luminous Products Company $4,500,000. The balance, he testified, was distributed among two or three hundred independent manufacturers. He told of the penetrating qualities of the lights, and how the light tubes are used not only for advertising purposes but for aviation landing fields and for the identification of cities from the air, for railroads and railway crossings.

The witness was challenged on many statements by counsel for the defense, who appealed to the court with objections.

Magistrate Simpson finally declared: "I have sat in this court for eleven and one half years and I think I know how to preside. Until you make a motion to have the case thrown out on the grounds that there is no prima facie evidence I shall refuse to hear any further argument of this type. Thirty-seven years at the bar is quite sufficient for me to satisfy myself that I know how to direct proceedings. I shall decide all this to my satisfaction after I have heard the case fully and fairly. I look upon some of these objections as a sort of criticism which is entirely unwarranted."

The defense counsel protested that he had no intention of criticizing the magistrate.

"There is a limit," exclaimed the magistrate, "to patience."

To illustrate the scope of the business, the witness gave the names of numerous concerns using Neon light products. To this Julius Henry Cohen, attorney for the defense, replied that there was no question of the magnitude of the business; the defense, he said, protested against generalities and demanded that specific proof of fraud be brought, and declared that not a word to show fraud had been submitted to the court.

The case will be continued this afternoon.

AUTO SHIPMENTS REPORTED

Buick, Chevrolet and Hupp Give December and 1929 Figures.

The Buick Motor Company reported today shipments of 6,515 cars in December, against 9,761 in November and 12,897 in December, 1928. Of last month's total 4,681 were Buicks and 1,834 Marquettes. The January schedule calls for 7,248 cars.

For December the Chevrolet Motor Car Companay announced production of 27,437 units, compared with 20,736 in the same month of 1928. For all of 1929 production was 1,301,166 units, against 1,193,212 in 1928.

WILL REPORT DAILY ON GOLD MOVEMENT

Federal Reserve Bank to Issue Prompt Notices of Exports and Imports.

$7,250,000 FOR FRANCE

First Shipment of New Year on the Berengaria Tomorrow—Foreign Exchanges Sag.

The Federal Reserve Bank of New York inaugurated yesterday a policy of issuing daily statements of gold movements in lieu of the weekly statements which have been released each Thursday afternoon. In making known each day the amount of gold taken in or sold the Reserve Bank will be following a practice long pursued by the Bank of England. The daily gold statements will provide the financial community with early knowledge of the country's gain or loss of the metal, and in view of the present movement of gold out of this country the new procedure will be of great interest to the banking world.

The first of the daily statements showed no movements of any kind to have taken place yesterday and no changes in the amount of gold held under earmark for foreign account.

The weekly statement, given out at the same time, showed exports of $11,255,000 to France, all but $5,000 of which had been reported unofficially, and imports of $99,000, which came chiefly from Latin America. An increase of $2,000,000 in earmarked gold was shown.

At least $7,250,000 in gold will leave this country for France on the Berengaria, which will sail tomorrow, it was learned yesterday. Of this amount $1,250,000 will be sent by Heidelbach, Ickelheimer & Co.

Most of the principal European currencies showed weakness yesterday, reflecting a normal year-end development. It is the practice of foreign banks having balances here to withdraw them just before the end of the year for window-dressing purposes, a process which weakens the dollar. After the new year arrives these funds are sent back and the demand for dollars to effect this return depresses the other currencies. The pound sterling lost half a cent yesterday on the foreign exchange market, closing at $4.87 13-16 for cable transfers. The franc dropped below the gold shipping point to $0.0393 13-16, for a net loss of one-quarter point on the day.

Tomorrow's gold exports on the Berengaria will be the first gold movement of 1930. Bankers expect a continuation of the exports which got under way last Fall and look for a substantial outflow in the next few weeks, but they see no cause for alarm, since the country finished 1929 with a net gain of about $115,000,000 after allowing for a net increase in earmarked gold of $55,000,000.

MONEY IN NOVEMBER ROSE TO $67,058,239

Country's Gold Decreased $19,172,352, but Reserve Bank Circulation Increased $83,122,500.

The Treasury Department's monthly report on the general stock of all kinds of money in the United States as of Dec. 1 shows the following principal changes during November. Gold earmarked for foreign banks is deducted; gold released from earmark is added:

Total	increased	$67,058,239
Gold	decreased	19,172,352
Silver dollars		Unchanged
Federal Reserve notes	increased	83,122,500
National bank notes	increased	1,252,290

Total	increased	$555,135,043
Gold	increased	238,590,324
Silver dollars	decreased	852
Federal Reserve notes	increased	305,438,020
National bank notes	increased	1,400,346

The treasury's table of the stock of money of various kinds held in the United States on Dec. 1 compares as follows with that of the preceding month and with the same month last year:

	Dec. 1, 1929.	Nov. 1, 1929.	Dec. 1, 1928.
Gold coin and bullion	$4,366,832,819	$4,386,005,171	$4,128,242,495
Subsidiary silver	308,801,117	307,370,036	303,605,207

Total	$8,836,658,420	$8,769,600,181	$8,281,523,377

In the present total stock of money there are $1,243,373,659 gold certificates, $487,875,294 silver certificates and $1,274,850 treasury notes of 1890.

Comparison of the most important items on Dec. 1, 1929, with the corresponding date of previous years, is as follows:

	Gold.	F. R. Notes.	Total.

FRENCH BANK TAKES IN 281 MILLIONS MORE GOLD

PARIS, Jan. 2 (AP).—The weekly statement of the Bank of France shows the following changes in francs:

Gold	increased	281,000,000
Sight balances abroad	decreased	42,000,000
Bills disc. at home	increased	1,367,000,000
Bills bought abroad	decreased	78,000,000
Advances	decreased	22,000,000
Circulation	increased	1,421,000,000
Current accounts	increased	266,000,000

With the above changes for the week, yesterday's statement of the Bank of France, which covers the actual position of a week ago, compares as follows with those of the preceding two weeks and the corresponding week in 1929. Items in the table are in millions of francs:

	Jan. 2, 1930.	Dec. 26, 1929.	Dec. 19, 1929.	Jan. 3, 1929.
For. sight credits	7,248	7,290	7,190	13,510

The gold reserve reported this week is the highest in the history of the bank. The largest holdings prior to revaluation of the currency in 1928 were on Sept. 2, 1920, when they were 5,590,670,890 francs at the old valuation, or 27,953,300,000 according to the present franc value. The note circulation as reported this week is also the highest ever recorded. Prior to the stabilization decree, the highest point reached by the bank's note circulation, which was then at about the present franc valuation, was 60,384,546,000 francs on May 10, 1928. A year ago it was 63,915,593,000.

The French bank's official discount rate remains at 3½ per cent, to which it was reduced on Jan. 10, 1928.

New Bids Asked for the Mayflower.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—For the third time the navy called today for bids for the sale of the Presidential yacht Mayflower, returnable on Jan. 25. In the two previous cases all offers were rejected as inadequate, although the second time bids were asked New York interests made an effort to buy the vessel for use by the city as a reception yacht in place of the Macom. The first bids opened disclosed a high offer of $15,000 and the second set yielded an offer of $51,000. The Navy Board placed a value of $100,000 on the yacht.

Adds 120,000 Stockholders in Year.

The Associated Gas and Electric Company yesterday announced an increase of 120,000 stockholders in 1929, the present total being 186,000, against 66,000 at the end of 1928. There are associated stockholders in each of the forty-eight States, in all the United States possessions and in twenty-six other countries. New York State leads with 72,713 stockholders. Women stockholders number 74,104.

FESS WOULD ALTER RAIL MERGER BILL

Compulsory Acceptance Clause Should Be Removed, Author of Measure Says.

STOCK INQUIRY IS PLANNED

House Committee Will Probably Investigate Alleghany and Pennroad Holding Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2. — Senator Fess of Ohio today announced he would make an attempt to remove from his railroad consolidation bill a provision whereby a railroad which is promulgating a consolidation plan, with approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, may acquire by condemnation proceedings another railroad which does not want to enter the consolidation scheme. Senator Fess said this feature of his bill was written in over his protests and that it provides, in effect, for confiscation of property.

As the bill was written by Senator Fess, railroad unifications or consolidations would have been voluntary on the part of the railroads. At the insistence of Senators Wheeler, Democrat, of Montana; Couzens of Michigan and Sackett of Kentucky, Republican members of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, Mr. Fess allowed compulsory provisions to be inserted in the bill so that it could be reported to the floor of the Senate.

If Mr. Fess succeeds in eliminating the feature, he will reconcile the chief difference between the Senate and House consolidation measures, both of which are pending. The House bill contains no such provision.

Plan Holding Company Inquiry.

It was learned today that a compromise among Congressional leaders has been reached whereby the proposed investigation of railroad security holding companies, such as the Alleghany Corporation, controlled by the Van Sweringens, and the Pennroad Corporation, controlled by officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad, will be made by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Senator Couzens, chairman of the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, has advocated turning the investigation over to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has asked Congress to place the holding companies under its jurisdiction to the same extent that railroad operating companies are now supervised by the commission.

Definition Is Inquiry's Aim.

Representative James S. Parker of New York, chairman of the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, conferred yesterday and today with Senators Fess and Couzens, and is understood to have agreed to have his committee take over the holding company investigation at once. A resolution authorizing the committee to make the inquiry may be introduced in the House Monday or Tuesday by Mr. Parker.

It is believed that the House investigation will look more toward working out a hard and fast definition of a holding company such as would be turned over to the Interstate Commerce Commission for supervision, rather than going deep into the intricacies and ramifications of the dealings and tradings of such companies. The leaders want to work out a definition which will apply only to corporations whose chief function is the purchase and holding of railroad stocks for manipulation in possible railroad consolidation controversies. They are anxious to avoid a definition under which might be included such holders of railroad securities as insurance companies and universities.

Shows 33 1-3% Rise in Stockholders

An increase of 33 1-3 per cent in the number of stockholders of the Gotham Silk Hosiery Company since Sept. 1 was announced yesterday. The company will open a plant in Canada this month, making a total of twelve plants. The announcement yesterday said the company had on hand cash in excess of $3,000,000 and an asset ratio of better than nine to one.

Maytag Retires Preference Stock.

The Maytag Company announced yesterday that it had retired 34,500 shares of $3 cumulative preference stock and 8,000 shares of $6 first preferred stock by purchases in the open market made in part from the proceeds of the exercise of warrants. Warrants for the purchase of 43,375 common shares also were canceled.

NEW PRICING PLAN TO LOWER GASOLINE

Standard Oil Company of New Jersey Will Use Seaboard Cargo Market as Basis.

TO ADD DELIVERY CHARGES

Scale Will Vary With Distance From Port, With Places Near Coast Paying Least.

Marking a radical alteration in the method of fixing retail gasoline prices in this section, the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will on Monday readjust its rates to a basis that will be between one-half cent and one and one-half cents lower than the present schedules. Other companies in the East are expected to make similar revisions, which will result in general reductions in prices.

Under the new policy the Standard of New Jersey's base price for gasoline will be determined by the cargo market at the seaboard. To the cargo market price, covering gasoline in tank steamer quantities, will be added a differential and the actual cost of freight to designated selling points. Under the plan in effect many years a basic State-wide tank wagon price was fixed and this absorbed the average freight costs to all points in the particular State affected.

The new price-control method is believed to have been adopted by the Standard of New Jersey because of the increase in gasoline shipments from California. This gasoline, coming in tank steamers through the Panama Canal, is being put down in the East at prices below the levels that have prevailed here. Some large companies distributing retail gasoline in the East have been steadily increasing purchases of California gasoline recently.

The change will affect all of Standard of New Jersey's extensive marketing territory. At present the company is selling gasoline in New Jersey at 17 cents a gallon at service stations, with the two-cent tax making the price to the consumer 19 cents.

Under the new policy points near the seaboard will be benefited most by the price readjustment. At such points as Jersey City, Elizabeth, Bayonne and Newark the reduction will amount to 1½ cents a gallon. Prices elsewhere will depend upon the freight costs absorbed.

As explained yesterday, the change is intended to narrow the "spread" between the wholesale and retail markets. Consumers near refinery points will be saved most of the State-wide freight cost that formerly was calculated at between 1 and 2 cents a gallon.

The Standard of New Jersey will maintain the existing differentials between its premium and standard gasolines. The tank wagon price of kerosene will be changed to conform to the conditions applied in fixing of gasoline prices. The maximum reduction in kerosene will be about a cent a gallon.

Oil executives pointed out yesterday that the gasoline markets on the Easetrn seaboard were being unsettled by the increasingly heavy shipments of California gasoline by tank steamers. The cargo of a tank steamer averages between 75,000 and 80,000 barrels. This is called "dumping" by some oil interests here that have made complaints, and it has already brought about reductions in the cargo market.

BROKERS' LOANS UP $96,000,000 IN WEEK

$3,424,000,000 Total Reported by Federal Reserve—Second Advance in 11 Weeks.

Local Banks' Rise Offsets $219,000,000 Drop by "Others," $7,000,000 by Interior Institutions.

The total of brokers' loans, as announced yesterday by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, advanced $96,000,000 in the week ended on Dec. 31 to $3,424,000,000, compared with $3,328,000,000 a week ago. The increase was the second in eleven weeks. Following an uninterrupted decline for seven weeks, the loans showed a small advance in the week ended on Dec. 11. They continued to decline in the next two weeks, reaching the lowest point in the movement last week when the total was the smallest on record since Sept. 28, 1927.

The advance shown this week was not regarded as necessarily meaning that the declining trend of the loans had been arrested permanently. Bankers remarked that in connection with the year-end disturbances of the money market there always was an advance in the figures. Last year an increase of $238,676,000 took place over the year-end.

The feature of yesterday's statement was a large increase in lending by member banks for their own account. This figure went up $322,000,000 during the week. Loans made for the account of out-of-town banks declined $7,000,000 and loans made for the account of non-banking lenders dropped $219,000,000. The withdrawal of non-banking funds is a normal year-end development. In the last week of 1928 "other" lenders withdrew about $400,000,000 of their loans from the market.

Collateral Loan Figures.

Following are the detailed figures of stock and bond collateral loans made to brokers and dealers by reporting member banks in New York City.

(000,000 omitted.)

	Dec. 31, 1929.	Dec. 24, 1929.	Jan. 2, 1929.
For own account	1,167	845	1,516
For out-of-town banks	709	716	1,648
For others	1,548	1,767	2,166

Of this week's total $2,981,000,000 consisted of demand loans, compared with $2,886,000,000 a week ago, and $443,000,000 of time loans, against $442,000,000 last week.

Borrowings of local member banks from the Federal Reserve were virtually unchanged, a decline of $1,000,000 being shown. Discounting in the New York district dropped $25,961,000, the decline being made possible largely by increases in the Reserve Bank's portfolio. Bill holdings increased $17,920,000 to $191,745,000 and holdings of United States Government securities went up $14,168,000 to $239,206,000. An increase of $8,777,000 in the total amount of credit extended to the market by the local Reserve Bank was shown.

Total gold reserves of the New York bank advanced $39,415,000, reflecting the return of some of the holiday currency. Federal Reserve note circulation dropped $2,567,000. Despite an increase in deposit liability, these changes lifted the reserve ratio to 60.5 per cent, compared with 58.9 per cent last week.

Discounts for the twelve banks of the Reserve System showed a sharp drop during the week, falling $130,360,000 to $632,421,000, compared with $1,151,464,000 on the corresponding day last year. Holdings of bills bought in the open market increased $37,266,000 and holdings of government securities went up $25,544,000. The volume of Federal Reserve credit outstanding declined $65,020,000 as a result of these changes.

Total gold reserves for the system increased $35,411,000. Reserve note circulation declined $79,456,000. Deposit liabilities increased $38,464,000. As a result the reserve ratio moved up to 69.6 per cent, against 67.6 per cent last week.

TWO KILLED IN BUS CRASH.

Several Others Hurt When Vehicle Leaves Road in Ohio.

RICHMOND, Ind., Jan. 2 (AP).—Two persons were killed and several injured when a motor bus ran off a road near Eaton, Ohio, early this morning.

The dead are Thomas Carney, aged 45, at Alexandria, Ind., and Esther Masters, 30, of Connersville, Ind.

The driver of the machine, W. R. Spratt of Indianapolis, who was cut about the face and body, was taken to a hospital here in an unconscious condition. Because of his condition the cause of the accident could not be definitely determined. It is believed that the bright lights of a westbound machine caused the bus driver to swerve to the right off the road, causing the heavy machine to slide off the soft road shoulder and into the ditch.

The bus was bound from St. Louis to Pittsburgh.

SAYS 1930 WILL BEGIN NEW PROSPERITY ERA

C. P. Tolman Tells Students at Stevens Industry Is Meeting Changed Conditions.

A new industrial era of unprecedented prosperity will commence this year in the United States, Charles P. Tolman, New York consulting engineer, told students at the Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, yesterday in an address on "Recent Economic Changes." Mr. Tolman's speech was one of a series of lectures by industrial experts arranged in connection with the regular college course economics of engineering.

"The year 1930," he said, "will witness the beginning of a new industrial era during which, in my opinion, a higher level of prosperity will be reached than our country has ever experienced. The readjustment of our industries to the new economic conditions and the reduction of industrial wastes through research and engineering revision can mean no less.

"For some twenty-five or thirty years preceding the war, the basic factors changed so slowly that manufacturers had time to adjust their processes to the prevailing conditions by cut and dried methods. Then came the war and in a short space of time the cost of labor and the cost of materials doubled with respect to the cost of capital. This change in economic factors affected all manufacturers simultaneously.

"The year 1940 arrived in 1920 and they found themselves in a new era equipped with tools and processes selected and planned for a preceding generation. Never before had obsolescence of this character and degree been experienced. An annual expenditure of $1,000,000 for several years will be required to replace this obsolete equipment."

FAMOUS MORGAN SHIP LOSES OLD IDENTITY

The formal transfer of the $500,000 yacht Corsair, owned by J. P. Morgan, which was sold to the government for use by the Coast and Geodetic Survey for the nominal price of $1, was completed yesterday afternoon at Tebo's Yacht Basin, at the foot of Twenty-fourth Street, Brooklyn, when the blue pennant of the Department of Commerce was raised by Captain F. L. Peacock of the Survey.

The retiring captain, William B. Porter, who had been in charge of the Corsair since 1901, left the craft after both captains had made a final tour of inspection. Oceanographer, the new name of the vessel, was already painted on the ship's bow.

The craft will remain in the basin from two to four weeks until it can be refitted and a new crew shipped, Captain Peacock said. The apparatus that will convert it from a pleasure yacht into a government vessel to take ocean soundings and map the ocean bed, will be installed at Norfolk, Va., the future home port of the craft, according to Captain Peacock. The Atlantic and Gulf coasts are to be sounded to a depth of 100 fathoms or 600 feet. An extensive investigation of the effect of the recent seaquake off New England also is planned.

The Oceanographer has accommodations for nine officers and fifty-four seamen. The yacht is luxuriously fitted. There are two salons and a library with a fireplace. Mr. Morgan's quarters are now being used by Captain Peacock.

RESERVE BANK POSITION.

Yesterday's statement of the twelve reserve banks showed total bills discounted to be at the lowest point of 1929. No other important item in the system reached a new high or low figure.

The following table shows the highest and lowest points reached thus far in 1929 and in a series of years past. All figures except ratio of reserve are in thousands of dollars:

CASH RESERVES GAIN, BANK REPORT SHOWS

BILLS AND SECURITIES DROP

Federal Reserve Note Circulation Decreased in All of the Banks of the System.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 2.—The consolidated statement of the condition of Federal Reserve banks as of Dec. 31, made public by the Federal Reserve Board, shows a decrease for the week of $130,400,000 in holdings of discounted bills and increases of $37,300,000 in holdings of bills bought in open market and of $25,500,000 in United States securities. Member banks reserve bank deposits increased $35,000,000 and cash reserves $60,200,000, while Federal Reserve note circulation declined $79,400,000 and government deposits $1,800,000. Total bills and securities were $65,000,000 below the amount reported a week ago.

Holdings of discounted bills declined at all Federal Reserve banks except Minneapolis, the principal decreases being Chicago $31,200,000, New York $26,000,000, Cleveland $20,400,000, Boston $13,300,000 and St. Louis $10,700,000. The system's holdings of bills bought in open market increased $37,300,000, of treasury notes $14,400,000, of United States bonds $8,100,000 and of certificates and bills $3,000,000.

Federal Reserve note circulation was $79,400,000 less than a week ago, all of the Federal Reserve banks reporting decreases in circulation, the largest declines being Cleveland $14,500,000, Chicago $13,100,000, Philadelphia $12,800,000, San Francisco $7,000,000 and Atlanta $6,500,000.

Following the Dec. 31 closing of books the Federal Reserve banks transferred $22,538,000 to surplus, increasing that account to $276,936,000.

Start 1930 Right

By Subscribing to Babson's Reports

WERE you prepared for the recent events in the market by the investment service or those upon whom you have depended for advice? Babson's clients were prepared for these events.

Now! What Next? Will prices in 1930 be lower than during the November, 1929, crash—or not?

But whether stocks are going up or down, Babson's Reports can help you to investment opportunities. There are opportunities both in bear markets and in bull markets, but they are of a different nature. Our Continuous Working Plan for your money takes care of all conditions.

How this plan presents the opportunities as they occur is explained in our booklet, "Bigger Investment Returns." Send for your free copy now and "Start 1930 Right."

LOOKING AHEAD THROUGH 1930

WHAT MOODY'S WILL SAY

What the investor wants today is somebody who will not merely tell him that the November crash 'wiped him out' or eliminated his paper profits. He knows this better than any oracle can tell him. A rehash of 1929 is not a forecast of 1930.

He wants somebody to diagnose for him the probabilities for 1930 in business, in finance, in the stock and bond markets.

Moody's will do exactly this in their ANNUAL REVIEW AND FORECAST to be issued January 6th, 1930.

Moody's has been issuing Annual Forecasts since 1914, forecasting the security market trend with unerring accuracy. We believe that our 1930 Forecast will prove equally accurate.

Every investor, banker and broker will want this forthcoming Review and Forecast. The edition will be a large one, but the demand will be country-wide. We urge that everybody interested apply for copies without delay and get this advance picture of the financial year of 1930.

WHEAT SENT DOWN BY EASTERN SELLING

French Shipments to England and Erroneous Report of Soviet Sales Help Decline.

CORN FALLS AFTER A RISE

Oats Are Lower in Trading Largely by Chicagoans — Rye Sags Without Pressure.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2.—Houses with Eastern connections were persistent sellers of wheat today, and the market as a whole was discouraging to longs. Strength in Liverpool resulted in [illegible] buying at the opening, when [illegible]ghest prices were made. The finish was within a fraction of the bottom, with net losses of 2 to 2⅛ cents.

Winnipeg lost 2¼ to 2⅜ cents. Buenos Aires, after being 1⅛ to 1⅜ cents higher early, broke sharply and closed ⅝ to 1⅛ cents off. Rosario lost a like amount. Liverpool finished ⅜ to ⅝d lower, with May ¾ cents over Chicago at the close.

Some selling of futures resulted from reports that France had worked wheat to the United Kingdom and that Russia had shipped grain and was inquiring for offers. The latter reports, however, were denied later by public and private cables. As near as could be ascertained, about ten days ago a sample of 200,000 bushels had been sent to Liverpool for valuation, but the Russian reply was regarded as ridiculous, and no requests for bills had been received.

A cable to the Norris Grain Company said Russian exports were of no account in the world's situation and a material broadening in the European demand for North American wheat was looked for within the next few weeks.

The bulge of almost 9 cents from last week's low had weakened the technical position, and the demand for futures on the way down was slow. At no time did the market rally, the break being checked by a little short covering from holders of bills. Export demand over the holidays was fairly good, with sales estimated at more than 1,000,000 bushels, including four cargoes from the Pacific Coast.

Primary receipts were 1,208,000 bushels, a week ago 906,000 and a year ago 535,000. Shipments were 506,000 bushels, a week ago 523,000 and a year ago 646,000.

A view expressed by a member of the Federal Farm Board that he regarded corn prices as low enough led to some buying of futures and gave that market a firm undertone. The weak finish in wheat, though, led to local selling, and the finish was ⅛ to ½ cent lower, with May off around a cent from the early top. Discounts on cash grain in the sample market were ½ to 3 cents lower compared with May, with the light weights showing the greatest loss. No. 3 mixed was 11 to 13 cents under the future. Shipping demand was slow. Country offerings to arrive were limited.

Buenos Aires futures closed 1½ to 2 cents lower, with May there 24¼ cents under the same month in Chicago. Primary receipts were 3,118,000 bushels, a week ago 1,968,000 and a year ago 1,451,000 bushels. Shipments were 756,000 bushels, a week ago 552,000 and a year ago 887,000.

Oats were dull and closed 1⅛ cents lower in sympathy with wheat. Trade was largely local.

Rye lost ⅝ to 1⅛ cents without any material pressure.

Prices for the principal grains were as follows:

WHEAT MAKES PROGRESS.

Weather Favorable for Harvesting Remaining Cotton Crop.

The week was generally favorable for harvesting the remaining cotton crop, although but little is ungathered.

Considerable cribbing was accomplished during the week, but there were complaints of damage by high water to standing corn in some Central Ohio Valley sections and some spoiling in field and crib in parts of Illinois.

The snow cover that prevailed over the Eastern Winter wheat belt gradually disappeared under the warm weather of the week and at the close the ground was bare over practically the entire section except the Northern Ohio Valley.

Condition of the crop remains generally good, however, with only local reports of unfavorable freezing and thawing and little apparent damage thus far. The recent freezes badly damaged oats in the South-east, but in most parts of the country east of the Mississippi River the reaction of warmer weather was beneficial. In the Southern Great Plains, condition of wheat is good to excellent despite some freezing to the ground in Kansas where the crop has a vigorous root system and shows a tendency to green.

Moisture is needed in parts of the South-west, while the snow cover is diminishing in the Northwest with moisture badly needed for plowing in Southern California.

Temperatures were abnormally high in Argentina during the past week. Temperature of 79 degrees was reported for each zone, being five degrees and 7 degrees above normal for the Northern and Southern areas respectively. Precipitation was abnormal in each district, 0.6 inch was reported for the corn and Northern wheat zone while only 0.1 inch occurred in the Southern wheat areas.

General rain fell in Southeastern Australia and harvesting was delayed somewhat. Otherwise, conditions were unchanged.

PRICE RISES ABROAD BOOST COTTON HERE

Forecast of Ginning Report Spurs Activity for Advance Among Professional Traders.

Improvement abroad and early advances in stock and grain markets here yesterday sent prices up 10 to 20 points on the Cotton Exchange. Opening trading brought increased price fixing by trade interests, and, as today's Washington report on staple and grade was expected to show less cotton of deliverable character than a year ago, professional operators helped the improvement. Recessions in outside markets in the afternoon left final quotations 7 to 19 points higher than on Tuesday.

Following completion of inventories, many domestic consumers entered the market for raw material, strengthening the January position. Execution of buying orders disclosed few contracts available and the January discount went to a spread of 15 points, compared with 36 under March on notice day.

As the last staple report showed 79.1 per cent of ginnings prior to Nov. 1, measured up to government contract requirements compared with 85.2 per cent in 1928 and 85.26 per cent to Dec. 1 in 1927. The abnormally unfavorable weather last November created an impression that today's figures might show a further reduction in the percentage of deliverable cotton.

On the basis of the last report, several hundred thousand fewer bales of contract cotton were grown in 1929 than in 1928, though the total production proved several hundred thousand bales larger.

Interest was aroused here by the report that papers had been filed in Delaware by Anderson, Clayton & Co., large handlers of spot cotton, for the incorporation of the Anderson Clayton Securities Corporation with capital of $30,000,000.

Washington reported that the Farm Board had approved the $30,000,000 capital National Cotton Cooperative Corporation and the board will apply for incorporation in Delaware in the next few weeks. The object, said a member of the board, is to handle and market a sufficiently large quantity of cotton to obtain bargaining power at terminal markets.

Yesterday's quotations here follow:

	Open.	High.	Low.	Close.	Prev. Day.
Jan.	17.09	17.20	16.99	17.25	17.06

Oct.	17.82	17.94	17.81	17.86	17.78
Dec.	....	18.00	17.98	17.98	...

The local market for spot cotton was steady at 20 points advance to 17.45c for middling upland; sales, 6,800 bales.

Southern spot markets were: Galveston 17.45c, 15 points advance, sales 1,000 bales; New Orleans 17.07c, 6 points advance, sales 1,159 bales; Savannah 17.15c, 8 points advance, sales 580 bales; Augusta 16.88c, 7 points advance, sales 36 bales; Memphis 16.55c, 10 points advance, sales 3,983 bales; Houston 17.30c, 5 points advance, sales 4,372 bales; Little Rock 16.40c, 12 points advance, sales 2,315 bales; Dallas 16.35c, 5 points advance, sales 3,761 bales.

Yesterday's cotton statistics in bales were:

NEW SECURITIES COMPANY.

Interests associated with Anderson, Clayton & Co., large handlers of spot cotton, have formed the Anderson Clayton Securities Corporation, incorporated in Delaware with a capitalization of $30,000,000. William L. Clayton, head of Anderson, Clayton & Co., heads the new concern, whose principal offices will be in New York.

Under its articles of incorporation, the new company will be empowered to manufacture and deal in goods, wares and merchandise, and in bonds, stocks and debentures. No reason was given yesterday for its organization, but it is expected that a detailed statement of its plans will be issued later in the week.

Cotton Exchange Adds 3 Members.

Three new members have been elected to the New York Cotton Exchange. They are Lawrence E. Richmond of Memphis, Franz Schnabel of Vienna and Leo B. O'Meara of Moyse & Holmes, New York.

GAIN OF JOBLESS IN BRITAIN DENIED

Mrs. Mary A. Hamilton, M. P., Lays Higher Figures to a More Complete Survey.

TELLS LABOR'S PROBLEMS

She Attributes Them to Misdeeds of Previous Regimes in Speech Before Women's Club Here.

The great problems faced by the British Labor Government after the general election of 1929 were discussed yesterday by Mrs. Mary A. Hamilton, member of the British Parliament and the Labor Party, and biographer of Ramsay MacDonald, at a luncheon given in her honor by the Women's City Club at the Biltmore.

Mrs. Hamilton said the problems had arisen from the misdeeds of previous administrations, which had shown negligence in reconstructing national life after the World War.

Supported by the continued confidence of the nation and with sufficient time, Mrs. Hamilton continued, the Labor Government will carry out its program.

Mrs. Hamilton denied unemployment had increased in Great Britain, explaining that a more complete survey in connection with the new unemployment insurance had brought to light larger numbers of jobless, which had, however, existed before. She added that the unemployment problem could not be completely solved within the lifetime of one government.

Great Britain had almost ceased to count in European affairs until Premier MacDonald took the lead in the work for peace, the speaker said. She declared that Mr. MacDonald's visit to the United States had been of utmost importance, since it had cleared away a cloud of misunderstandings and established a spirit of good-will between the two nations.

The same spirit of friendliness is applied in relations with Russia and India, the speaker added.

Mrs. Hamilton denounced the "safety first" policy of the Conservatives and said that the Labor Party in its march to power had shed none of its doctrines and convictions. Should the Labor Government fail before it completes its program, she said, it will be because of purely political opposition. She also declared that Communists and Conservatives had more in common than Socialists and Communists, because both parties believed in the application of force.

Mrs. H. Edward Dreier, president of the club, presided at the luncheon, which was attended by more than 400. Other speakers were Norman Thomas and Miss Rose Schneiderman, president of the National Women's Trade Union League.

VOTE ON INDICTMENT IN NEWCASTLE CASE

Westchester Grand Jurors to Report Decision to Court Monday Morning.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 2.—The extraordinary grand jury investigating land transactions in Westchester County concluded its inquiry into Newcastle real estate deals involving Howard R. Washburn, Chairman of the Board of Supervisors, and voted on indictments shortly after 6 o'clock tonight. The grand jurors were told to return at 9:30 A. M. Monday, when it is expected they will report their findings to Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins.

Because the jurors were charged by Justice Tompkins on Monday to speed their inquiry and because of the other matters awaiting their attention some speculation was aroused as to why an adjournment was taken over Friday and Saturday. One opinion was that the interval might be intended to give the Attorney General's representatives time to draft indictments.

Sidney A. Syme, Special Deputy Attorney General, said the indictments, if voted, would be returned in one of three ways. The jurors, he said, could indict Washburn alone for misconduct in office; they could indict Washburn and David Kipp together; or they might indict Washburn and two or more of those who were associated with him in one of the transactions under investigation. Kipp's name was used in place of Washburn's in the records of the Newcastle Holding Company, which sold to the town of Newcastle a portion of its holdings, according to the complaint made to the Governor by Samuel Untermyer following his preliminary investigations last Summer.

Any one indicted with Washburn would be charged with aiding and abetting the supervisor in the commission of a misdemeanor, Mr. Syme declared.

The jury's action is the first it has taken since it began hearing testimony on Nov. 26. Until two weeks ago it heard evidence in connection with the purchase by the Board of Supervisors of additional court house property in White Plains for $948,000.

The charges against Washburn are that he was interested in the Newcastle Holding Company at the time it sold to the town of Newcastle for $49,500 part of its holdings in Chappaqua, and that he was interested in the Bailey-Washburn Building at the time a lease was signed renting some of its office space to the town of Newcastle. Washburn, a supervisor from Newcastle, presided over the sessions of its town board. He has represented Newcastle in the Board of Supervisors for more than eighteen years.

Allen C. Tompkins, a clerk of the Yonkers Light and Power Company, one of grand jurors, was hurried from the jury chambers to White Plains Hospital this morning. Physicians said that he was suffering from appendicitis but that his condition was not serious.

Chicago Title & Trust Earns 12%.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Net earnings of the Chicago Title and Trust Company for 1929 were $4,263,382, equal to 11.98 per cent of capital invested. Dividends totaling $2,520,000 were paid during the year and $1,200,000 was transferred to surplus and special reserves. Undivided profits amount to $963,688, including a carryover of $420,305 from 1928. Total assets are listed at $42,000,645.

New Lamps Feature Lighting.

Two outstanding accomplishments in electric light in 1929, according to John Liston of the General Electric Company, were the production of the sun lamp, which serves as a safe source of ultra-violet rays, and the water-cooled lamp, which makes feasible a high intensity of illumination combined with low temperatures.

Dorman's Report to the Mayor Reveals Advance in Year Over 26,185 Blazes in 1928.

There were 3,539 more fires in New York City last year than in 1928, Commissioner Dorman reported to Mayor Walker yesterday. Last year there were 29,724, against 26,185 the year before. Five years ago there were 7,095 fewer fires than in 1929, while ten years ago about half as many occurred as last year.

Commissioner Dorman's report notes that new firehouses were constructed last year at the rate of one a month. Half of these were in outlying sections of Queens, at Rosedale, Arverne, Hillcrest, St. Albans, East Elmhurst and Douglaston. Three were opened in Brooklyn—at Foster and Gravesend Avenues in the Rugby section, in Middagh Street in the downtown section and in Neptune Avenue, Coney Island.

Besides the new firehouse at 108 East Thirteenth Street, Manhattan, on the site of old Hook and Ladder Company 3, opposite the former headquarters of Tammany Hall, which was opened by Mayor Walker on Oct. 8, two engine houses were opened in the Bronx. One of these was in Eastern Boulevard, in the Clason Point section and the other in Williamsbridge Road.

About $500,000 was spent last year for new fire-fighting apparatus. The rolling stock purchased included forty-eight hose wagons, twenty-nine motor cars for chiefs, one tractor, one water tower, four aerial hook and ladders, seven pumping engines and three four-wheel tractors.

A reduction of 1 per cent in fire insurance rates was allowed by the New York Fire Insurance Exchange, the report says, in recognition of progress made in the fire alarm telegraph plant in sections of Brooklyn and the Bronx, where underground cables replaced circuits on poles. Contracts for fire alarm telegraph improvements awarded during the year totaled nearly $750,000. The work included the installation of almost 1,000 new alarm boxes, 42,000 feet of underground pipe and 325,000 feet of underground cable.

During the year, 393 firemen were appointed on probation, forty of whom were patrolmen in the Police Department at the time of appointment. Service in either department, under a recent law, is credited in the record of seniority in case of transfer.

One hundred and seven firemen retired voluntarily during the year, of whom fifty-three were "blueshirts" and the others officers. There have been no voluntary retirements of fire officers since last September.

Thirty-two members of the department died during 1929, seven of whom were killed in the line of duty. Only six firemen were dismissed from the service after hearings on charges of violating the rules of the department. Seventeen firemen resigned during the year, nine of whom had not completed their probationary term.

SEES PLAN TO 'STARVE' QUAKER CITY TRADE

Mayor Mackey Declares New York Would Take Big Part of Philadelphia's Port Traffic.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 2.—That New York is trying to "starve" Philadelphia in seeking to have railroads remove this city from their schedules on a number of passenger and freight lines, was asserted by Mayor Mackey today.

In addressing the advertising men of the city at the Poor Richard Club, the Mayor declared that it is unfortunate for Philadelphia that it is located within commuting distance of New York.

"The city of New York is doing everything it can to starve your port," the Mayor told the members of the club. "New York is trying to induce the railroads to have Philadelphia removed as a scheduled stop for many transcontinental passenger and freight lines. New York would like to see passengers and shipments rushed through Philadelphia without a stop and they would like to see every steamship line withdraw its service from this port."

In a review of the achievements of his administration for two years, the Mayor compared the municipal methods of the two cities.

"The New York budget for 1929 was $510,000,000," he said, "or more than the entire funded debt of the city of Philadelphia. Our budget for the same year, including the Board of Education expenditures, was $123,000,000. Yet we give more for the taxpayers' dollar than New York gives for $10 of taxpayers' money.

"This year New York added more than $100,000,000 to its budget and it boasted of it. Here in Philadelphia, with new streets and greatly augmented service, our people do not look with any patience at all upon increases, but are demanding decreases in taxation. Recognizing a demand for a reduction of the tax burden, I advocated a decrease of 30 cents in the tax rate. It was found possible, however, to grant a net decrease of only 7½ cents.

"The Philadelphia tax rate is the lowest of any large city in the United States, but it necessarily follows that as the city grows and new streets, water mains and sewers are constructed and other improvements made, our maintenance charges will correspondingly increase."

FEWER CONVERTIBLE BONDS

The fact that a large percentage of the corporation bond issues brought out in 1929 carried stock purchase and conversion privileges will not necessarily be the case in 1930, in the opinion of leading investment bankers. With the return to popularity of fixed-return investments, it is pointed out that there will be less necessity for including semi-speculative features in new offerings of bonds.

It is notable that practically without exception the new issues of bonds marketed in December did not include stock purchase or conversion features.

DES MOINES INCOME RISE.

City to Levy $7,559,000 Taxes on Property in Coming Year.

Des Moines, Iowa, which plans a new issue of $516,000 general obligation bonds to take up deficits in special assessment bonds, will levy taxes of $7,559,000 on property in the city for 1930, according to the city's Bureau of Municipal Research. This compares with total tax levies of $7,270,000 in 1929.

The increase is due to the raising of the State tax levy by $121,000, the school levy by $131,000, the city levy by $73,000, and that of the county hospital by $30,000. The county tax budget was reduced slightly.

FUTURES MARKET FOR LIVE HOG TRADE

Chicago Live Stock Exchange Announces Trading Will Begin in Few Weeks.

TO FILL NEED FOR HEDGING

Innovation Follows Demand From Producers and Processors for System to Reduce Risks.

CHICAGO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Perishable commodities are to be added to the field of futures trading, Everett C. Brown, president of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange, announced today. The Live Stock Exchange, he said, would provide means for trading in live hogs for future delivery as soon as facilities were complete, probably within a few weeks.

"Demand from producers and processors have prompted this action," Mr. Brown said. "They wanted some system which would afford the opportunity to hedge operations, thus reducing risks incidental to price deflation and minimizing risks incidental to hog ownership. We have evolved an arrangement which should answer every requirement.

"The purpose of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange in starting this innovation is to furnish swine growers with the same outlet, through future delivery channels, as have been heretofore enjoyed by handlers of other commodities such as grain, provisions, hides, butter, eggs, sugar, cotton and its by-products, to all of which this method of determining values is indispensable."

Mr. Brown said the Exchange had made an extensive study of the problem and had reached the conclusion that the system now ready for adoption would effectively stabilize prices to the distinct advantage of every swine raiser in the United States.

"This futures market," Brown declared, "will mark a stride toward the goal of orderly marketing. Under existing conditions situations arise under which underweight shoats are sacrificed in apprehension of ruinous prices later. This, we believe, can be prevented by a preview of the situation."

He said that feeding out hogs through excessive and unpopular weight at heavy loss could be prevented if a futures market indicated the futility of wasting valuable feed. He said the car lot would be the trading unit, and that facilities would be offered to the public "without discrimination." Inspection, he said, "would be in the hands of competent Exchange employes and designed to insure absolute confidence."

According to the new plan, the Chicago Live Stock Exchange will do no trading, merely providing the necessary room, personnel and other services which "guarantee that trading rules will be fully complied with." Mr. Brown declared that this futures market would not interfere with the present hog market, but would furnish additional facilities to those desiring such services.

"Trading will be under the control of the Chicago Live Stock Exchange," Mr. Brown added, "assuring a square deal, with supervision by the United States Department of Agriculture as further guarantee of its integrity."

ANNALIST WEEKLY INDEX.

The Annalist Weekly Index of Wholesale Commodity Prices stands at 140.9, a decrease of 0.9 point from last week (141.8) and compares with 147.5 last year at this time.

Lower prices of grains, live stock and eggs have lowered the farm products index 2.3 points. The food products index is lowered in sympathy 1.0 point; the textile is 0.8 point lower because of sharp reduction in cloth and yarns; further reduction in zinc prices to 39.375 cents a pound made for a fractionally lower metal index. The remaining groups remain virtually unchanged.

The 1930 index opens 4.5 per cent lower than the average of prices last year at this time.

SUGAR, COFFEE, COCOA.

Sugar.

The market displayed a better tone yesterday. The January position was firm, closing 7 points higher. The remainder of the list closed 1 to 3 points higher. The volume of business was small and there was an absence of sellers. Trade houses were buyers of January. There was some scattered demand for other months from Wall Street.

The single seller at Cuba sold a local refiner 25,000 tons of Cubas at 2 1/32 cost in freight and 25,000 tons at 2 1/16 cost in freight, Jan. 1 or Feb. 1 shipments. In addition, the single seller accepted a bid at 2 1/16 for a cargo from an operator for prompt shipment.

In the local market there were scattered offerings of duty-free sugars for early shipment at 3.83, equal to 2 1/16. Refiners were generally buyers at 3.80 or 2 1/32.

F. O. Licht has increased his estimate for European beet sugar production, stating that production in all of Europe, including Russia, is 8,415,000 metric tons. This is an increase of 176,000 tons over his last month's estimate. It is, however, 52,000 tons under last year's final production figures.

The London market was quiet but steady. Cuba reports that the committee declined all bids yesterday, and it is rumored that United States refiners were interested in a large line of sugars for prompt and January shipments at 2 1/32 cost in freight.

Refined sugar was unchanged. New busines was practically at a standstill, but withdrawals continued good.

Price ranges were:

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 2.—The northern disturbance has advanced to the Gulf of St. Lawrence with a trough extending southwestward to Georgia. A disturbance of considerable intensity is moving inland from the North Pacific over British Columbia. High pressure prevails elsewhere over North America and over the Western Atlantic Ocean and Dawson and Hamilton, Bermuda.

The indications are for rain in the Atlantic States and light rain or snow flurries in the Appalachian region, the Upper Ohio Valley and the lower lake region Friday and for generally fair weather Saturday throughout the Washington forecast district.

The temperature will fall over all sections east of the Mississippi River during the next twenty-four hours and the weather will become considerably colder throughout the Atlantic States Friday night.

THE BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday, 5 to 5¼ per cent for the best names
Tuesday, 5 to 5¼ per cent for the best names
The quotations are for 4 to 6 months' paper.

Shirt Makers Planning Guild.

Plans are under way to combat the "low price shirt evil" through cooperative action by leading manufacturers of fine shirts, it was learned here yesterday. Several closed meetings have already been held, and at least ten outstanding firms will be represented at a meeting to be held here on Jan. 22 to discuss the definite steps to be taken. Tentative plans call for the banding of manufacturers into a guild with a central bureau to conduct advertising and educational activities. A hall-mark to signify adherence to minimum standards of quality has been suggested. The organization is eventually expected to include yarn producers and fine shirting manufacturers.

Steel Furniture Show Feature.

Steel furniture for the home and new wicker types for both indoor and outdoor use will be among the outstanding novelties at the Spring and Summer furniture shows which begin on Monday at Grand Rapids and Chicago, according to trade advices yesterday. The designs were created by Donald Deskey, well-known artist. Showing of the steel types marks their introduction on a wide scale for home use. The furniture, in addition to its novel construction, features a series of special rayon fabrics for seat coverings, &c. Described as water-repellent, the rayon cloths stress plaid, check and wide horizontal patterns to harmonize with drapery ensembles.

Rayon Prices Still Firm.

Signs of an imminent change in rayon price levels were lacking in this market yesterday, although expectation of a reduction continues in some quarters. Executives of leading producing companies reiterated their previous statements that revisions are not likely at this time. The demand meanwhile continues quiet, but the belief was expressed that the advance of preparations for Spring will result in an early pick-up in orders for the current quarter. Dull-lustre yarns are in comparatively strong position, orders booked for these types having been good.

Retailers Buying Tailored Coats.

Retail buyers in this market during the week have shown considerable interest in untrimmed tailored coats, as well as those trimmed with flat furs. Tweeds, basket weaves and coverts have all moved well in the popular-price ranges. It is now becoming apparent that the wiser merchandise men, despite the unprecedented publicity being given ensembles, are not materially curtailing their buyers' appropriations for separate coats. This is taken to mean at least a normal volume of business for manufacturers who ordinarily specialize in the latter. The view was expressed here yesterday, however, that if these producers permit themselves to be stampeded into making ensembles they will not fare so well.

Novelty Jewelry Ready Next Week.

Showings of important lines of novelty jewelry for Winter resort and early Spring wear will be completed next week, it was said here yesterday. Offerings will be more diversified, but indications point to continued emphasis on costume ensemble effects in both all-metal and stone-set jewelry. Pastel tones will be strongly played up in colorings. While leading manufacturers denied they were contemplating lower price ranges for their offerings, a development in some lines will be a greater stress on feature items to sell within retailers' desired price limits. Early business is expected to compare well with the same period last year.

Kitchenware Orders Reach Market.

Late orders for kitchenware to be offered in department store sales have reached the market this week. Producers of enamelware and of aluminum products reported an active demand for all types of medium and low priced articles. The decline in the demand for color has increased the call for aluminum cooking utensils and has brought cream-colored enamelware into popularity. Staple items, such as plain white enamel bread and cake boxes and saucepans, have also been ordered more freely of late.

Playing Card Lines Ready.

Novelty packaging this year will have a large part in the marketing of playing cards, especially bridge sets, manufacturers agreed yesterday. The new merchandise now ready for showing discloses several unique treatments in this respect. Sets including cards, score pads and tallies are offered in two and four card deck sizes. New decorative patterns for the cards show no radical changes from last year. The sale of bridge sets for Christmas was on a par with the volume of the previous year, and in some cases forged ahead.

Stationery for Sales Sought.

Stationery suitable for sales purposes is being ordered in good volume by buyers in the market this week. It is wanted for immediate delivery. Merchandise which can be retailed at three boxes for $1 is sought chiefly. White, gray and tan papers packed in novelty boxes are popular. Manufacturers are at work now assembling their regular Spring lines. Reports yesterday were that white stock will lead in sales. Envelopes of white, with green, blue, red and orange tissue lining, will be featured.

Burlap Prices Show Declines.

The local spot market for burlaps was quiet during the past week and prices ranged from 5 to 10 points lower. Some evidence of forced selling, due to inventory taking, was seen. Futures were off about 10 points for the week. The Calcutta market is weak and unsettled. Four mills are closed there as a result of labor troubles, and the political situation is being watched carefully by users of burlaps here. Little business is being done in futures. These prices were quoted in New York yesterday on standard 40-inch goods by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc.:

	8-ounce.	10½-ounce.
Spots	5.30c	6.70c
January shipment	5.50c	6.95c
February-March shipment	5.50c	7c
April-June shipment	5.55c	7c

Gray Goods Sales Limited.

Trading in gray goods was limited in this market yesterday. Printcloths supplied the bulk of the business done, and sales included nearby lots of 39-inch 68-72s at 8 cents, 38½-inch 64-60s at 7 cents and 38½-inch 60-48s at 5⅞ cents. Eight cents was paid for 36-inch 56-60, four-yard sheetings, and buyers obtained 37-inch 48-square goods of the same weight at 7¼ cents. In the drills there was light trading based on 9 cents for 30-inch 3.25s. Not much was done in the specialties, although business was put through in 100-60 carded broadcloths at 9½ cents. Fine-yarn goods buying lacked feature.

LULL IN HARDWARE TRADE.

Demand Falls Off as Period for Inventories Opens.

The current demand for hardware has fallen away perceptibly as distributors and retailers have begun to busy themselves with the taking of inventories. Reports from leading centres indicate that the holiday volume of trade exceeded expectations in most instances, according to The Hardware Age.

There is general gratification in the hardware business regarding the sales record made during 1929. In many cases substantial gains have been reported while in most instances the records were favorable in comparison with 1928. Prices remain steady, although the credit situation is somewhat spotty.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Butter.

Receipts, 9,212 packages. The market broke heavily on all grades of both fresh and held butter; considerable stock was carried over the holiday. Western advices were decidedly weaker and there was considerable pressure to sell here. Values declined 1@1½c on most grades and the feeling was weak at the close.

Poultry.

LIVE.

There were 57 freight cars in or due yesterday, about 48 cars unloaded and 29 cars are available for Friday. Quite a bit of poultry was left unsold in slaughterhouses, receipts for balance of week are beyond trade needs and market had a decidedly weak undertone with a lower tendency throughout. Only a little express poultry was received Thursday, demand limited and market generally favored buyers.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

William Street Deal Features Dull Trading at Beginning of the New Year.

FURRIERS RENT 684 5TH AV.

The second day of trading in the 1930 real estate market provided the first transaction of the new year in downtown Manhattan, where a William Street corner which had been owned at various times by publication interests came into the possession of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle. Elsewhere, however, deals of only passing interest were reported. Papers were filed showing that John D. Rockefeller Jr. had leased 684 Fifth Avenue to Revillon Freres. Records of the Register's office showed greater activity in the financing of properties in Manhattan.

The downtown sale involved the seven-story fire-proof building at 182 William Street and 23-25 Spruce Street, northeast corner, fronting twenty-six feet on the former and ninety-three feet on the latter. The structure was erected many years ago by the Bonner family, which published the New York Ledger there. It was bought subsequently by Herman Ridder, who remodeled the building and established the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung in the premises.

When the New Yorker Staats-Zeitung was merged with the New Yorker Herold, the Ridders sold the property to Schmoll Fils & Co., leather merchants. Last Spring the site was bought by Arthur H. Rahmann, president of the Rahmann Leather Belting Company, who has now resold it to William B. Dana Company, Jacob Seibert, president, publishers of the Commercial and Financial Chronicle. The new owners plan to use the property for their publication business, which for many years has been conducted at Front and Pine Streets.

Bacharach & Rosenstock, operators, resold the four-story tenement house at 575 Second Avenue, between Thirty-first and Thirty-second Street, to Mrs. Beth Buxbaum for all cash above a first mortgage of $17,000. The house is on a lot 16 by 100 feet and was sold through Brett & Wyckoff, brokers.

John D. Rockefeller Jr. leased to Revillon Freres, Thierry Mallet, president, the land and building at 684 Fifth Avenue, southwest corner of Fifty-fourth Street, for the term from Oct. 1, 1928, to Feb. 1, 1950, the yearly rental being $140,000, in addition to taxes, assessments, &c. The lessor agreed to erect upon the premises a new six-story building of character and quality similar to the one at 680 Fifth Avenue, with the exterior façades corresponding in its design and material. It is agreed that the lessor shall have the right to terminate the lease on eighteen months' notice on Feb. 1, 1944, or on the first day of February in any year thereafter, on a cash payment of $250,000, this sum being graduated down to a payment of $36,666.70 if the lease be terminated on Feb. 1, 1949.

One of the provisions is that Revillon Freres surrender to Mr. Rockefeller the lease it holds of 670 Fifth Avenue, which expires Aug. 31, 1936, and also assigns to him its lease of the top floor and part of the second floor of the building at 668 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Rockefeller will pay to Revillon Freres $20,000 per annum from the date of the surrender of the lease of 670 Fifth Avenue until its expiration date. Mrs. Abby A. Rockefeller, wife of the lessor, joins in execution of the lease, subordinating her dower right thereto.

The building at 110 East Sixty-first Street has been leased by the 110 East Sixty-First Street Corporation, Henry Fletcher, vice president, to Comino Vedda and Richard G. Verzone for nine years and nine months from Jan. 1, for occupancy only as a restaurant which shall close its business each night by midnight. The rent is $6,000 a year in addition to taxes and assessments.

William D. Austin has sold to M. J. Morrissey his 1,000-year-lease of the property at 403-405 East 123d Street. This is a tax lease given by the city to Margaret M. Ahearne on Jan. 14, 1856, when the premises were sold for taxes and assessments.

RECORDED MORTGAGES.

A mortgage for $4,000,000 was given by the Henry Phipps Estates, John S. Phipps president, to the Mutual Life Insurance Company on the property at the northwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Forty-seventh Street, half the block on the avenue and 250 feet on the street. This mortgage is consolidated with six other mortgages held by the insurance company to make a single first lien of $5,500,000 to be paid with interest according to the accompanying bond.

The Haddon Hall Corporation, Morris Jarcho president, gave a mortgage for $850,000 to the Prudence Company, Inc., on 433 to 441 West Thirty-fourth Street. The principal will fall due on Oct. 1, 1937, at 6 per cent and will be reduced $10,000 semiannually.

Peter Doelger, Inc., took back a purchase money mortgage for $120,000, due in ten years at 6 per cent, on the sale of the southeast corner of Second Avenue and Seventy-ninth Street to the Hattor Realty Company, Inc., of which Aaron Miller is president.

John I. McGrath gave a purchase money mortgage for $80,000, due in five years at 6 per cent, to George and Katie Dietz when they sold him 517 and 519 East Eighty-second Street.

On the property at 402-404 East Eighty-second Street and 1,572 First Avenue, forming an "ell" around the southeast corner, the Church of St. Stephen of Hungary gave a mortgage for $100,000 to the trustees of St. Patrick's Cathedral, due in five years at 6 per cent.

On the twelve-story building at 115 and 117 West Forty-fifth Street the 115 West Forty-fifth Street Corporation, Robert H. Davis president, gave a mortgage for $90,000 at 6 per cent to B. B. Davis & Co., Inc. There is a first mortgage of $300,000 on this property.

A mortgage for $20,000 on the property at the northeast corner of Broadway and 179th Street given by August Schierloh to the Union Dime Savings Bank has been consolidated with another mortgage held by the bank to make a single lien of $110,000, due Nov. 1, 1932, at 5½ per cent.

On the northwest corner of Broadway and 38th Street the 4,411 Broadway Corporation, Joseph Sable president, gave a purchase money mortgage for $48,250, due Jan. 1, 1933, at 6 per cent, to the seller, the Edanther Realty Corporation. There is a first mortgage for $290,250 on this corner.

A mortgage for $82,500, due Feb. 1, 1932, at 6 per cent, was given by the Nemrico Holding Corporation, Anisi Courry president, to the New Netherland Bond and Mortgage Company on the northeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 192d Street, 100 by 100 feet. A first mortgage for $165,000 is held on this property by the Commonwealth Savings Bank, due in one year at 6 per cent.

Worth to Have a New Building In West Thirty-fourth Street

Vivian Green, builder, has bought from the Equitable Trust Company the property at 41 West Thirty-fourth Street, 24 by 98.9 feet, upon which he intends to erect a six-story building for Worth, Inc., now retailing women's wear in the adjoining twelve-story building at 43-45 West Thirty-fourth Street and 62-64 West Thirty-fifth Street, which Mr. Green acquired in 1917. The bank property, held at $1,000,000, is said to have brought the highest price for an inside plot in the vicinity.

Mr. Green has entered into a thirty-six year lease of his realty with Worth, Inc., the reported aggregate rental being about $10,000,000.

REGISTER'S REPORT FOR 1929

The number of instruments recorded and filed in the Register's Office of the County of New York during the year 1929 was announced in the Register's report yesterday.

While 882 more conveyances were recorded than in 1928, fewer mortgage instruments were filed than in the preceding year, the decrease being 4,220. There was also a falling off in the number of chattel mortgages filed in 1929, or 1,967 below the total for 1928. The tabulation follows:

	1929.	1928.	Change.
Conveyances	17,052	16,170	+ 882
Mortgages	25,780	30,000	—4,220
Miscellaneous papers	794	812	— 18
Chattel mortgages	76,377	78,344	—1,967

In conveyances are included deeds, quitclaims, leases, assignments of leases, releases of real property from mortgage liens and kindred instruments relative to real property, such as party wall agreements. Under the head of mortgages are also included assignments, consolidations, extensions and modifications of mortgages, ownership and participation agreements, &c. The miscellaneous paper column includes wills, corporation certificates, powers of attorney and revocations of same, &c.

Buys in Park Avenue Cooperative.

Bennett Bishop, retired Radiographer, has bought an apartment of eleven rooms and five baths on the second floor in the 100 per cent cooperative building erected at 1,172 Park Avenue, southwest corner of Ninety-third Street, by Michael E. Paterno, from plans by Rosario Candela. With this sale all but one of the twenty-eight apartments in this building have been sold, according to Douglas L. Elliman & Co., the brokers. London Firm Rents in Madison Av.

Macdougall & Co., Ltd., of London, retailing Scottish homespun materials and knit goods under the trade name of Macdougalls of Inverness, have leased for a long term the store in 777 Madison Avenue, northeast corner of Sixty-sixth Street, where it will open its first shop in this city early in February. The firm opened its first store in this country in Philadelphia about three years ago. Recently another English concern, Fortnum & Mason, Ltd., sports wear and equipment leased through Brown, Wheelock: Harris, Vought & Co., brokers in the present deal, the buildings at 697-99 Madison Avenue, near Sixty-second Street. On this site, which was leased from Jacob Schroder, will be erected a seven-story structure.

Obtains $1,675,000 Mortgage Loan.

A corporation headed by Anthony Paterno has obtained a $1,675,000 first mortgage loan on the sixteen-story apartment house at the northeast corner of Amsterdam Avenue and Ninety-third Street. The building, which contains 668 rooms and 8 stores, was designed by Rosario Candela. Hughes & Hammond, and Kenneth Slawson Hobbs, Inc., arranged the loan.

Bronx Flat Sold to Investor.

John Muller and Eduard Riedel have sold to Paul Haselau, an investor, the five-story apartment house for ten families at 340 East 146th Street, between Third and College Avenues, on a plot 25 by 100 feet. The broker was the Julius Trattner Company.

Residential Projects Show Large Decline in White Plains.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Jan. 2.—Deputy Commissioner of Public Safety William A. Brennan of White Plains announced today that the lack of residential building in both single-family dwellings and apartment houses for the last six months of 1929 is seen as the reason for the $5,438,314 lass in the building total for last year as against 1928.

The complete building total for 1929 was $7,184,967, Commissioner Brennan reports. This is about half the total for 1928, $12,633,281, the second highest aggregate in the history of the city. The building records show that in 1928 residential buildings in the city provided for 840 families. Last year there were accommodations built in the city for only 345 families, a difference of almost 500.

Banker Buys Pyne Property.

The five-story dwelling at 119 East Seventieth Street, between Park and Lexington Avenues, has been purchased by Johnston L. Redmond, banker, from the executors of Percy R. Pyne Sr. Mr. Redmond recently bought the adjoining property at 117 from Thomas W. Lamont and now controls thirty feet at this point. He recently leased his residence at 705 Park Avenue to Jonathan S. Raymond of Boston.

OPPOSES CHANGING FILIPINO SHIP LAWS

Merchants' Association Goes On Record Against Extension of Coastwise Status.

APPEALS TO SENATOR JONES

Action Is Based on Study of Subject by Its Foreign Trade Committee.

The Merchants' Association of New York sent yesterday to Senator Wesley L. Jones, chairman of the Senate committee which has been conducting hearings on a proposal to extend the coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines, a letter placing the association on record in opposition to such action.

The Merchants' Association board of directors based its attitude on a study of the subject by its foreign trade committee headed by C. A. Richards. The Senate resolution calling for a report on the proposal was introduced Oct. 10 by Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. The position of the Merchants' Association was set forth in part as follows:

"This association has considered the proposal carefully from the point of view of the probable result of such an extension upon commerce and trade between the United States and the Philippines. In our opinion the extension of the coastwise shipping laws to the Philippines would reduce existing competition between carriers engaged in trade between those islands and the United States, thereby inevitably increasing freight rates charged on such merchandise.

"This increase would result in a decline in the volume of business between the United States and the Philippines by giving to competitors in other countries unlimited competitive service, while traders of the United States enjoy only a limited or less competitive service. We also believe that the extension of the coastwise shipping laws, with the inevitable increase in rates just referred to, would place a hardship on Filipinos by increasing the cost of their commodities imported from the United States and also by limiting or reducing the competitive market for their products, particularly such products as are consumed in the United States.

"For these reasons the Merchants' Association of New York earnestly hopes that the Senate will not take action looking toward the inclusion of the Philippine Islands within the scope of operations of our coastwise shipping laws."

EXTENDS PACIFIC SERVICE.

United Fruit Company Adds Two Ships to San Francisco Fleet.

The United Fruit Company, which has extensive passenger business out of the principal Atlantic Coast ports, announced yesterday that it had extended its Pacific Coast service by adding the cabin liners Suriname and Saramacca to its fleet operating out of San Francisco. The ships will be operated on thirty-eight-day cruises between San Francisco and ports of Central America. The first sailing will be on Jan. 10, with the departure of the Saramacca from San Francisco. She will stop at Champerico, San José, Acajutla, La Libertad, La Union, Corinto, Puerto Armuelles and Balboa, on the Pacific side, and then pass through the Panama Canal to Cristobal.

The two ships are built for service in the tropics, all staterooms being outside. William B. Wheeler, passenger traffic manager of the United Fruit Company, is on the Pacific Coast in charge of the new service.

VON LUCKNER MAPS VOYAGE

Count Would Take Boys on South Seas Trip in Summer.

Count Felix von Luckner, most famous of Germany's wartime sea raiders, who has been aboard his schooner Mopelia at West Seventy-ninth Street since last August, said yesterday that he hopes to take a group of boys on a trip to the South Seas next Summer. He said that boys should have more opportunity to view nature before it has been controlled and tempered by civilization.

Count von Luckner hopes to charter the boat to a group of Americans for the next four months to help finance the Summer trip.

SEEK OAKLAND PYROMANIAC

California Authorities Act After Two Schools Are Set Afire.

OAKLAND, Cal., Jan. 2 (AP).—The destruction by fire of Fremont High School, Oakland's oldest educational unit, and the attempt a few hours later to set fire to Lockwood Junior High School by means of a bomb, resulted today in an intensive search for a pyromaniac here.

The incendiary is believed to be the same whose activities have reduced to ashes a dozen schools, churches and public buildings in Sonoma, Mendocino, Lake and Suisun Counties in the past few months. Although he was seen in the act of throwing a fire bomb which set fire to the steps of the Lockwood school last night, darkness concealed his features, and authorities were without a clue to his identity.

Edward Frietas, San Leandro fireman, returning to his home from the Fremont High School fire, saw a blue sedan draw up to the curb in front of the Lockwood school and its driver hurl a package against the front entrance. The package proved to be a bomb, which exploded, setting the front steps ablaze. Freitas first turned in an alarm and then went in pursuit of the incendiary, who escaped.

AGAIN HEADS PORT BODY.

J. F. Galvin Re-Elected Chairman—Ferguson Remains Vice Chairman.

The Port of New York Authority reelected John F. Galvin chairman and Frank C. Ferguson vice chairman and re-elected its executive staff for the coming year at its annual meeting yesterday afternoon. The executive staff consists of John E. Ramsey, chief executive officer; Julius Henry Cohen, general counsel; William Leary, treasurer; Wilson S. Vance, secretary, and Marion Rodgers, auditor.

Mr. Galvin was first elected chairman July 1, 1928 to succeed former Governor George S. Silzer of New Jersey on his retirement and Mr. Ferguson succeeded Mr. Galvin as vice chairman at that time. Mr. Galvin is a resident of Manhattan and is president of the Metal Stamping Company of Long Island City which he established in 1888. He is also an officer and director of several other business enterprises and banks. He has been a member of the Port Authority since 1923 and was president of the water board that built the Catskill watershed.

Mr. Ferguson is president of the Hudson County National Bank of Jersey City and has several other financial interests in New Jersey. He was formerly Collector of Internal Revenue for North Jersey under an appointment by the late President Harding.

The election of both Mr. Galvin and Mr. Ferguson and the members of the executive staff was on unanimous vote.

SAN FRANCISCO PORT BUSY.

Record Tonnage of Ships In and Out Is Reported for 1929.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2.—A record tonnage movement in and out of the port of San Francisco in 1929 is shown in figures compiled by the marine department of the San Francisco Chamber of Commerce.

Net tonnage of the 7,806 ships arriving here last year was placed at 19,592,704, an increase of 1,482,264 over 1928, when 7,555 ships arrived. The 7,959 ships sailing from here during 1929 totaled 19,537,605 tons, an increase of 1,642,599 over the tonnage of the 7,705 ships sailing in 1928.

The controversy between shippers, manufacturers and the Chamber of Commerce over the so-called split-delivery method used by certain shippers has blazed up again with receipt of an order of the shipping board, suspending an order of Dec. 4, in which the board ruled this method illegal. The split-delivery practice will continue indefinitely pending the outcome of a rehearing before the board.

The Asama Maru, new queen of the N. Y. K. fleet, delayed because of heavy weather conditions encountered since leaving Honolulu, was due to dock today.

SHIP CRIPPLED BY GALE.

Asks Aid as North Pacific Wind Rips Off Steering Engine.

BREMERTON, Wash., Jan. 2 (AP).—With her steering engine carried away and her fore and aft holds filling with water from the battering of a southeast gale, the States Line steamer California early today asked for aid from near-by ships.

In wireless reports to the naval radio station here the vessel gave her position as about 650 miles off Tatoosh Island in the North Pacific. A radio message from Captain Johnson of the California said the vessel was in no immediate danger.

The message stated the vessel would return to the Columbia River for repairs at once. The emergency steering gear had been rigged, Captain Johnson said.

The California, carrying a crew of thirty-five, sailed from Kalama, Wash., on Dec. 30 bound for South China ports with a cargo of lumber.

WARNS OF FIGHT ON CANAL.

Col. McCormick in New Orleans, Holds Chicago Project Maligned.

NEW ORLEANS, Jan. 2 (AP).—Colonel Robert R. McCormick, publisher of The Chicago Tribune, today told the New Orleans Association of Commerce to beware of a "smoke screen of disingenuous pretense to be raised by the forces fighting to keep the great transportation systems of the St. Lawrence and Mississippi Rivers from being joined by the Chicago Canal."

He predicted that soon the question would come before Congress and he hoped it would be decided "by those who are wholly impartial and unpartisan."

Colonel McCormick reached here today by automobile from Baton Rouge, where heavy rain and fog forced him to leave his airplane in which he had flown from Chicago.

GAS ON LINER KILLS TWO.

Engineer and Steamfitter Succumb to Fumes at San Francisco.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 2 (AP).—Two men were killed today by gas generated in an empty salt water ballast tank in the afterpeak of the Panama Pacific liner California in drydock here.

Disabled Freighter Makes Port.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Jan. 2 (Canadian Press).—The Norwegian freighter Betty, 2,449 tons gross, disabled off Newfoundland since Dec. 22, entered port today. After leaving Hull, England, on Dec. 4 coal-laden for Halifax, the Betty's rudder was disabled by mountainous seas, and on Dec. 16 the freighter was hove to, riding out a gale 450 miles east-northeast of Cape Race, N. F. The Betty, commanded by Captain Beyer, was built in 1919 and is registered at Bergen, Norway.

RECEIVERSHIP HINT BRINGS STOCK BREAK

BUT MOST ISSUES RALLY

Fox Says Corporation's Assets Are $73,000,000, With Earnings at $19,000,000 in 1929.

The news over the Wall Street tickers yesterday of an announcement by the Lazarus Class A stockholders' committee of the Fox Film Corporation, that the committee regarded a receivership of Fox Film Corporation and Fox Theatres Corporation as inevitable, caused a sharp break in the stock market and especially in Fox stock.

Fox shares dropped abruptly from 23⅝ to 17 in less than half an hour. Several of the market leaders showed losses of 5 points and practically all were lower. Just before the market closed there was a rally which permitted most of the affected shares to recover a good part of their losses, but the Fox shares closed just ¼ point above the low.

The committee has never divulged anything about its organization or how many shares it represents. Farrar Lazarus, 1 Madison Avenue, sent typewritten announcements of its formation to newspapers shortly after William Fox had announced the appointment of Harry Stuart of Halsey, Stuart & Co. and John E. Otterson, president of Electrical Research Products, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Western Electric Company, as trustees to serve with him in control of his motion picture properties. The day after the announcement of the formation of the committee announcement of the selection of Allan J. Cole as chairman was made. Mr. Cole was described as formerly president of the Pennsylvania Exchange Bank. In the meantime, officials of the Fox Film Corporation declared that Mr. Lazarus did not appear on the books of the company as a registered holder of Class A stock.

J. Toff was announced yesterday as a member of the committee in addition to Mr. Lazarus and Mr. Cole, and T. S. Da Ponte as secretary and Stanley M. Lazarus as counsel. The new counsel last night said the total stock represented was "thousands." He refused to be more specific.

The committee said one of the reasons why a receivership was regarded as inevitable was "the unwillingness of the company officials and trustees to cooperate with the Class A stockholders' committee." Stanley M. Lazarus, when asked last night if offers of cooperation from the committee had been refused by the company or the trustees, said:

"We have not approached them, it is their duty to cooperate with us."

The committee's statement declared that the situation of Fox Film and of Fox Theatres was not encouraging and "indications are that a receivership must be resorted to at once, in order to protect all interests," and added: "If the receivership is not immediately applied for by the creditors such immediate action is contemplated by the Class A stockholders for their protection."

The statement also said that the Class A stockholders of Fox Theatres Corporation would be organized on account of the similarity of the interests of the holders of this stock with that of the holders of the Class A shares of Fox Film Corporation.

William Fox, president of both the Fox Film Corporation and the Fox Theatre Corporation, last night issued the following statement in connection with the statement from the Lazarus committee:

"In connection with statements which have been made by counsel for the so-called stockholders' committee I wish to say that the assets of Fox Film Corporation over and above all liabilities, are in excess of $73,000,000, and the earnings for the year of 1929 are over $13,000,000 with a special non-recurring profit of $6,000,000, or a total for the year 1929 of over $19,000,000.

"The estimated earnings to be produced in 1930, based upon figures from the operating officials of the company are in excess of $17,000,000. The officials of the company are in the process of negotiations which when completed, they believe, will enable them to fund all of the corporation's short-term obligations.

"From all appearances the year 1930 will be the greatest in every respect in the history of the company."

This is the first statement Mr. Fox has made in connection with any of the affairs of the large film interests he controls since his appointment of the trustees to act with him on Dec. 6.

Ice Cream Stays Axes in Fight for Old Tree, But Strategy Is of Only Temporary Value

Special to The New York Times.

SHREWSBURY, N. J., Jan. 2.—This ordinarily peaceful village, over whose roads the troops of Washington manoeuvred a century and a half ago in the Battle of Monmouth, was the scene of another conflict today, a conflict of axes and ice cream.

It was waged by some twoscore men and women in the shadow of the three lofty and ancient trees which stand in a row in the centre of Sycamore Avenue. These trees—two pines and a gigantic buttonwood—were planted by colonists before the American Revolution and to many old residents they have been the most precious feature of the village.

But of late an occasional limb has fallen to the road, to the possible danger of motorists. Accordingly, authority recently was given by the Monmouth County Freeholders to Freeholder Harry G. Bordon of this village to take remedial measures. Mr. Bordon decided that the trees must come down. On Monday the first tree, a pine, was cut down. Many of the villagers were indignant. On Tuesday the axemen attacked the second tree. Residents gathered around them and protested. A dozen women formed a cordon around the tree and stood their ground despite a threatening gesture from one of the workmen's axes. But the workmen insisted that orders were orders, and another pine tree came down while villagers began hastily circulating a petition.

This morning the axemen came again, this time to dispatch the old buttonwood. Two prominent villagers, George Fort Morris, portrait painter, and G. Harold Nevius, rushed to Freehold to seek an order from the county authorities stopping the work.

It was a fight for time. The workmen were ready to lay their axes to the tree. A score of women gathered around it and engaged the workmen in conversation. But the workmen were taciturn, and strategy was necessary. So other women bought pails of ice cream from a near-by parlor and pressed it on the axemen. The workers resisted a little, then capitulated. And while they were still feasting Mr. Morris and Mr. Nevius arrived with an order holding up the work.

It was only a temporary victory, however, for soon the freeholders themselves arrived by automobile and held a special meeting in Christ Church, whose steeple still has the holes drilled by Revolutionary bullets. After the freeholders had heard both sides they firmly announced that the tree would have to come down.

Tonight the pro-tree villagers met in the home of Mr. Nevius in a last effort to find some way to save the buttonwood.

GEN. PHELAN SLATED FOR ATHLETIC BOARD

Naming of Walker Man to Succeed Brower Now Held to Be Virtually Certain.

Brig. Gen. John J. Phelan is virtually certain to be appointed a member of the State Athletic Commission to succeed George E. Brower, who resigned to become District Attorney of Kings County, it was learned last evening from an authoritative source.

The appointment to this unsalaried position, greatly valued by those in politics because of its control over boxing, has caused a battle behind the scenes between Mayor Walker and John H. McCooey, Brooklyn Democratic leader, who put forward David F. Soden, a Brooklyn automobile dealer, for the place.

The appointment will be made by Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, Bronx County chairman, and the news that Mr. Flynn had decided to appoint General Phelan, candidate of the Mayor, was taken as indicating that there had been a restoration of complete harmony between Tammany and the Bronx Democratic organization and that the candidates for city offices recommended by Mr. Flynn would receive appointments by the Mayor. Although General Phelan is primarily the Mayor's candidate, he is understood also to have received the endorsement of John F. Curry, leader of Tammany.

Mr. McCooey, who has participated in several conferences with Mr. Flynn, Mr. Curry and Mayor Walker, is understood to be decidedly disgruntled at the decision to name General Phelan. Mr. Soden is from the Seventeenth Brooklyn Assembly District, of which Deputy Hospital Commissioner Edward F. Cadley is leader, and Mr. McCooey, after it had been decided that Mr. Brower should succeed Supreme Court Justice Charles J. Dodd as District Attorney, demanded Mr. Brower's place on the Athletic Commission for Brooklyn. He is understood to have received tentative assurances from both Mr. Flynn and Governor Roosevelt, but at that time the candidacy of General Phelan had not developed.

WATSON SEES TIME TO QUIT

But the Senator Says He Would Not Retire Before 1932.

Special to The New York Times.

INDIANAPOLIS, Jan. 2.—With rumors persistent that he would not be a candidate for re-election in 1932, Senator James E. Watson made a statement on the subject today.

"I am not contemplating retiring before 1932," he said. "However, it is time for me to make my personal fortune. I have devoted thirty-six years of my life to public service.

"During that time I have been a member of every important committee in the Senate. I have gone as high as I can get and it is time for me to think of my personal fortune."

M. Bert Therman, National Committeeman from Indiana, was present at a conference of political leaders when Senator Watson made his statement.

The Senator has been in ill health for some time. Several weeks ago he went to Florida, and came to Indiana Monday to visit his family at Winchester. He left Indianapolis for Washington by motor this afternoon.

EX-WIFE CONTESTS W. A. DUNLAP'S WILL Suit Says He Was Mentally Unfit and Subject to Undue Influence of Fourth Wife.

Objections to the probate of the will of William Allen Dunlap, son of the late Robert Dunlap, wealthy hat manufacturer, were filed in Surrogate's Court yesterday by Mrs. Lavender Dunlap, the testator's former wife, in behalf of their daughter, Lavender Amelia Dunlap, 19 years old, who lives with her at 17 East Ninety-sixth Street.

The contestant, who divorced the younger Dunlap in Paris in 1915, charges that on Oct. 13 last, when the testament was executed, he was mentally incapable of making a will and subject to "fraud and undue influence" on the part of his fourth wife, Ora M. Dunlap of 155 East Seventy-third Street, or of others acting in concert with her.

William Allen Dunlap died on Oct. 24 last, leaving his entire estate, estimated variously at "at least $1,000" and "less than $100,000" to his fourth wife, formerly the Countess Compusano, who was the widow of an Italian aviator. She since has died. He expressed deep regret in his will for his mistreatment of his fourth wife, who was involved in litigation with him for many years prior to his death.

The former wife bases her suit on an earlier will, dated Nov. 2, 1923, which gave all of the estate to the daughter. She asserted in her objections yesterday that "so far as I know, I am not entitled to share in the distribution of the estate or fund of William Allen Dunlap."

When the disputed document was filed the value of Dunlap's trust funds, created for him by his parents, was said to be $400,000.. Yesterday, however, at the office of Spalding & McCabe, counsel for the estate, it was said that they were worth less than $100,000.

The will contest probably will be tried in February.

RUSSIAN COMPOSER ROBBED

Mrs. Belle Sieve-Borsuk's Purse Seized by Man at Night.

Mrs. Belle Sieve-Borsuk, a Russian composer who lives at 2,155 Mohican Avenue, the Bronx, was robbed Tuesday night of a large purse containing many copyright notices, two unpublished manuscripts and several valuable letters, she reported yesterday.

While she was in front of her home at 10 P. M., a man walked up behind her, grabbed the bag, which contained only a small sum of money, and fled in a waiting automobile, she told the police. She expressed the hope that the thief would return the papers and manuscripts, which, while valueless to others, are irreplaceable.

ASK JERSEY REFORM IN STATE CONTRACTS

SOME BUYING IS CRITICIZED

Four Low Bids on Arena at Artillery Farm Said to Have Been Thrown Out.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Jan. 2.—The Abell investigating committee decided today to recommend to the 1930 Legislature that steps be taken to strip the State House Commission of the absolute authority it exercises over State contracts. The commission, frequently described in legislative debate as the supergovernment of New Jersey, is composed of the Governor, State Treasurer and State Controller.

Senators Frank D. Abell and Emerson L. Richards asserted the committee had not agreed upon the agency that would supplant the commission. The National Institute of Public Administration, which made a survey of the State Government, recommended establishment of a central bureau of finance to assume the functions of the commission. Senators Abell and Richards, however, said the committee has not determined whether it will concur in that recommendation.

The committee adjourned its hearing yesterday afternoon to take up the auditor's report, comprising 449 pages, and will meet again next Tuesday night to discuss the drafting of remedial legislation based on the audit and its own investigation.

Seeking Data for New Law.

Information intended to provide arguments for legislation for a new State purchasing act was sought by the Abell committee in a hearing at which the witnesses included Edward J. Quigley, State purchasing agent, and William J. Ellis, head of institutions and agencies.

Mr. Quigley some time ago suggested that his department receive control of all State purchasing with a warehouse system for storage of supplies. Mr. Ellis, on the other hand, wants the State purchasing organization assigned to his department which uses more supplies than any other State unit.

Senator Richards asked Mr. Quigley and Edward Mundy, one of his assistants, why low bidders did not always get the flour contracts for the State. The witnesses replied that the awards depended on the quality of the flour.

Millers of Winter wheat have complained, the committee said, that New Jersey has been spurning their product in favor of Spring wheat. The reason, Mr. Mundy said, was that Spring wheat made softer flour.

Senator Richards remarked that the purchasing department had not been so meticulously careful in its purchases of flour as in buying automobile tires.

Looking Into Militia Contract.

The committee wanted to know why the contract for the riding arena at the Battery B farm of the 112th Field Artillery in Lawrence Township had been let to the General Contracting and Construction Company, Inc., of Trenton, although four other firms had placed lower bids.

Mrs. Ellis said that Quartermaster General C. E. Murray, acting for the State Military Board, had directed that the contract for three of the four armory structures be given to the General Contracting and Construction Company. The riding arena bid, Mr. Ellis admitted, should have been readvertised.

Mr. Ellis denied that certain institutions under his control had purchased supplies a year ahead so that appropriations for certain items would not lapse at the end of the fiscal year. He explained, however, how certain economies could be effected by purchasing for the future.

OPPOSES SIMMONS FOR SENATE SEAT

J. W. Bailey, Smith Leader in 1928, Seeks Nomination in North Carolina.

RALEIGH, N. C., Jan. 2 (AP).—Furnifold M. Simmons, North Carolina's veteran Democratic Senator, who has been unopposed in Democratic primaries in this State since 1912, will face the opposition of Josiah William Bailey, Raleigh attorney, who has been prominent in Democratic circles for twenty-five years, when the voters go to the polls June 5.

Senator Simmons took an active part in the North Carolina anti Smith campaign in 1928, and for more than a year certain Democratic leaders have been casting about for an opponent for him.

Mr. Bailey was defeated in the Democratic primary for Governor in 1924.

Mr. Bailey is a Baptist and a dry. For several years he was editor of The Biblical Recorder, organ of the denomination in this State. He was an active campaigner in 1928 in behalf of Governor Smith.

Senator Simmons, who is spending his vacation at his home in New Bern, when notified that Mr. Bailey would oppose him, refused to comment.

Party Split Widened.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLOTTE,, N. C., Jan. 2.—The definite announcement that Senator Simmons will have opposition in the primary brings about a curious political situation. The opposition is an admitted effort to punish Senator Simmons for his support of the Republican candidate for President.

Anticipating the announcement of Mr. Bailey or some other as the opponent of Senator Simmons within the party, the lines have been pretty well drawn for some weeks. A bitter political battle is expected.

The leaders in the regular Democratic party will give their support to Bailey.

That faction of the Democratic party that voted for Hoover for President is lined up behind Simmons in the present fight. It has been reported that many of these will stay out of the primary altogether in order that they may be free to vote for whom they please in the general election.

That would mean, it is said, that the Republican candidate, not yet named, would be elected to succeed Simmons unless, as has been suggested, there could be arranged a coalition between these two and the Republican party.

How Senator Simmons would take this suggestion has not been learned.
